The result of the working together of the carbon

This is a wonderful age for being what we are? We can buy beauty by the jar at the drug store, buy youth by the box, buy perhaps by a case of dope, buy health by rollers and buy ways to eat a lobster by $2.50 worth of caviare.

Some teachers in self-studies come must be always cranked up some start on high, some in intermediate, and some must be left on a hill in order to get started.

"I want to organize a national university for de-bunking the bunk. Whether Mr. Bryan will be the first president or the first freshman, I have not yet determined. Some of the problems to be taken up by this great de-bunking school of thought are as follows:

"I've got my diploma and now, thank God, I am educated."

"This party always means a full dinner pail."

"The girl who rolls her stockings will soon roll her own cigarettes."

"Alabama is the only state in the Union."

"The modern newspaper is the work of the devil."

"Novels have ruined the morals of our young people."

"Young people of today are less men than we are."

"My national society for de-bunking the bunk will keep everybody so busy that the cross word puzzle will meet its Waterloo and the practice of home-making will disappear. Everybody will be de-bunking themselves, and it will be a better world."

noted for its geological curiosities. It is located in Penn's Valley about eighteen miles from State College. The cave itself is a large subterranean passage age which is a result of limestone disintegrating through seepage and underground waters. It is one of the best formed and perhaps one of the most beautiful of the Pennsylvania caves. Fossiliferous forms result from the old crystals that everywhere surround the cavern.

self is a means into which we must venture.

"Contentment is not a thing of the future, rather it is a thing of the present. If one would find it it all he must find it in the present task and not in the wishful longing for everything else to do. He must find it in the fulfillment of the duty at hand in the satisfaction of even partial achievement. In the weariness that follows his best effort. It will come to him only at the end of a day well spent."

"Too little do we find men in play which satisfies. Play the very function of which is to bring happiness and comfort here too. It gets become a source of friction. We are our play more rational and simple instead of artificial and complicated we would find in our pleasure a satisfaction that would keep a man's life young though the years have made him gray and bent."
