GREAT INCREASE SHOWN IN LIBRARY COLLECTIONS

Many New Volumes Acquired Through Recent Gifts—Memorial Grows

According to records compiled by Miss Sabra W. Vought, librarian of the Carnegie library, more than ninety-eight thousand books and pamphlets are included in the present collection, and judging by the present increase through gifts and purchases, the hundred-thousand mark will be reached during 1926.

Several complete sets that have been received by the library within the past few months have been instrumental in causing this remarkable increase. The Sparks Memorial collection has the greatest enlargement, nearly five hundred volumes now resting on the shelves allotted to this collection.

In other departments of the library, a corresponding increase has been shown, notably in the fiction and travel sections. Many of the "best sellers" have been purchased and several travel editions have been received. A fifteen-volume collection of Frank G. Carpenter's "Travels" is one of the most outstanding additions to the latter section.

The circulation for the first three months of the present college year is at large proportions than that of any other such period in the library's growth. More than five thousand books are being taken out each month of the year and at this rate, the circulation should exceed fifty thousand annually.

 justices sought his story and the pride they assumed when they presented his sentence, Bennet accepted his fate with an air that is characteristic of talented actors. "I Painted the Sign for Her Room" is the title of the usual enbroad he will be privileged to tote after the Christmas vacation.

On the first Saturday night after the return he, with his two colleagues, will be treated to a haircut peculiarly adapted to the individual cases. Later in the year the final payment will be made in conjunction with some forty other meritorious yearlings.

Not were the affections of the Tribunal evoked entirely toward this trio. Although Nathan Feldman may not have been the most deserving individual of the evening, his prize was a unique gift. Many of his qualities were mentioned and his ability to interpret customs, along with his coqueness, was pointed out in a communication to the body.

 Besides wearing the eighteen by twenty-four placard inscribed with "I'm a Ham Sandwich" he will enhance his appearance with emulsi of toast as a background for the "ham." As a favor for snapping back at sophomores after just being lectured to on the subject, Nicholas

DeGillo will carry the signs "Stunt Night Was an Ice Cream Social" and "Molasses Will Not Stick to Me."
 Frank Barnard will have the pleasure of displaying "Keep 'Em Buttoned." He will further insure himself against any such failure by the use of three huge horse-blanket safety pins. This award was made for allowing his sheepskin to remain open.

One person who doesn't believe in Santa Claus as yet, who might now have an inkling that there is such a character, is G. A. Kreager. For his talent in talking upon himself the wearing of a loud tie and a hat at a high school game he will carry his sash "Bound for Lemont" for one week.

Five Unworthy
 "I forgot my . . ." with a bible placed in the blank space is the nature of the justice meted J. S. Lorch who did that very thing. Notwithstanding the mystification caused by Samuel Wills, the embryo Houdini, in the lighted cigarette act, he will be allowed to write Rule Seventeen, fifty times.

Five members of the 1925 class were declared unworthy of any such commendations as those named and were excused. They are William Robertson, accused of general freshness, Philip Foster, said to have walked on the grass at the University Club, John Schell, who took customs a semester and six weeks, and who was duly excused, Robert Dickerson, neglect of regulations, G. A. Yost, said to have spoken with a girl and R. D. Reilly, accused of having his coat unbuttoned and of general
