DR. PIKE CLOSES SERIES OF TALKS HERE NEXT WEEK

"Problem Children and How to Reach Them," Topic for Final Lecture

DISCOURSE PRESENTED MORE THAN 500 TIMES

Difference Between Insanity and Mental Disease, Subject Of Fourth Talk

"Problem Children in Public Schools and How to Reach Them," is the topic upon which Dr. H. V. Pike will speak at the closing meeting of the series when he talks in the Auditorium Monday night at eight o'clock.

It is directed especially towards giving to parents and teachers certain facts to guide them in training in both the home and the school of the boy or girl who presents difficulties in matter of adjustments with members of the family, the teachers and his playmates. The discourse will cover very practically the method of handling the mentally superior child, the mentally deficient and retarded child, the psychopathic child and children with early manifestations of nervous and mental diseases.

This lecture has been given more than two hundred times before parents and teachers in five different states throughout the country. It is an attempt to end the series with practical suggestions and clinch in the minds of the audience the subject matter that has been presented in previous lectures.

Fourth Talk
Presenting several characters, Dr. H. V. Pike of the Danville State Hospital for the Insane, drew the distinction between insanity and mental disease as the thought of his fourth lecture which he delivered in the Auditorium last Monday night.

Taking as his example a patient who was affected with both a mental disease and insanity, he told how one of two life-long friends fell under the delusion that his chum was paying attentions to his wife. The two men had been reared together as boys, went through college and married sisters. An attempt to kill, which was unsuccessful, followed and George was sent to Danville.

Here he was detained for about three years, when the friend died. After a long consultation, it was decided to parole George. Nothing was heard until two years later Dr. Pike met him in New York. During the conversation that followed, the psychiatrist asked George if he had not come to believe what the physician had tried to make him realize when at Danville.

There was a very emphatic reply, "Not by a damn sight, but he is dead and I have forgiven my wife, and say, we have the finest baby at our house. You must come over for dinner." This man, said Dr. Pike, had still the mental disease, but had adjusted himself to his surrounding environment, thus curing, as it were, his insane condition. Life, he pointed out, is a suiting mass of organisms seeking to adjust itself to the environment.

"In the abnormal person," he continued, "we find an individual trying to adjust himself to his environment. The person may make all kinds of attempts and resort to any means usually these take the form of anti-social developments, such as drinking or immoral practices. It is the result of the desire of the individual to harmonize himself with his surroundings; an attempt to counteract his abnormal characteristics."

students who have listened to his practical addresses is conclusive of the general interest that is being aroused in the matter of mental health and its preservation.

Emphasis on Cures
Throughout the series of lecture-marked emphasis has been placed upon the importance of the early recognition of mental disorders and mental defects, the various ways in which these conditions manifest themselves, the factors that are operative in their production and the methods that may be employed for their prevention and cure, and the excursion to the Hospital comes as fitting conclusion of the didactic teaching.

The Danville State Hospital was the second institution of its kind established in the State, and at the present time from the standpoint of population, is the second in size, having under treatment more than 1700 patients. It was the first State Hospital in Pennsylvania to establish a training school for nurses and its educational and clinical program is recognized as the most extensive and systematic in the United States and probably in the world.

This program includes systematic courses of lectures before the student bodies of six normal schools, colleges and universities at both winter and summer sessions and the operation of eight mental clinics in the various communities of the Hospital District. During the year 1925 more than six thousand students and teachers attended these lectures and approximately two thousand individuals were interviewed at the clinics.

Trip Educational
The excursion to Danville, therefore, is more than a mere pleasure and sightseeing trip, as it will afford opportunity for study at first hand of the end results of mental disease and mental defect that has remained unrecognized and untreated in the early stages.

Dr. Pike with the assistance of the medical staff of the Hospital will present a series of twenty-five patients demonstrating in a most practical way the various types of mental disease, their symptoms and causes and at the conclusion of this especially arranged clinic there will be a complete inspection of the Hospital wards which will include the reception wards, where patients are admitted direct from their homes, the jail, etc., where the newest scientific methods of treatment will be demonstrated and the occupational and industrial shops will be visited where patients will be seen at work directed toward their rehabilitation.

Those who have availed themselves in former years of this opportunity are unanimous in the opinion that the visit to Danville State Hospital is one of the most interesting and educational excursions provided during the summer session.

A bus to Philadelphia will start from in front of the Auditorium at 11:30 Saturday morning, August 14. Transportation will be $8.00 one way or $10.00 a round trip. Those interested should see W. R. White not later than Wednesday noon, August 11.

Sciences testifies to his popularity everywhere he has met with success and commendation because of his interest in the subject and keen insight to interpret the conditions. But he is something more than an authority, he is an orator.

Dean L. B. Woodruff, of Cavalry Cathedral, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, wrote as follows upon the announcement that Dr. Sternheim would devote his time to the platform:

"The announcement that Dr. Emanuel Sternheim will devote his time to the lecture platform is significant and important. It promises to the lecture field a cultural and educational influence of exceptional weight and authority. No voice in the Middle West, while he was a resident in it, spoke with greater vitality, deeper conviction or larger information and stimulating purpose. He will bring to the platform, tired of platitudes, something of the old days of Emerson, Everett and Wendell Phillips."

For Dr. Sternheim is, first of all, an original and compelling thinker. With depth and breadth of education and with scholarly exactness, he also has the idealism of the poet and the vision of the seer. He is primarily interested in men and their social and economic relations and adjustments. He has studied profoundly all the movements of history, but has kept sympathy with the modern outlook.
