Established 1896

Well, fellows, you all know we appreciate your patronage and many courtesies. We can only say may the best be with you always and hope we may see you all again.

For The Summer

Gentlemen Prefer Blonds, Anita Loos
Everybody who hasn't read this should. Can be reread with or without thinking.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings, George Dorsey

Lively celebration on scientific aptitudes; like but better than "Mind in the Making."

Five Bayonets! John Thomason

This excellent captain of Marines doubles his narrative with humor as well as with blood—the one indispensable American book on the war. Wanderings and Diversions!

E. V. Lucas

The Green Jackdaw, M. Macmanus.

If you like—She has starling eyes And moonlight hair, And, oh, her legs Are a nippy pair—go to the Jackdaw.

The Oxford Book of English Prose, Arthur Quiller-Couch

One since in literary epitome, no one who much cares for English can afford to be without this

The Dinosaur's Egg, Edmund Candler.

Quiet humor and pathos, for those who like subtle colorings

Fraulein Dibe, Arthur Schintzler.

A perfect novel

A memorable first chapter, which leaves the reader immensely expectant

Portrait of the Man with Red Hair, Hugh Walpole.

The mystery of red hair and others, and what is more an American hero in an English novel

Travels in Arabia Deserta, Charles Doughty

The greatest travel book in English.

Odtaa, John Masfield

After a long trip to the top Mt. Masfield pushes you down the incline in his thrilling scene sideways

Lady into Fox, David Garnett

Of delightful whimsicality

The Virgin Heart, Remy de Gourmont (trans. Aldous Huxley)

Elaborately studies sexual impulses of two Frenchmen and a young girl.

Open all Night, Paul Morand.

Closed all Night, Paul Morand

The only books I know that have explained what we are like since the war. Plenty of witty epigrams—

"This world is a vale of tears—but well equipped." "Discussions are best for you have the satisfaction of knowing whom you are killing"

The Plumed Serpent, D. H. Lawrence.

Mercenary, in the sturdiest prose of our leading writer.

WE thank the students and the people of State College for their patronage of our new Grocery Store.

Many Writers Enroll In Zona Gale's Course

That Pennsylvania possesses an unusually large number of aspirants to literary fame is evidenced by the many requests received at Penn State for information regarding the new institute of English education to be conducted during the Summer Session.

One of the chief attractions that is drawing enrollments almost daily is the lecture course in novel writing to be given by Miss Zona Gale, well known writer, from July twelfth to July sixteenth. She is but one of the six prominent writers, poets and literary critics who will give a special composite course in English, each conducting a class for one week during the session. Enrollments are being received for one week or for the entire course of six weeks.

Lecture Course Arranged

Beginning with Paul Shearer, operating editor of the Metropolitan Opera company, the usual number of visiting lecturers and entertainers will be presented. H. T. Bailey, director of the Cleveland School of Art, and the John Huntington Polytechnic institute, is also scheduled to present talks on "Beauty and the Common Things" and "How to Look at a Picture." The Coffey-Miller Players of the Illinois Theatre Guild will enact "The Rivals" and "The Imaginary Invalid."

For the fifth summer F. D. Losey, who formerly was professor of English at Syracuse university and lecturer at the Columbia university institute of Arts and Letters, will give a series of afternoon talks followed by readings at the evening sessions. "A Fable for Christmas" will be followed by reading of "The Merchant of Venice" and a study of "Othello." Channing Pollock's "The Enemy" will be Dr. Love's third and last topic.

Other entertainers will be the Penn State Players in "The First Year," Paul Fleming, magician and Harry Farberman, violinist.

Widener's Band Booked For Summer Vacation

"Such popularity must be deserved." We refer to that of one Russ Widener and his troupe of musicians. The blond fiddler and his nine associates have won many friends during a most successful year and have so piqued the fancy of dancers throughout the State that they have been booked to play at numerous colleges and hotels during the summer months.

Russ's musicians will fill a week's engagement beginning June twenty-first at The Willows in Pittsburgh. For the remainder of the summer the popular collegians will play at Cleo's, Delaware Water Gap.

WILL USE DYNAMOMETER IN EXTENSION CONTESTS

Penn State's dynamometer will take part in the first horse pulling contest of the year Saturday at the Schuylkill County Farmer's Field Day on the fair grounds at Cressona.

J. M. Vial, horse extension specialist of Penn State, announced yesterday, Mr. Vial is in charge of the machine and the contest in the state. This is the first appearance of the dynamometer in the Pottsville region and residents are displaying a lively interest in the new event. Last year was the first in which horse pulling demonstrations were staged in the state. The records made then will serve as targets for the ambitious teamsters entered in the Schuylkill competition.

Gifts of Sheba, W. L. George. Answers the question—is the modern woman fit to live with.

The Art of Fiction, Edith Wharton.

Many a student has been pleased with a term's work on the art of writing and has got a junction of what this book gives.

Travel Diary of a Philosopher, Von Keyserling.

Crammed with ideas, Roving through Southern China, Harry Frank.

Narrative and illustrations exceedingly attractive; the chapter "General Aspects of Chinese Life" has a most engaging excursion on thieving and lying as practised in the Orient

THE SPIANS APPEAR IN FINAL SHOWING

"The Kid Himself" In Farewell Performance Tomorrow Evening At Seven

TICKET PRICES REDUCED; ORIGINAL CAST TO PLAY

In their final appearance of the year the Thespians will present "The Kid Himself" tomorrow evening at seven o'clock instead of eight as announced in Tuesday's COLLEGIAN.

Although the price of tickets, has been reduced to one dollar and fifty cents and one dollar, the cut will not affect the staging of the entire program. The same show and cast that has made the production a success during the past season will be used.

Female For Seniors

This will also be the last appearance of J. E. Kennedy '26 and R. G. Kennedy '28, comedians de luxe, before they leave for Europe as entertainers. The seniors of the company who will make their final bow to Penn State audiences are R. W. Gahan '26, J. E. Kennedy '26, W. R. Widener '26, H. W. Pennington '26 and H. H. Hughes '26.

For those who do not already have their tickets will be sold at the door tomorrow evening.

"Hole In The Wall" Destroyed By Fire

(Continued from first page) Fraser street, E. M. Molberg who is a sort of cafeteria combination of chef, waiter and dishwasher, was alone in the store with his wife at the time when the coffee became indisposed and bubbled joyfully through the pipe lines "Jobie" as the patrons affectionately style him, says the coffee scalded him, it was so hot.

Proclamation Sales Show Record Return

For the first time since the custom of selling proclamations to the freshmen was instituted, the sophomore proclamation committee was able to present a report showing a profit of over one hundred dollars. The gross receipts this year were three hundred dollars and the net profit was $117.04.

Twenty-six of the total number printed were given away, eleven were sold to the sophomores for ten cents each and there are eighty still unsold. Next year the proclamations will be paid for by the yearling budget. F. M. Gager '28, was chairman of the committee.

Music Clubs Join In Graduation Program

(Continued from first page) program is "A Stroll through Cairo" and the Cantatae Waitzes by O'Dell. Under the leadership of Bandmaster W. O. Thompson the Penn State Orchestra will present several numbers outstanding among which is a suite of three songs from "Erland" by the famous German composer, Von Fliecht.

Varsity Nine Meets Alumni Tomorrow

Captain Wilson, playing his last game for the Blue and White dove in the sole Penn State marker with a timely single down the right field foul line in the eighth, scoring Jacobson. What for a time looked like the sole tally of the game was scored by the Blue and Orange in the second when Blansdell tripled to right center and scored when Kostos registered a base-hit to left. Bucknell was then forced to go unless from the second until the ninth.

Out of fifteen contests played on the 1926 schedule the batsmen were successful in only eight tilts. Juniata, Gettysburg, Susquehanna, Ursinus, Dickinson, Bethany (twice) and Marjatta. Seven setos went to opponents, and each reversal was nip and tuck to the end. Navy handed the Blue and White its initial defeat which was closely followed by a setback from Villanova. A disastrous three-game road jaunt resulted in Three more contests going on the wrong side of the ledger. Bucknell then accounted for the sixth and seventh defeats with the home and away series.

Were it not for fielding errors at a critical moment and failure to hit with men on bases the Lions would have lost but one game and that to Villanova. As Captain Wilson and Schwartz are the sole regulars to be lost by graduation prospects appear to be the brightest for next season.
