Fire Brigade Called To Fight Brush Fire

"Where there's smoke, there's fire" That is the fireman's creed. After battling the flames Monday night in an unsuccessful attempt to save Nermond's garage on West College avenue from destruction, the firemen were prepared for a contingency Wednesday morning at eleven-thirty o'clock when the sun had begun the beginning of a new fire on Park avenue.

Quickly grabbing the usual paraphernalia, the Alpha chapter of the State College firemen dashed madly to the scene of the would-be conflagration. In this case the sun had announced a peculiar form of fire which seventy-five years ago might have been termed a picnic fire, but today must be called a bon-fire.

CO-EDS REVEL AT MAY DAY PAGEANT

Observe Ceremonies On Holmes Field Tomorrow--Girls' Glee Club Assists

CLASSICAL DANCES AND FANTASIES ON PROGRAM

Holmes Field is to be transformed into an English garden and Penn State revels into happy revelers of Merry England when May Day is celebrated Saturday evening.

The ceremony is to be observed at six-thirty o'clock instead of earlier in the afternoon as in former years, and the various episodes are so staged that the tower of Old Man is featured in the background.

Pageant Of The Seasons

After the music of the processional and the reading of the prologue, Writ enters bringing the winds who dance until Winter, growing weak, leaps and the winds flee. Wafted in by the Spring breezes, the flowers enter and dance around Winter, while May day was high festival, form the pageant of the green where they await the entrance of the queen.

A selected chorus from the Girls' Glee Club will sing the arrival of the dawn of May Day as they gather flowers for the festival. Then the peasants of England, to whom day was high festival, form the pageant of the green where they await the entrance of the queen.

PLEBES WIND UP SEASON WITH SHIPPENSBURG NINE

Canan And Campbell To Twirl In Double Bill--Humble Sophomores, 7-3

The freshman tosses will wind up their season Monday when they play the second of a double bill here with Shippensburg Normal school and travel to Shippensburg for the second fray. The plebs took an easy one from the sophs in the underclass strap Tuesday when they won by a 7-3 count.

Thirty-two colleges from coast to coast will usher in a week of day in the annual intercollegiate track this afternoon at Cambridge. Penn State with its surprising band of warriors, lost in the army of 600 athletes, will line up expected to finish among the leaders.

The Golden Anniversary of fifty years of I C A A A track and field competition will be tinged with the colors of three Pacific Coast teams. As the time for the race draws near the figure of House, Dye, Barnes, Grumbles, Reynolds, Cook and Coggeshall loom prominently as the men who will give Southern California its second consecutive championship.

Each passing hour the exact form of the Lions becomes more and more a puzzle. Under normal conditions the Blue and White tanks about sixth but the startling upset which the Nittany runners have been staging all season and the remarkable performance of the Nittany distance men and broad jumpers at the Pennsylvania Relay makes it hazardous to predict exactly where the Lions will finish.

Valley's victory over Harvard by a one-third of a point margin stamps the Blue runners as the best track team in the East and it is to the Bulldogs and the Crimson that the East is looking to repel the Coast invader, Southern California, Stanford and California, from sweeping the first three places.

Thirteen events, all of them elimination contests to determine the finalists, are scheduled for this afternoon at the Harvard Stadium as the fifth annual I C A A meets under way. In spite of the many dual meets that have thinned track fans this spring and in spite of the brilliant indoor season featured by record breaking performances by Asting stars and homebreds, this afternoon's events will mark the climax of the year's track and field competition.

There will be trials in six track events and seven field events. The first event upon the track list, the elimination contest in the century, will bring together one of the most brilliant galaxies of sprinters that ever graced a single meet.

The race will decide who will run in the semi-finals, and finals tomorrow and it will decide whether DuL, Paulhommes has the championship caliber of Phil Barber, California captain, Ed House, Southern California ace, Don Charles, Colgate's best bet, Hayes Norton, second last year to (Continued on last page)
