

BUILDING PROGRAM SHOWS PROGRESS

Workers Commence Excavation For Hospital and Erection Of Recreation Center

OFFICIALS CONTRACT FOR AGRICULTURAL ADDITIONS

Progress in Penn State's building program has been marked by the erection, during the past few days, of part of the steel structure for the large Recreation Center west of Varsity Hall and the beginning of excavation for the new College Hospital, both of which are to be completed by next fall.

With all of the excavation work for the new gymnasium finished and the foundation for the structure nearing completion, the construction crew is laboring daily to raise the steel framework. The front part has already been erected while the steel trusses are being riveted together, preparatory to being hoisted into place by powerful cranes.

Will Seat Eight Thousand The new indoor stadium will seat, according to present plans, eight thousand people. Permanent seats on a balcony stretching around three sides of the building will hold thirty-five hundred people while bleachers erected below the balcony will provide for three thousand more persons. It is believed that chairs and benches placed on the remaining floor space will bring the capacity of the building up to eight thousand.

Present plans for the Recreation Center call for the erection of only the main part at this time. When additional funds are available a unit for lockers and another for a swimming pool will be added.

Start Work on Hospital Initial work was started on the College Hospital a few weeks ago when sewerage lines were laid. A portion of the top soil has already been removed as the first step in excavation work which, if fair weather continues, will be completed within two weeks.

Contracts for three buildings on Ag Hill have been let to the State College Construction company and work on the new additions will start this week, Raymond H. Smith, College Comptroller, announced yesterday.

A sheep barn will be built adjacent to the dairy barn while a veterinary barn, for the isolation of sick and diseased cattle, will be constructed as a part of the dairy group in the rear of the barn. In addition to these, the plans include a poultry brooder range as an extension to the incubator house.

To facilitate access to the new gymnasium, Burrows street has been extended directly past the new building. It is, at present, in bad condition because of being torn up by lay sewers and water lines from the buildings connecting with the main lines of the borough.

Dr. Dutcher To Attend Meeting of Biologists

Dr. Raymond A. Dutcher, head of the department of agricultural and biological chemistry, will attend a conference of the Federated Societies for Experimental Biology and Medicine in Ann Arbor, Michigan from April twelfth to fourteenth, inclusive.

This federation is composed of organizations of chemists, biologists and other scientists throughout the United States. They all combine for a meeting each year. Doctor Dutcher is the head of a committee which was appointed recently to name two new vitamins.

to advanced fundamentals and dummy scrimmage.

Because of the lack of veteran material, Coach Paul must develop his team from inexperienced men. The candidates have shown promise to date and the lacrosse mentor expects to round up a formidable aggregation for the season's opener. Syracuse will prove a strong foe with a veteran club. The Orange stickmen annexed four intercollegiate titles while under the tutelage of Coach Paul and have had a representative team each year since.

To create greater interest in lacrosse among the undergraduates, Coach Paul has arranged a series of freshman-sophomore scrums to be held after the opening varsity encounter. The interclass lacrosse will engage in three games to decide the championship.
