VOTE NO TO COMPULSION

For ten years, Penn State undergraduates have protested in a half-hearted manner against compulsory daily chapel. Time and again the authorities have been petitioned to abolish compulsion on the morning religious services, but nothing was ever accomplished. And why? Probably because the petition was the work of a few representative students, and not the voice of the entire undergraduate body.

The COLLEGIAN does not say that the fate of compulsory daily chapel rests with the result of the vote which will be conducted on the campus today and tomorrow. It can only say that the authorities must give some heed to an overwhelming majority. If a petition is presented this time, it will contain some very concrete facts and statistics, and will not be but a petition and that alone.

Since the discussion on compulsory daily chapel was started two weeks ago, communications have been pouring into this office at a steady rate. The majority of letters indicate the antagonistic manner in which morning services under the present system are received by undergraduates. Faculty members undoubtedly have also witnessed similar manifestations of antagonism but they are not prone to admit it.

One cannot help admit that the arguments, if they may be called that, in favor of compulsory daily chapel are woefully weak. It seems that they are based upon tradition, a tradition that has become more and more obsolescent with the passing years. Surely, as soon as traditions have outlived their usefulness, they should be cast aside to make way for the new.

Ballot boxes will be placed at various points on the campus this morning and it is the duty of every student to vote, whether he favors compulsory daily chapel or not. A poor vote would be a calamity, an indication of disinterest. The COLLEGIAN, voice of student sentiment, has promised that there will be no more agitation if the results of the vote warrant, and it is sincere in this promise.

We have weighed both sides in the balance, however. We are convinced of the utility of compulsion in daily chapel services. Vote NO to compulsion!

PENN STATE'S BARBECUE

Penn State has seen Postet Nights, Stunt Nights, innumerable indoor and outdoor mass meetings, but it has been many years since it witnessed an old-fashioned combined barbecue and mass meeting, such as will take place on the New Beaver practice field Monday night. The barbecue, one of the most novel affairs that has ever been staged in the Nittany Valley, should do much to awaken the old democratic spirit characteristic of the Blue and White.

The event has more than novelty, however, to insure its success. It comes at an opportune time, just three days before the annual Thanksgiving Day football clash with Pitt. It will provide an excellent outlet for pent-up enthusiasm, enthusiasm that has awaited such an opportunity to "break loose" in a real outburst of spirit.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate every undergraduate and faculty member. Let them all combine in giving the Lions an old-time send-off to Pittsburgh.

WHITEMAN'S BAND WILL APPEAR ON "Y" PROGRAM

Noted Musicians To Give First Presentation Here—Ticket Sale Begins Today

Appearing for the first time at Penn State, Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will delight music lovers on Tuesday, December first, in the program at eight-fifteen o'clock. This is the first entertainment of the "Y" series.

Known internationally as the "man who symphonized syncopation," Whiteman has scored unusual successes wherever his band of artists have appeared. The fact that he has quota of three hundred concerts, have already been booked augers well for the establishment of this popular attraction as a permanent feature of the musical life of the country.

On the Sunday evening preceding the visit to Penn State, Whiteman will give a special concert in the Stanley Theater of Philadelphia, travelling to Williamsport for the following night and arriving in State College on Tuesday.

Many are the praises which have been bestowed by musical critics upon the master musician who has in the course of his brilliant career attempted to put the so-called "American Jazz" on a plane with the classics.

The program will be replete with numbers from the operas, light classics and modern dance music. Tickets for this number will be on sale at the "Y" but on Monday, November twenty-third, the price being one dollar and a half.

ALUMNAE BAZAAR IS SCHEDULED TOMORROW

Linens from China, embroideries from California and foodstuffs from State College are the scope of the articles which will be on sale at the opening of the Alumnae Bazaar in the new Schlow Building tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

Grid Gossip

Every year, toward the end of the season, Pittsburgh papers which have made light of the Lion eleven earlier in the fall begin to praise it with all due ceremony. That's Smoky City's behavior to get a big Thanksgiving Day crowd out to the Stadium.

There will be a big crowd there, all right, all right, but we wonder if the Pitt team and all the Darktown's players will be able to handle the eleven men in blue jerseys.

Bez has had so many times this season that it is plain Penn, we would have had another victory under our belt. Now the Pitt has beat the Quakers, we might have to work a bit harder, but believe us, it's all over but the shouting.

There will be no cheating practice Saturday, since all voices will be needed in full force next Thursday.

When Penn State upsets the dope next Pitt, we wonder who's going to pick it up?

There are so many presses being thrown in practice that the waters in the hall have been requested to stop the evening meal at the players.

Just a general canvass for contribution this year. Although the response to such solicitations has been most gratifying in past years, the money counts do not detract from the desire of any persons to submit any articles for the magazine. These contributions will be received by Mr. P. H. Dale, who resides at 133 West College avenue.

COACH LEONARD DRILLS VARSITY LACROSSE MEN IN FUNDAMENTAL WORK

Varsity lacrosse candidates are practicing daily under the tutelage of Coach Ralph Leonard in an effort to master fundamentals of stick-work. The tentative schedule now being completed by Graduate Manager Neil Fleming includes teams from widely separated regions whose systems of play will be different from those encountered in previous seasons.

The stick-men will practice all winter despite weather conditions, according to Coach Leonard. A wall is being erected on the Army field which will enable the candidates to develop passing, while the board track will be used to develop wind stamina.

In commenting upon his squad of candidates, Coach Leonard remarked: "A man may spend ten years in learning to play the piano and never be a second thought, but some men think that ten days is enough in which to learn lacrosse." Last season the squad was greatly handicapped by candidates such as the men mentioned, but from present indications this year's group is aware of its comparative inexperience and is determined to leave no stone unturned in an effort to dig out the fundamentals upon which the old Indian game is based.

TRIANGULAR DEBATE OPENS 1926 SEASON

Forensic Encounter With Pitt and W & J Scheduled for December Fourth

NITTANY TEAM SELECTED FOR INITIAL ENCOUNTER

With the first debate of the season, which will be a triangular meet with the University of Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson universities, a little more than two weeks distant, Coach D. D. Henry '26 has selected the first squad of twelve men, six of whom will be chosen to represent Penn State in the discussion.

Although practically all of the present material is inexperienced the unusual interest shown among the contestants who vied consistently up until the eliminations Wednesday night bodes well for a strong Nittany combination. This is the largest number yet to compete for positions on a Penn State forensic team, and because of the ability manifested at the tryouts, all places will be again thrown open to competition after the first debate on December fourth.

Negative at Washington While meeting the Pitt refuters here, the Blue and White negative side will journey to Washington where it will argue with the presidents on the subject of "Resolved, That the United States should control and operate coal mines," but the topic for discussion is still subject to change as the word "own" may be inserted in the place of "control."

The Washington and Jefferson side will go to Pitt to endeavor to overthrow the arguments of the Blue and Gold affirmative arguers. The affirmative combination anticipates a good debate in view of the fact that Pitt has not defeated Penn State for the last four years in forensic discussions.

Opening the discussion for Penn State's affirmative side will be E. L. Willard '27, H. Nathan '29 of J. W. P. '29, while the second speaker will be either R. W. Tyson '27 or V. B. Tucker '28 followed by S. K. Stevens '26 as final speaker. For the negative side the first speaker will be chosen from S. L. Butt '28 or F. Pate '29, with J. J. Brennan '28 or N. R. Adams '28 following. G. H. Palmer or R. W. Brewster '28 will represent the refuters as the last speaker.

Details Undecided As yet it is not a certainty whether an open forum discussion will be held after the debate or not, nor has it been decided as to whether an audience or judges' decision will determine the winner of the meet.

Arrangements are now being carried on with Bucknell and Dickinson for the annual triangular debate with these two schools to be held sometime in February. Although the question for discussion has not yet been determined, either the above subject or "Resolved, That the United States should join the League of Nations" will be used.

In addition to this debate the Blue and White orators will meet the State Agricultural college debaters, who engaged the Penn State forensic team in a contemporary discussion at Manhattan, Kansas two years ago and the University of Wyoming, who entertained the Lion team on its trip to the coast five years ago.

Both the latter will be extemporaneous discussions. Tentative arrangements are also being made with Allegheny, George Washington, Lafayette and Rutgers for debates. About ten other colleges have requested debates but had to be refused because of no opening in the schedule of home engagements.

INDOOR WORK TO START FOR R. O. T. C. CLASSES

Regulation Uniforms Must Be Worn in Classrooms as on Drill Field

Uniforms will be worn during the regular indoor R. O. T. C. instruction periods which begin after the Thanksgiving recess, according to a recent decision of the department of military science and tactics. The department, in issuing this order, was influenced to a great degree by the nature of the work which will be pursued during the winter months. The sophomore will devote the major portion of their time to an intensive course in mechanical training with weapons. First-year students will receive regular instruction and practice in gallery shooting. The conditions which will be encountered in these practical subjects would be destructive to the ordinary attire and for this reason the compulsory uniform-wearing decree is also a protective measure.

Indoor classes will begin on November thirtieth and will continue until spring. During the regular one-hour period on Monday afternoons, the freshmen will report in the Auditorium, sophomore sections one, three and five will report in Old Chapel, and the remaining second-year classes will report in the Bull Pen. The two-hour periods will be held as follows: sophomore sections one to four, inclusive, in the old band room in the basement of Old Main, section five in 100 Hot, and sections six to ten, inclusive, in the old band room; freshman sections one to four, inclusive, in 250 Dairy building; section seven in 100 Hot; section eight in 201 Engineering A; sections five, six, nine and ten in the Bull Pen.

DEAN WENDT ADDRESSES PHILADELPHIA CHEMISTS

Using as his subject, "The Facts of Atomic Structure," Dean G. L. Wendt of the department of chemistry and physics at Penn State spoke before the members of the Philadelphia section of the American Chemical Society last night. This meeting was held in Laboratory Hall at the University of Pennsylvania and was attended by a great number of men whose work is along that line.

Dean Wendt also took part in a discussion of the organization of a seminar on chemical education endorsed by the American Chemical Society.

DE MOLAY'S DANCE TONIGHT Holding its first dance of the year at the Aceca house tonight, the DeMolay club of Penn State will dance from eight-thirty to one o'clock, to music furnished by Ken Keller's orchestra. The dance will be closed, but all present and past DeMolay and those men interested in joining are urged to attend. The procession will be 11.75 per couple.

LION RIFLEMEN HUMBLE INDIANS

Dartmouth Team Downs to Superiority of Nittany Ten in Second Match of Season

Shooting with a fair degree of accuracy, the Nittany marksmen were able to triumph over the sharpshooters of Dartmouth last week by a score of 1856 to 1796.

According to the official tally received on Tuesday, D. L. Procer '26, captain of the Penn State riflemen, recorded 375 points out of a possible 409. Close on the heels of Procer was M. A. Bid '27 with a score of 373. J. E. Ross '28 and A. S. Burns '27 tied for third place on the Blue and White roster with tallies of 372, while R. R. Mack '26 completed the total with a mark of 361.

Lieutenant Miller, coach of the squad, is drilling the team daily to overcome the element of "back set" which has been apparent thus far in the performance of the men. Frequent matches are being held to select the ten men who will comprise the personnel of the team that will participate in the first annual triangular match at Pitt and Carnegie Tech to be held on the latter's range Wednesday, November twenty-fourth. This meet will determine the intercollegiate titleholder of western Pennsylvania.

PROF. C. G. GUAM TO SPEAK AT CONVENTION

Prof. C. G. Guam of the engineering extension department has recently received an invitation to speak at the half day session of the National Society for Vocational Education to be held in Cleveland on Thursday morning, December third. Professor Guam's subject "Co-operation" was suggested by F. T. Jones, head supervisor of Training in Industry of the society's trade and industry section.

F. A. Seal, director of the Ford Motor Trade school and F. W. Kempton, director of training of the American Steel and Wire company, will be the other principal speakers. The organization is made up largely of manufacturers and industrial educators with L. H. Dunnis, deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania, as president.
