Eminent Judiciaries Render Sagacious Decisions to Transferred Collegiates

Beware ye, disobedient plebes! The Moguls of Custom Land have begun their dastardly regime.

With the bang of Chief Justice Dangenfield's gavel, the 1927-1928 session of Tribunal was opened, and the honored members of the student body, who were fortunate enough, (or unfortunate enough, as the case may be), to be present at this meeting will long cherish in their minds those tender words of advice which were handed down to them by the All-Ruling Bosses at their conclave in Room 322 Old Main, Wednesday evening.

When asked if the freshmen can go with girls at Haverford, Joe Lesley, a transfer from that place, remarked that there were no such animals within a radius of ten miles. He was excused from further participation in frosh customs.

Qualifying Rounds of College Golf Tourney Start This Afternoon

Following a period of registration, the qualifying round of the All-College golf tournament will open today. Registration will not close, however, and entries will be received at any time, according to G. W. Culp '28, golf manager.

With three regulars unable to start because of injuries sustained during the final days of pre-season scrimmaging, Penn State's varsity football team will face a veteran Lebanon Valley lineup in the opening game of the 1927 campaign on New Beaver Field tomorrow afternoon at two-thirty o'clock.

Without the services of Hal Hastings, aggressive guard, Joe Krall, tackle, and one of the fore wall mainstays and Joe Miller, who last week led the varsity attack, scoring two touchdowns against the reserve team, Coach Bezdek's charges will suffer weaknesses both in the offensive and defensive branches of the game.

Krall was injured Monday when he damaged his right shoulder. Hastings, who has been troubled with a bruised hip, will favor his injury for the first two games in all probability, while Krall may not see action until the Pennsylvania game, October fifteenth. Jennings has left when a lineman failed to perform his duty, Joe Miller has been assigned to the inactive squad and he will remain for two weeks. Gray, with a tendon pulled in his leg, Morrill, with a bad knee and Darragh, who has been nursing a bruised back for weeks, are other injured members of the squad.

McAndrews Inserted Maury McAndrews, choppy coal-tioner, will fill the vacancy left by Krall. Maury has been proving his worth at center and should make a capable substitute for Hastings' post, vacant for the first time in many games, will be handled by Becker, promising sophomore grader, who weighs 300 pounds.

In the absence of Joe Miller, Wolf, promoted to the signal-barking post or the first team will be shifted to halfback. Pneuma will direct the team. Captain Roepke will be Allie's (Continued on last page)
