LANDSCAPE GARDENERS HEAR BRACKEN'S TALK

Much can be done to arouse interest in developing the appearance and individuality of the home, Professor Bracken declared, by a systematic plan for improving the appearance of the home. He cited the use of annuals and perennial plants to beautify dwellings and pointed out the opportunities existing for young men interested in producing nursery and stock specialties.

Professor E. I. Wilde of the department of floriculture told the members of the club about Pi Alpha Xi, honorary floriculturist fraternity. He explained the strictly honorary standards of the society and called attention to its rating in other colleges.

Three-starred "A" Awarded Harry at Military Academy

Distinction in three major sports is the enviable accomplishment of Cadet Harry Wilson, former Penn State student according to a report received from the United States Military Department. The major "A" with three stars for participating in three major sports is another athletic award he has received.

tion used at Purdue university was presented, but it was felt that the groups should suggest rather than go into detail on such a system. Following this thought the suggestion was made that Student Council give its attention to the question. The subject of political parties within the groups developed the thought that political parties are to exist they should not be along social lines, but should stand for some issue worthy of support.

Closing the discussion with a decision to study the whole question of fraternity life on the campus, the members resolved to determine what change will facilitate a campus-wide fellowship among students.

lot and Kent teamed at forward and vice later substituted by Dick Love and Welker.

For the third consecutive time this year, Hamas started the scoring of the game through the foul route. Penn State's five then broke through Susquehanna's defense and scored some beautiful shots.

Play was fast and hard under the basket but the Crusaders kept up the fight and although unable to account for any markers themselves, they succeeded in checking the onrush for a time. Kurtz, captain of the Seminoles, aggression distinguished himself by his foul shooting, and it was in this way that the leader of the visitors added six points to the Susquehanna total. He was one of the visitors added six points credited with a perfect score from the foul line.
