ELECTRIC HEATING DELEGATES OPEN CONVENTION HERE

President Hetzel Will Welcome Engineers from National Industrial Plants

UNIVERSITY CLUB DINNER TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Power Supply Representatives Wish To Discuss Rates For Electricity

The second industrial electric heating conference ever held in the United States opens this afternoon in Room 200 Engineering D and, according to R. S. Kerns, of the department of engineering extension, who is arranging the details of the four-day meeting, many more company representatives than were expected will attend.

Three of the largest power supply concerns in the East, the Philadelphia Electric company, the West Penn Power company and the Erie Lighting company are sending special representatives to Penn State to discuss the viewpoint of the central station man in setting rates for users of electricity.

Mr. Kerns also announced that J. P. Gill, chief metallurgist of the Vanadium-Alloys Steel company, of Latrobe, Pennsylvania, is unable to be present and that W. A. Stumpf '17, new representative, the Stanley P. Rockwell company, manufacturers of metal testing machines, will speak instead.

Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, Penn State's new president will open this afternoon's meeting with a short address, followed by Dean R. L. Sackett of the School of Engineering and Prof. J. O. Keller of the department of engineering extension.

W. H. Scott, inventor of the Scott "C" connection transformer, and special representative of the industrial department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company of Pittsburgh, will then discuss the development of the use of electric heat.

Among the other speakers will be H. E. Martin, assistant metallurgist of Dodge Brothers, Inc., Detroit; Michigan A. H. d'Arco, chief metallurgist of Pratt and Whitney company, Hartford, Connecticut; and C. Adams, engineer of the Ajax Metal company, Philadelphia.

All business sessions will take place in Room 200 Engineering D while the University Club will be the scene of dinners and lunches.

HOP COMMITTEE CONS PROMINENT ORCHESTRAS

Two Decorating Schemes and Bids Submitted—Poster Contest Arranged

To hasten the plans for the Soph Hop the committee members interviewed prominent band leaders over the Christmas recess, among whom were George Olson, Fletcher Henderson, Jansgarber and Dan Murphy but no selection has yet been made. The price of admission will likely remain at five dollars.

Decorating schemes with bids have been submitted by Wilkes-Barre and Pittsburgh concerns. Jewelry representatives will be asked for bids on favors within a few days. A prize poster contest is also being arranged, and Chairman E. J. Lockwood is preparing a budget to be submitted to the college finance committee.

Dr. Kern Contributes To Scientific Survey

Important contributions to the recent issue of the Scientific Survey of Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands were made by Dr. F. D. Kern, head of the botany department and Dean of the Graduate school, and Dr. L. O. Overholts, professor in botany. The papers discussed various fungi and its control.

Yougel Slides on Icy Sidewalk, Grins And Fines Every Other Landlord $4.50

D'ya see that fella Yougel dashing around on his little motorcycle, with Al Schroeder in the side-car, taking down names and numbers? Well, every number that reaches the book means $4.50 from someone's pocket-book as a fine for icy sidewalks.

The trials are held every Tuesday and Friday evenings on the second floor of the Fire House on Franz street. After a session with Burgess W. P. Rothrock, one gets the idea that State College is not a speed trap—outsiders are not fined—State College is the borough of Speedy Snow Shovelers.

DOCTOR COLLINGS TO LECTURE HERE

Former Penn State Professor To Speak on "Opportunity in South America"

PHI SIGMA IOTA SOCIETY SPONSORS PUBLIC TALKS

With a rich experience in South American affairs and a long training in languages and economics here, Dr. H. T. Collings, professor of economics at the Wharton school, University of Pennsylvania, will tell Penn State students of "Opportunities in South America" tonight at seven o'clock in the Auditorium under the auspices of the Phi Sigma Iota, Romance language society.

Doctor Collings is not unknown here for he was Professor of German at Penn State from 1913 to 1918. Since then he has become professor of economics at Penn and has also filled responsible positions with the National Chamber of Commerce, the Trade Board and similar organizations controlling business interests in South America and Spanish America.

While the lecture is especially for Spanish students it is intended to be of interest to all.

Rifle Teams Engage In Telegraphic Tilts

Having defeated Williams, Dartmouth, and Gettysburg, the Varsity rifle team is turning its attention to the fourth opponent, the University of Maine. A telegraphic contest has been in progress since the beginning of the week.

Penn State's team is composed of A. S. Burns '27, captain, W. G. Tuman '28, H. L. Detweiler '27, C. B. Prichard '29, G. Stauffer '28, J. L. Stearns '29, J. C. Fritz '29, W. S. Yeakel '29, H. E. Burcher '29, J. S. James '29, G. T. Blakeslee '28 and H. T. Ballou '29.

Four-Day Registration Will Begin Tomorrow

Registration for the second semester starts tomorrow and lasts until Saturday, it has been announced by Registrar W. S. Hoffman. Fees must be paid at the time of registration.

The Army will be open daily from eight until five o'clock and the steps to be taken will be the same followed during previous registration periods.

Twenty Report for Fencing Instruction

Attracting twenty students already this year the art of fencing is gaining a foothold at Penn State. Twice a week the increasing squad reports to Prof. P. H. Schweitzer, coach, at the Army for conditioning drill and instruction in the use of the foils.

Although there is but one experienced fencer reporting the group is making progress and Coach Schweitzer expects to have a team of foil and maskers capable of competing in intercollegiate tournaments within a year. Because the Army floor space is inadequate the band room is being sought for practice sessions.

GREGORY TO PLAY AT MILITARY BALL

Wrestling and Boxing Matches, Sunday Concert Feature Week-end Activity

TICKETS AWARDED TO POSTER CONTRIBUTORS

With the acquiring of Dan Gregory's Victor Recording Orchestra to furnish the music for the Military Ball, preparations are under way for the annual P. O. T. C. function which will be held in the Armory on February twenty-fifth. Dancing will continue from nine o'clock until two. This is the first year that an out-of-town band has been obtained for the affair.

The week-end of the Ball is replete with activity. On Saturday afternoon the Nittany lovers meet the Pennsylvania mites and that night the Lion wrestlers compete with the Navy seven. On Sunday, February twenty-seventh, the first of the series of winter Sunday concerts will be held in the Auditorium.

THE SPIANS SELECT NEW MUSICAL PLAY

Time Necessary To Make First Show Chosen Presentable Is Cause of Change

WORK OF PRODUCTION WILL BEGIN IN MARCH

Rejecting the "Arctec Maid" as the show for their annual production, the Penn State Thespians accepted a new three-act musical comedy, written by one of its members at a meeting Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Darcy, who comes from the Ned Wynburn studio to act as coach found that it would take considerable time to rewrite and re-construct the "Arctec Maid" to make it suitable for staging. The show selected to take its place is a three-act musical play filled with humor and comedy and will require a cast of twenty-four members.
