Lungren, Roepke Score As Lions Upset Orange

State's twenty-five yard line. Two line smashes by Goldman and a five-yard off-side penalty enabled Syracuse to secure another first down on the seventeen-yard line.

Then, unexpectedly, came the touchdown. Sebo dashed through an opening in the left side of the Orange line. Apparently stopped after a five yard gain, the Syracuse halfback wormed his way past the Nittany second defense, evading four Penn State tacklers in his spirited run across the finishing stripe. Brophy failed to kick the extra point.

Almost certain defeat stalked upon the Archbold Stadium field during the second period after another sustained Syracuse advance, made possible by powerful line plunging and consistent forward pass gain, brought the Orange force to the twelve-yard stripe where Baysinger skipped around left end for a second touchdown on a fake pass play. The tally was discounted, however, and Syracuse penalized five yards when a Hill man was declared off-side.

Still the Orange offense persisted. Sebo and Goldman carried the ball to the Penn State five-yard on a line crash and lateral pass respectively. Here the Penn State forward wall braced firmly, defended its ground firmly and held the opposing charges for downs. Two minutes later the half ended after an exchange of punts had proven more profitable to the New Yorkers than had the frequent forward passes that, for the most part, found their way to the turf as the Lion defense men grew more wary.

Roepke's return to the game shortly before the closing of the first half seemed to give his colleagues a much needed confidence that instilled more fight into them. Receiving Brophy's kick-off on the five-yard line, the blond leader returned it thirty-four yards in a thrilling open field run during which he threatened to manage his way for a touchdown.

Lions Are Aroused
After Roepke's burst of speed, there came a sudden awakening in the Lion ranks. Penn State was retaliating. The entire Blue and White backfield found the line holes advantageous. Hamas crashed the line time and again for five yard gains.

Roepke advanced consistently off-tackle and around the ends. Wolf wormed his way for more than one first down while Lungren found the Orange's left end of the line cleared for him on several occasions. A fumble, recovered by Jones, put an end to the Lion excursion and a Penn State score seemed impossible.

Held in check, the Syracuse forwards were forced to kick. Roepke punted back. So did Baysinger after a futile line thrust. The close of the third period found the ball on Syracuse's fifteen yard line where it had been advanced by a line buck with Hamas hugging the ball, a dart off tackle by Wolf and a fake placement kick which emerged as a long forward pass to George Delp.

Fighting back furiously, the Syracuse eleven found itself swept on hopelessly by the inspired Nittany line as Roepke and Hamas negotiated a first down on the nine yard line. Then came an unorthodox play. The Orange second defense, expecting a line plunge, was sucked in as Lungren sped around right end for a touchdown. Roepke missed the extra point and the score was even.

Undaunted, the Andreas charges received the kick-off after which they inaugurated a relentless drive for the goal. And the Barbuti-less griddees, using the forward and lateral pass to advantage, had hopes of another score until Lungren intercepted a toss on Penn State's twenty-yard line and advanced it sixteen more before a Syracuse tackler downed him. An exchange of punts ensued. Once more in possession of the ball, the Lions waged another fierce offensive attack that brought them within scoring distance.

Wolf proved the main cog of the Penn State drive in the final chapter, vending his way for three consecutive first downs, each time fighting his way past the entire Orange line. Plunges by Roepke, Lungren and Hamas added materially between the first downs. The Syracuse line became more stubborn as Roepke failed to gain, but the second defense men were caught napping as Lungren tossed a long pass to place the ball on the twenty-three yard line.

Hamas and Roepke in two furious crashes tore through center to the ten-yard mark, past which line they were unable to advance. On the next play Roepke fell back to the twenty-one yard stripe, and while twenty thousand spectators sat silently, almost breathlessly, the versatile half-back scored the deciding three points of the game with a placement kick that raised surely, swiftly, squarely above the wooden uprights.

Frantic in the face of the first defeat of the season, the Syracuse backs made many desperate attempts to score. One forward pass after another was heaved for long distances. Three of these, completed, placed the ball on the seven-yard line. The Orangemen were penalized for two consecutive incomplete forward passes as the whistle sounded the end of the game and Penn State's first victory over Bill Orange in the history of the grid game.

To the Daniel Boone

It is still the day of the trail blazer. In the telephone industry pioneers are cutting new paths in the knowledge of their art. This industry is continually on the threshold of new ideas, with each development opening up a vista for its explorers to track down. Their activity will be as engineers in laboratory research and plant operation, but also in supervisory and executive positions—planning the course of activity for groups of men and carrying the burdens of administration. The responsibility and opportunity of management take on an increasing importance in an industry such as this, where forward-looking leadership must point the way to ever better public service.
