

Nittany Grads To Hold Smoker on Thanksgiving Eve

Pitt-Penn State football clashes of both past and present will come in for a general reviewing tomorrow night when Nittany grads and under-graduate gather at eight o'clock in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce building as the annual smoker takes place. Good fellowship as well as "cuts and smokes" will be in abundance throughout the entire program arranged by the Alumni.

While several surprise elements will feature events it is known that the double Varsity quartet will sing several selections that include Penn State songs as well as popular melodies. Besides Gilliam, McFarlane, Butler and Bush, regular members of the Varsity quartet, this aggregation will include W. W. McCombs '26, J. L. Nelson '27 and J. H. Vance '27. Hummel Fishburn '22 will accompany on the piano. Bandmaster Thompson will bring his entire Blue band to the rally and will keep the crowd pepped up.

It is likely that talks will be given by "Bez", "Dutch" Heilmann and "Killy" in addition to several speeches by prominent alumni. The entire football squad has been invited to be present. Although students are cordially invited and welcome it is requested that they identify themselves at the door either by a matriculation card or by an athletic pass book in order to gain access. Indications point that this rally will be one to be long remembered.

NITTANY GRIDMEN INVADE PANTHER'S NEW STADIUM

McMillen, Wissinger, Chase, Kifer, Brown, Harding and Gustafson of Pittsburgh started against the Blue and White last year as regulars and will start again in the coming battle. Of the Lions who will make the journey to Pittsburgh, Gary, Michalske, McCann, Weston, Filak, Wilson, House and Bergman answered the whistle in 1924. However, Bergman's injuries have combined to keep him from participating in all the contests this year, though it is practically certain that he will get into the Turkey Day fracas. Wilson and Slamp have been battling for the left end position and it is not known which will start against the Gold and Blue, although both lads are sure to see action.

One regular who is sure to be missed by Penn State is Jules Prevost, sterling tackle and placement-backer of last year. Prevost registered three points for the Lions in the first quarter of the 1924 engagement, only to have the Pitt backfield's four touchdowns smother his puny score.

Roepke To Start
In Weston and Michalske, however, Penn State has two placement-backers of no mean ability, and in the event of three points being needed, either one may be sent back to boot the pugskin between the uprights. In an effort to use his speediest backfield, Beadek has replaced Pritchard with Roepke, flashy halfback. Roepke's ability as a ground-gamer around the ends and through the line is not to be denied and has been tested many times this fall. Greene will be at the other half-back post, sharing the end-running and off-tackle thrusts with Roepke. It is not known whether Helbig or Lungren will start at quarter-back, since a knee injury is likely to keep the former from the game. Nevertheless, Helbig has not taken any part in scrimmage lately and it is possible that his knee will be fully recovered.

Michalske will be stationed again at fullback, where he can use his speed and weight to best advantage. It is predicted that the first half of the Pitt game will be a line-mashing duel between the bulky Lion back and Gustafson of the Gold and Blue. Gustafson has been a power in every game so far, but it is likely that Michalske, while on the defense will be the man to stop Big Andy.

With the possible exception of left end, the line will be the same which stated against West Virginia. Stimp or Wilson will take care of the duties at the left-hand terminal, while Weston is slated to begin the game at the other end of the line. McCann and Filak are sure to start at left tackle and guard respectively, while on the other side of the forward bulwark, House and Hastings are packed to perform at guard and tackle. Captain Gray will lead the eleven from his position at center.

Pitt Speedy and Heavy Munz, Mahoney, Felloves, Buehler, Roseberry, Weiland and Weltsko will probably make up the list of line substitutions while Dangerfield, Pineira, Watson, Bergman, Pritchard and Lungren are certain to spend some time toting the ball against the Pittsburghers. Sutherland's lineup will probably be composed of Kifer and McMillen, ends, Captain Chase and Salata, tackles, Steele and Wissinger, guards, Cutler, center, Harding, quarterback, Brown and Welch, halfbacks, and Gustafson, fullback. Welch and Gustafson have been the outstanding stars of the Smoky City eleven this year, with Harding and Brown in the offing. This backfield is one of the most versatile in the East, every man being able to run the ends, buck the line or pass with accuracy. Brown, however, carries the burden of punting, and it may be said that the burden does not hang heavy on his shoulders, since his leg is extremely potent. Cutler is a comparatively new man at center, having replaced Goldberg. Wissinger and Chase have been playing side by side for three years in Varsity togs, and they also were right guard and tackle in their freshman year and at prep school, where they started the game. Pitt's Passing Attack Beside having Harding and Welch as centers of the ends, and Brown and Gustafson taking tries at the line, Sutherland has developed a strong aerial attack which is executed with marvelous deception. All four backs are used on the passing end, while both ends and backs are lunched as receivers. Passes have been the pathway for most of the Pitt scores this season, with Gustafson cracking the line for the touchdowns.
