Foreign incorporation, extraterritorial rights and unequal treaties form the crux of the present uprising against foreign influence which grips China, according to Dean Groff. Foreign colleges are numerous throughout the country, while those under exclusive Chinese administration are relatively few, the most prominent being that at Nanking, the southeastern university of the government and the University of Kwangtung in Canton.

President Chung

In connection with his duties of administration of the Agricultural college, Associate-president Chung has travelled in almost every county and continent of the world. Investigation of the methods of teaching and manner of organization and control in the various colleges, has formed the chief object of his tours.

When discussing the foundation of Canton Christian college, Mr. Chung described his work as feeding the coal for the machine of which "Daddy" Groff was the engineer. Early a student of Confucianism, Dr. Chung had obtained a first and two second degrees from the government prior to the republican revolution in 1915. About the same year he was converted and threw over all his former study of western religious, ethical and social life in the elementary schools of Canton Christian college. During the Boxer rebellion in 1899, he preserved the work by removing the school to Macao, from whence it was returned to Canton in 1904.

First Trip

A fourteen-month trip through the United States and Europe in 1910, gave Dr. Chung his first view of the actual workings of the schools, colleges and universities of other countries. Three years later, the vice-president spent a year in graduate study at Teachers college in New York. At this time he was Dean of the College of Agriculture, becoming associate president in 1920.

Dr. Chung is, at present, devoting his time to a campaign for funds among the Chinese merchants of this country, all the republics of South America and the West Indies. He arrived in the eastern part of the United States a few days ago but stated that he could not long remain and regretted that he could not stay here more than one day.

"I wish all the Chinese people," he said in speaking of his attitude on the situation in the Asiatic Empire, "to take the responsibility for the Agricultural college. At the same time I hope our American friends and especially those at Penn State will continue their interest in helping this great work as this College

Hats Bold And Sweeping In Keeping With Suits

IT'S wiser to go buy an up-to-date hat this season than to try to "get by" with an out-of-date heirloom from last season. All can tell the Hat for Fall by its breezy fullness of crown and bold sweep of brim, just as we show them in Grays, Blue-Grays, Light Tans and Medium Tans, just as you prefer.
