COMMENCEMENT

Within a few days, the Class of 1925 will bid adieu to Penn State. More than five hundred men and women will leave the Old Main portals never to return again as undergraduates.

After the diplomas have been presented next Monday, these men and women will owe Penn State a debt that can never be repaid in a lifetime. Perhaps our College has not given the Class of 1925 as much as the seniors would have desired, but she has given her all.

Penn State needs advice. Penn State needs prestige. Penn State needs inspiration. All these things the Class of 1925 can give with but little effort. At present, the College is at the crossroads, waiting to be led either here or there.

Penn State has given the Class of 1925 friendships and memories that can never be obliterated. Former classes have been presented with similar generousities and they have not forgotten their debt.

Every age, every civilization and every individual is accused of certain weaknesses. This age is censured as hypocrites hold the modern American undergraduate up to scorn.

In his address at the opening of College last September, President Thomas gave Penn State a slogan "Higher Up". Let the seniors carry this motto into the parts of the globe that will find them many years from now.

UNTIL SEPTEMBER

With this issue, the efforts of the board are completed for the year. Examinations had the coming of summer with its inactivity and the COLLEGIAN will depart until September.

Feeling the responsibility that is placed with it, the COLLEGIAN has endeavored to present to the Penn State student body a genuine news medium, an open forum and an unprejudiced editorial policy.

The board realizes that it is not infallible and criticism of every kind from every source has been and always will be welcome. Time and again, the COLLEGIAN has been accused of mechanical errors, "slip-ups" in facts and unjust editorial accusations.

And for the remainder of the year 1925-26, this paper will serve Penn State students with the truth, suppressing only those items which detract from the high ideals of Penn State.

AWARDS AND SELECTION OF VARSITY TRACK TEAM CLOSES CO-ED ATHLETICS

With the selection of the girls' varsity track team, the award of class numerals, varsity 8's and the tennis cup at the mass meeting in Old Chapel Monday, the varsity athletics for Penn State women were brought to a close.

QUIT TELLIN' TALES

Well so long old chap, and all that crap," says my roomie as he goes, "My own summer is the greatest since that I kept you on your toes."

Another advantage is that it isn't so easy to spend money when it's tucked inside and when you get home you still have it.

GOOD ADVICE

It was so sweet of you to take an interest in my conscience when I lost that I'm ending a suggestion which may be useful to you and all of your readers who will be going home this week.

When my L. O. on the 11th in my mother makes me pin a five dollar bill in my dress in case I should be kidnapped, she thinks that if my man is asked in catching me off he ought to have something worth while for the effort expended and the trouble yet to come.

Another advantage is that it isn't so easy to spend money when it's tucked inside and when you get home you still have it.

AU REVOIR—AND THANKS

With this issue of the paper we are forced to sling the pen. With a couple little comments on the stuff in Lions Den, Dan's Cive has suffered mightily though some things could have been worse.

We still think by all that's Holy that the piece for student stuff is in Dan's hole column and not on the golf course "rough".

So we'll write the stuff and use it with the hope that more would come from the pens of nimble students with a wit that wasn't numb.

ARCHITECT J. B. HELME JOINS NITTANY FACULTY

J. B. Helme a graduate of the University of Toronto, has recently been appointed assistant professor of architecture at Penn State.

Growth of the work in architecture and the increased number of students electing courses in industrial art prompted the College authorities to make the appointment.

Use of Damage Fund Explained in Letter

According to an opinion prevalent in the student body, the College will reimburse all citizens of State College for damages inflicted by undergraduates and Mr. R. H. Smith, Comptroller, corrects this impression in the following letter to the COLLEGIAN:

"There seems to be a rather wide belief in the student body that the College will reimburse citizens of the Borough and surrounding county for losses and damages to property inflicted by students of the College. I would appreciate it if you would make a statement in the next issue of the COLLEGIAN to correct this impression."

"The damage deposit of one dollar per year paid by each student is to cover losses to College property only. The only source of funds of the community has for losses inflicted by students is through regular process of law by the prosecution of the individual's concern."

"I believe that if students generally understood this matter they would refrain from inflicting losses upon persons who in all probability are their friends."

"It might be well also to refresh the student mind as to the use of the College damage fund. A number of years ago the student body took action with the approval of the Board of Trustees of the College to permit the establishing of a fund for the purpose of covering the damage deposit of one dollar per year to use any unexpended balance in the damage fund for Class Memorial purposes. Each class since that time has taken advantage of this privilege. As a consequence students who are informed have protected College property to the best of their ability so that the Class Memorial Fund each year might be as large as possible."

State Shirt Shop "Towering Masses" HERE the new architecture expresses itself in great vigorous masses which climb upward into the sky with a pyramidal profile—gigantic, irregular, arresting. An earlier, conventional building on the near corner is overshadowed, engulfed in towering masses of the newer building which are prophetic of an architecture of the future which is vividly stimulating to the imagination. Certainly modern invention—modern engineering skill and organization, will prove more than equal to the demands of the architecture of the future. OTIS ELEVATOR COMPANY
