The SUMMER COLLEGIAN invites communications on any subject of college interest. Letters must bear the signatures of the writers. Names of communicants will be published unless requested to be kept confidential. It assumes no responsibility, however, for sentiments expressed in the Letter Box and reserves the right to exclude any whose publication would be palpably inappropriate. All copy for each issue must be in the office by ten a. m. on Wednesday.

Entered at the Postoffice, State College, Pa., as second class matter. Office: Nittany Printing and Publishing Co. Building, State College, Pa. Telephone 292-W, Bell.

THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1926.

SEE PENNSYLVANIA FIRST

For more than ten years, Summer Session authorities have provided excursion and tours for the benefit of students who come to Penn State for six weeks of study during the vacation months. Prof. W. R. White of the agricultural extension department has had charge of this work which he executes in a manner evoking much commendation.

To provide trips to the interesting spots of the surrounding territory at the least cost has been the aim of Professor White, and to him is due the credit for many Saturday outings and evening visits to the gaps, caves and other pleasure spots of Centre County. Hundreds of places are available for seekers of the outdoors and no small amount of work is involved in choosing those which are the most delightful and at the same time educational.

Penn's Cave and Woodward Cave are two of the most interesting natural sights in this section of the United States. Bear Meadows and Alan Seeger virgin forest are scheduled also by Professor White for his open-air enthusiasts.

Alan Seeger forest, preserved in its primeval condition by Pennsylvania's first settlers, and one of the few woodlands areas which still remain virgin in this country, is a worthwhile sight. Dedicated to Alan Seeger, nature poet who lost his life in the World War, the thirty acres of giant hemlocks with their undergrowth of showy shrubs of rhododendron, and cool mountain streams, is a typical place to cook a meal in real pioneer style.

Nothing could equal the delightfulness of a Saturday spent in learning more about Pennsylvania. The trips are conducted at a nominal cost, and are worth many times the small sum because of their beauty. Reservations for these trips may be made until noon of the day previous to starting. Each trip is worth-while—See Pennsylvania First.

577 DEGREES AWARDED AT RECENT GRADUATION

Dean Raymond Walters Delivers Commencement Address To Class of '26

In the total of 577 degrees awarded at the sixty-sixth commencement at Pennsylvania State College June fifteen was included the first Doctor of Philosophy degree ever awarded by the College. It went to Marsh W. White, professor of physics on the Penn State faculty, for research work he conducted here on the mechanism by which x-rays are generated. The work opened the way for further study that will greatly increase the efficiency of the x-ray.

The principle speaker was Dean Raymond Walters, of Swarthmore college, and the degrees were awarded by Judge H. Walton Mitchell, president of the Board of Trustees.

Those graduated from four year courses in engineering, education, agriculture, liberal arts, chemistry and physics, mines and metallurgy totaled 536. A total of twenty-eight advanced degrees was awarded by the graduate school and thirteen non-certificates in the two-year agriculture course.

Dean Walters told the graduates that a happy combination of co-operative, spirit and individual development marks the citizen who is genuinely useful to his community and to the State. College athletes and other activities have rightly stressed loyal co-operation, and the playing of a "team game," he added. "You graduates," said Dean Walters, "should feel that the enrichment of your individual powers is not a selfish thing, but a contribution in a broad sense to the ideal commonwealth."

Guide Course Opened For Library Workers

In continuation with the classes for library workers which have been held at Penn State during the Summer Sessions of previous years, the State Library and Museum authorities is giving instruction to a number of students who have had experience in school, college or public libraries in the classroom on the second floor of the Carnegie Library.

The aim of the course is to familiarize the students with the fundamental rules of library work, the professional literature in various lines and to give them a general survey of the field of literature and the requirements of good library administration. Only those who hold positions will be admitted because of the nature of the work.

Instruction includes a drill in cataloging and the classification of books followed by an examination in the principles of reference work and practice in the Carnegie Library. Emphasis will then be laid upon the selection, methods of buying and building up a good collection. The last days of the class will be spent in the study of the general administration of the library and its points of contact with the public.

Summer Session SWEEPINGS

HERE'S YOUR REBATE

This being the initial appearance of "Summer Session Sweepings" in print this summer, we will endeavor to put before you the situation and its remedy.

No paper, satisfying the wants of a given community, can be without a personal column. Witness: "Summer Session Sweepings." Every student is urged to contribute items of humor concerning the schoolmarm, the prof; in fact, anything humorous, or even tragic, about anyone. There is a box outside the SUMMER COLLEGIAN office in which these contributions may be deposited. Thanks for all small favors and buggy rides.

If you ever want to see anything really funny, take a peep at the Phi Delta Theta kitchen force. Their looks would make one stagger, but their actions are worse. The Dish Washers' Union, of which the dishwasher is president and the dishwasher vice-president, secretary and treasurer, is the berries. The dishwasher sweeps at the plate and it's washed, and the dishwasher gives a swipe at each side with a towel and it's dried. Three swipes in all, not including the big swipe Dan Hamer and Babe Conyn are making by running the Phi Doodlelesshtany. "Steal" yourself, Dan.

There will be a dance at the Phi Doodle's Friday night. A Charleston Contest will feature the shindig. If a Phi Doodle girl wins, the house will be the donor of a chicken dinner Saturday night. If an outsider, like Florence Rhodes, takes the prize, Dan Hamer doesn't know what he's going to do—cause he's betting on Mildred Peterson.

After carefully noting the number of students who said they subscribed to the Summer Collegian, and comparing them with the number of subscriptions on hand, we come to the conclusion that the majority of the members of the Anamus Club have registered for Summer Session.

We will reprint "La Vie Parisienne" for the benefit of the students in the French Institute. Laff that off.

And what will the Music Students read—bank notes?

And the English Students? They simply can't read THIS paper!

HOW YOU ARE "HARRASSED," PROF.

"I have to chaff
My English Prof;
He cannot laugh—
He has to "lawf." J. O. B.

"Will you die for me?" he asked, panting another pant
"Yes," she sighed, sighingly, "because I know gentlemen prefer blondes" (Advt.)

You can't blame these summer bims because some of them are so loud. They think they're all suens.

We don't know whether Ken Bottorf calls his band the Metonymakers or not. They CAN make Mary—but they can't make Music. Improve, please!

DOUBTLESS?

Dear Cap'n—
Do you happen to know her? Can you help me out?
She gave me a tiny smile (no, it wasn't a laugh) as we passed each other at Co-op. I was hurrying to a class, or perhaps—but the bell had already sounded. I remembered her eyes, and how yellow her hair was. Doubtless I would call her a decided blonde, except, from my limited experience, blondes aren't. That is, not long at a time. However, she was fair, but, Cap'n, does that prove that she wouldn't be unreasonable?
I don't remember that she was wearing a lavender dress nor a light green one, either. Doubtless she was wearing some kind, though.
Editor's Note.—(What are we going to do with a chap like this?)

Never mind, Dad; Doc Taylor will soon be back in town. Maybe he's here now. If anyone can spot them, he can. What it takes, he's got. And if it's going to take something else, he gets that, too.

We wonder what the regular chapter members will say when they come back to find the cupboard door broken off and all the spoons gone, or the table cloth minus, or the piano in the Engineering buildings? About the only thing the Phi Sigs haven't let out for the summer is the big shingle on the Barnard street wall.

GRESSMAN TO DISCUSS PART-TIME EDUCATION

which a transfer could be effected once a teacher has obtained one of the certificates.

In his talk, Mr. Klonower brought out the requirements for certificates and what courses would lead to the different degrees in any field. For example a tradesman who desires to become a teacher. In case the tradesman had served six years in the trade, he is given credit for an equivalent education of two years post-high school work.

For this hypothetical case it is assumed that the four years of apprenticeship is equivalent to a high school course and that the two years of journeymanhood is equal to advanced work.

At the close of the talk the meeting was thrown open for questions.

when Mr. Klonower answered many personal queries. All phases of the situation with which he was dealing were thoroughly discussed. He then expressed his appreciation for the work that the teachers were doing through the aid of the College and for the great number that were enrolled in the industrial arts work in the shops.

LIBRARY BOASTS BETTER FACILITIES FOR SUMMER

Shelves Rearranged Since Closing Of College—Sparks Alcové Has Thousand Tomes

After a thorough house-cleaning, the Carnegie Library will open its doors to the Summer Session students with an air of freedom and freshness which has settled down after the ninety thousand volumes have been carefully arranged and put in order for those who wish to delve into the nooks and corners of the building in quest of data and details.

The Sparks Memorial alcove boasts of more than a thousand books dealing with American history in all its phases, from the founding of the first colony to the latest stages of a national growth. This group of volumes was placed aside and collected through a sum of money raised in memory of the late Edwin Eric Sparks, former president of Penn State.

Rules and Regulations
Books not on reserve may be taken from the library for a period of two weeks while those on reserve may be had during the regular hours from eight o'clock a. m. to ten o'clock p. m., overnight and from Saturday evening until the following Monday morning for the first hour. Reserve books will be placed down stairs or on the shelves back of the desk in the rear of the building.

A complete catalogue file of all the books can be found in the rear on the south side of the building. A brief description of the volume with its call number can be found there.

Reading Room

To the right of the main entrance is the reading room where many of the county and town newspapers along with a number of the metropolitan publications are on file. Several hundred of the periodicals and a few from foreign countries are at the convenience of those desiring current reading. Back numbers of these and the newspapers are available in bound volumes along the south side of the building with an index of periodical.
