

RATTLESNAKE DINNER
CLOSES SUMMER CAMP OF NATURE STUDENTS

When the closing day of the College nature study camp in the Seven Mountains came this summer, the dinner menu included fried rattlesnake. Students proposed the formation of an organization to be known as "The Den of Rattlers," with membership awarded to all camp members who would partake of the dish.

Thirty students in the camp immediately became charter members of the Den, most of them women students of nature education and teachers of nature study in public schools. Ten different states were represented among the initiates to this unusual organization. Members of the Den likened the flavor of the meat to that of chicken.

ing that they never catch up to the fellows who have been working out all winter.

Discover Talent
Unsuspected talent is often discovered by means of this meet, he also pointed out.
Yearling cross country candidates have been practicing daily on the New Beaver track since they were called out the first day of Freshman Week. Varsity aspirants will start work immediately after the official opening of College.

Glee Club Candidates To Report Next Week

Tryouts for the Penn State Glee Club will be held on Monday and Tuesday, the nineteenth and twentieth, in the Auditorium at seven o'clock, the basses and baritone reporting on Monday night and the tenors on Tuesday.

Director R. W. Grant announces that the size of the club is to be increased from fifty to sixty members so that there will be vacancies to fill.

As has been the custom heretofore, the club will participate in the Y. M. C. A. reception for the freshmen which will be held Friday night.

musicians is internationally known for the splendid quality of its music. Each player is a master yet all four work together as one.
The organization was founded the original four are still with it. The members are all European but the organization is an American outgrowth. They are now prominently identified with the introduction of compositions by living composers but they still retain the classic music.

Sprague Presents "Lightnin'"
On October twenty-fourth Herbert Sprague and his company will present twenty-four years ago and three of the play "Lightnin'" which comes from a record run on Broadway at the Gaiety theater.

At the present time the Revelers, Victor recording artists, who will contain here on November twelfth, are now touring Europe. They will present a balanced program of song and music and should prove popular with the student body.
