Nittany Captain Registers Clean Knockout—Lion Coach and Team Praise Hoosier Sportsmanship

Notre Dame's hitherto unbeaten boxing team found Penn State a little too strong Saturday and two forfeits, two decisions and a knockout gave the Nittany Lions their sixth victory of the season before forty-five hundred spectators. The treatment Notre Dame showed the visitors was the most cordial that the Blue and White team has yet received, according to the members of the squad.

The only Blue and White boxers to lose were Mahon and Mahoney, both dropping close bouts to Loring and MacGrath, respectively, but Alie Wolff gained partial revenge for his team mates by outpointing Captain Pat Canny in the 160-pound fight. It was Canny's first defeat in three years of varsity boxing. Captain Grazier scored his second knockout by stopping Frank Duquette, Irish welterweight.

Filegar Wins Hard Fight

In one of the best fights of the evening Gilbert Filegar repeated his last year's victory over Moran, the sturdy Notre Dame heavyweight. At the end of three rounds Filegar appeared to have the edge on his lively opponent, but the judges ordered an extra round before they picked him as the winner.

In a special invitation one mile relay race, the Nittany boys were even with the Maryland team for three laps but lost out when Mollinger dropped the baton.

In the Meadowbrook "Six-Sixty," Swineburne of Georgetown defeated Alan Helfrich, former Nittany track star.

Three Hundred Mining Graduates Working in State, Says Holbrook

Three hundred of the 519 graduates of the School of Mines and Metallurgy are now located in Pennsylvania, according to a new directory of these graduates sent out today by E. A. Holbrook, dean of the school.

The mining course was started at Penn State in 1893 and the first graduate received his degree in 1894. The living graduates date back thirty years ago to the class of 1897. Of the 519 graduates, 333 have degrees in mining engineering, 152 in metallurgy, 36 in mining geology and one in ceramics who graduated last year. The sixty per cent of the graduates living in Pennsylvania are engaged for the most part in professional and executive positions with coal companies, non and steel plants and other mineral and metal industries in the state. Only ten men are at present in work that keeps them outside of the United States. Dean Holbrook states that more than eighty per cent of all graduates are following the work for which they were prepared at Penn State.

Etchings, Block Prints in Exhibit

Art Department Shows Work of Fuchs, Benson, Kent and Woodbury

Set March Thirtieth For Concluding Date

Displaying a collection of unique material, the Art Department has secured for an exhibit etchings and wood block prints especially assembled for colleges and universities of the United States by the American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C. The exhibition will continue until next Wednesday in Room 284 Old Main.

Showing etchings by famed artists such as Emil Fuchs, Frank W. Benson, Charles H. Woodbury, William Auerbach-Levy, and wood block prints by Rockwell Kent, Pedro Lemos, Patterson, and many others, the present exhibit should prove one of the most successful of its kind ever held at this college, declared Prof. C. L. Harris, acting head of the Department of Architecture yesterday. In securing Emil Fuchs' "Paderewski," the American Federation has obtained one of the artist's best known etchings, according to authorities. Fuchs is an international figure in the realm of art, and has painted the portraits of many prominent people from all over the world, including members of the royal family of England.

Architects Hold Beaux Arts Ball Friday Night

Individuals To Try for Prizes With Interesting and Clever Costumes

Holding a dance which has become an institution at Penn State from its long and varied reputation, the Architects will give their Beaux-Arts Ball Friday night at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house, it was announced today by C. M. Bauchspies '27, chairman of the dance committee.

Since no set period will be followed in the choice of costumes for the ball, all kinds are expected to make their appearance. The Spaniard, Egyptian, Russian, Turk and even the lowly bum will rub elbows at the dance in competition for the three prizes which will be awarded to the cleverest and most original costumed trio.

Smocks were the approved dress for the dance last year and the Egyptian motif was carried out in 1925, but the committee believes that better results will be obtained in allowing individual selection in the matter of costuming.

Decorations are expected to be elaborate, according to Bauchspies, and will be set up by the committee consisting of J. Y. Roy '28, J. H. Howe '28, J. E. Boodon '28, and B. C. Hibler '29.

Educators Initiate Two Penn State Professors

A freshman discussion party fostered by the "Y" was held at the Andy Lytle cabin last Thursday night. The students motored to the cabin where supper was followed by the organization of the discussion groups. The purpose of these cabin parties, according to W. C. Calhoun, freshman "Y" secretary, is to organize groups of freshmen who are interested in the problems of college students and their solution. A number of these groups are now functioning and more will be formed in the future. All freshmen interested are asked either to see Calhoun or to leave their names at the "Y" hut.

Historic Cover Is La Vie Selection

William Penn Motif Will Mark Title Pages—Ghivizzani Heads Art Staff

Distribution of Annual Book to Begin in May

Selection of a cover design for this year's issue of La Vie was made by the editorial staff last week from three samples submitted by a Chicago firm.

Although unique in design, the cover selected follows the precedent of simplicity set by last year's prize-winning annual. A dark bronze relief of William Penn set on a black background furnishes an immediate introduction of the theme which is to characterize the art work of the entire volume. The title pages and drawings will all contain the William Penn motif.

The frontispiece, a copper etching, of Co-op Corner and the entrance to the College, has been approved by the staff. Proofs of several title pages for the distribution of the book have also been received and the remaining drawings will soon be in the engraver's hands. The art work is being done by J. A. Ghivizzani '28 and a staff of four assistants.

All material for the college, fraternity, girl's and advertising sections and the junior and senior class sections has been assembled and sent to the printer. C. C. Beryhill '28, editor-in-chief, announces that, because of the prompt assistance he has received from the members of his staff, all work is now up to schedule and copies of La Vie will be ready for distribution by the middle of May, as planned.

Plan Decorations for Junior Prom

Silverstein Given Contract for 1928 Formal—Will Use Squared Ceiling

Select Novel Scheme for Fraternity Booths

Choosing the scheme submitted by Silverstein and Kohl in preference to a Russian effort offered by Messer Studios of Pittsburgh, the committee in charge of decorations for the Junior Prom, officially signed the contract for the bedecking of the Armory on April twenty-ninth, last night.

"In choosing Silverstein's scheme, we feel that Prom-goers will see the superlative in decorating efficiency, although the eight other motifs submitted were of high caliber also," said B. T. Webb '28, chairman of the committee on decorations.

The ceiling, to the first time in the history of Penn State dances will be doubled. The lower portion will be in the form of a Blue and White checkerboard while from the upper division will hang decorated lumps.

Dr. Russell Speaks On Value of Love

"Man without love is nothing," said Dr. Elbert Russell in his chapel address Sunday morning. Stressing this point, Doctor Russell brought out the fact that it is only through love that men are inspired to work for a higher goal. It is found that an unmarried man is found at the top. All men require love of some kind to make them strive for better things. It is usually love for wife and children for which men work hardest. "What man that has love does not want to do something more?" was his closing thought.

The author of several religious books, Doctor Russell is well known in the religious world. For a long time he was a professor of biblical and church history at Earlham college. He is also a prominent biblical historian, doing much work of this sort at Haverford and Swarthmore.

Nittany Debaters Lose to Michigan

Audience Favors Volstead Act Supporters—Visitors Win With Rebuttal

Hold Open Discussion With Bowdoin Saturday

Speaking along an entirely new line, debaters from Michigan State defeated the Nittany orators Saturday night in the Auditorium on the question "Resolved, that the Volstead Act should be so amended as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beers." The result was voted by the audience.

Putting forth their arguments in clear and concise style, the Penn State affirmative team nearly swept their opponents from their feet, according to listeners. It was the masterly summaries and rebuttal of T. J. Ramsdell, of Michigan State, who, it is said, is one of the best debaters to appear on the local platform in many years, swayed the audience to a favorable decision for the negative side. S. R. Butt '28, proved a helpful aid. (Continued on third page)

National Grange Head Speaks to Local Order

Centre County Agricultrulists Enjoy Music and Talks Thursday Night

More than a thousand farmers with their wives and children attended the annual College Grangelet. Patrons gathered in the Armory Thursday night. Talks by President R. D. Hertz and Prof. A. A. Borland, an entertaining program and the eats contributed to the success of the occasion.

The purpose of this function, according to Prof. S. I. Beddel, of the Dairy Husbandry School, was to furnish to the farmers of the surrounding country who sell their milk to the college creamery with an annual picnic of a social, entertaining and instructive nature.

The first number of the entertainment program was a health play given by the pupils of State College high school entitled "Making the World Fit." The play was directed by Miss Louisa Evans of the Philadelphia Inter-State Dairy Council. Miss Evans gave a reading entitled "The Rejuvenation of Wornout Husbands."

Hank Sowers, high school student, furnished the next number with a monologue. Speeches of an entertaining and instructive character by President Hertz and Professor Borland followed. Music was furnished by the college band.

Refreshments, consisting of 100 gallons of ice cream and 200 large cakes were served by the farmers' wives.

Scoring only three points, the Lion wrestlers, favored to draw first honors in the intercollegiate mat tourney this year, tied for fifth place with Princeton Yale and Lehigh, each totaling fourteen points, divided the laurels. This tie will not be wrestled off.

Cornell, winners of the 1926 team championship, split second place with Syracuse. Both teams had tallied twelve of the precious counters. Pennsylvania took third position with eight points, and Columbia followed with a count of five.

Kaiser Meets McGovern Probably the greatest upset of the preliminary bout which engaged Captain Kaiser and McGovern, of Lehigh. Both men had been mentioned as point-winners in the meet, but a huge 170-lb. had favored Freddy, in view of his past seasonal record, to run off with the 115-pound crown. McGovern's time advantage was only one minute and thirty-five seconds.

In the special weight class, Wally Liggett drew Conklin, of Yale, and disposed of him with a scant one minute, twenty seconds margin. Long scored a somewhat more decisive victory over Schroeder, Cornell 115-pounder, by turning in an eight minute, thirty-eight seconds advantage.

Ace Scores Fall One of Penn State's trio of counters came in the preliminary round when Ace threw Martin, U of P, weltersweight. His time was eight minutes, fifty-five seconds. In the middleweight class, Brodhead, of Princeton, succumbed to Packard, who ran up a time advantage of slightly more than two and a half minutes. Stafford, of Cornell, defeated Hollough, Varsity 175-pounder, with an edge of two minutes. Garrison was thrown after nine minutes, and forty-four seconds, by Muslann, who wore Princeton colors.
