LAZARON RETURNS FOR ADDRESS AT SUNDAY VESPERS

Noted Rabbi of Baltimore Will Talk at Weekly Service in Open Air Theatre

POPULAR SPEAKER VISITS COLLEGE FOR SIXTH TIME

Officiated at Burial Ceremony of Unknown Soldier in National Cemetery

A Penn State audience will listen again to a speaker who has always been popular with State College folk when Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron of the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation addresses the group attending the weekly song and vesper service in the Open Air theatre at seven o'clock Sunday evening.

Rabbi Lazaron is well-known to Penn State audiences for his talks here during the past five years, both during the regular and summer sessions. He last addressed a College assembly on October 30, 1927. His address for next year is scheduled for April 21.

Sunday's speaker was ordained in 1914 after receiving his bachelor's degree from the University of Cincinnati and later the degree of master of arts from the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati. From August of that year until a year later he filled his first pulpit at Wheeling, W. Va.

From there he transferred to his present post in Baltimore where he has remained since that time except when he was on leave to serve for a time with the Jewish Welfare Board during the World War.

Commissioned as chaplain in the regular army he served until December, 1918. He was one of the four chaplains officiating at the burial of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, representing the Jewish people on that occasion. At present he holds a commission as major in the officer's reserve corps.

Several years ago he went to the Holy Land to study the religious situation. From there he returned to America through central and south-eastern Europe. He is now on the executive board of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

STATE GRANGERS START NEW GIRLS' DORMITORY

College Trustee Breaks Ground For Memorial at Recent Campus Ceremony

Realization of a great ambition by members of the Pennsylvania State Grange came on June fifteenth when ground was broken on the Penn State campus for the proposed Grange memorial dormitory for girl students. The College at work on the building plans and construction work will be started as soon as possible.

The first shovel of earth was tined by Mrs. Clara C. Philips of Washington, Pa., a College trustee and for several years a tireless worker in the interests of the Grange Memorial. During the ceremony she received tribute from speakers for her efforts in making the dormitory a reality.

One hundred thousand dollars was recently turned over to the College by the Granges of the State to help in the construction of the building. Under the agreement made several years ago the College will increase the fund to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars which it is expected that the structure will cost.

The need for such a building so as to allow more girls to become students at the College, was told by Philip H. Dewey, past master and chairman of the committee that selected the type of memorial through which the Grange desired to express its appreciation for the Penn State work.

Institute of Music To Sponsor Student Band

The Institute of Music will sponsor a student band this summer according to an announcement made yesterday by Prof. Richard W. Grant who states that one rehearsal has already been held and that enthusiasm shown by those present indicates a successful organization.

Mr. Mondel E. Butterfield, instructor in band instruments, will lead the aggregation of music makers. Positions are open in all sections of the organization, to which no fee is charged for admittance and for which no college credit will be given. A number of public concerts will be given later.

Educators, Hungry for Rattlesnakes, Gain Admittance Into Exclusive Club

Seven hungry educators had rattlesnake for dinner last Saturday, an activity which should scale higher in the realm of news than the story of a man masticating an Aredale, or for that matter, a Pekinese.

It was the annual initiation of the "Den of Rattles," an exclusive club which recruits its members from the College nature study camp in the Seven Mountains. You can't belong until you've sat down to a well-served rattlesnake. The members say rattlesnake tastes like chicken, but they (the members) don't order it (rattlesnake) for Sunday dinner.

FRENCH EDUCATOR VISITS INSTITUTE

Prof. Leon Rosenthal Conducts Courses in Native Tongue Here During Summer

HOLDS WIDE REPUTATION AS AUTHOR IN FRANCE

Prof. Leon Rosenthal, noted French author and educator, is filling the office of visiting instructor from France during the present Summer Session at the Institute of French Education of which Prof. Gustave P. Fougeray, of Syracuse, is director. The Institute is conducted annually for those who have studied the language and desire to obtain a fluent speaking knowledge of it.

Well-Known Author
The visiting Frenchman has gained recognition in his native country as an author. He has been honored with a laureate of the French Academy and of the Academy of Sciences. In addition he is a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Since publishing his first book, "The Romantic Painting" in 1901 Monsieur Rosenthal has amassed a total of fifteen volumes to his credit and at present is working on the sixteenth, "The Museums of Lyons." Included in his works are "From Romanticism to Realism," "Art and Romantic Artists," "French Cities and Villages After the War," and "Artistic Visits of Paris and Parisian Regions."

Educated in Paris
Professor Rosenthal is a graduate of the Superior Normal School as well as from the University of Paris where he received the degree of Doctor of Letters. Since graduation he has held the positions of professor of modern art at the University of Lyons, a professorship at the Academy of Fine Arts of Lyons and director of museums in Lyons.

"Monsieur le professeur Rosenthal is one of the outstanding figures in artistic and intellectual circles in France," states Professor Fougeray. "He is not only an author whose works were crowned by l'Academie Française or by l'Academie des Sciences, morales et politiques, a great scholar and a recognized authority on the subjects which he treated in a masterly manner, but he is also a prominent professor."

"His pleasant personality," went on Mr. Fougeray, "his competency, his refinement, his wide experience as a teacher make him the happiest choice possible for the students of the Institute of French Education."

Poets Are Real, Or This Co-ed Is Deceiving Critics

Poets are real. Perhaps not all poets are real but Miss Genevieve Taggard, who was the visiting lecturer for the Institute of English Education this week is real, beyond a doubt.

So real, in fact, that she spent five years at the University of California before she marshalled enough credits (and maybe honor points) to graduate. And, of necessity, she was a co-ed. To further prove that she is real, Miss Taggard revealed that she was a member of the editorial staff of the student publication of her alma mater. She had a "hot of fun" running around in quest of news, she said.

Between lifelike giggles, Genevieve asked what the male students think of co-education. When she was at college, there was a sort of feud between the men and co-eds, she thought, but it was very jolly and used merely as capital stock for the humor magazine. She also remarked that, with so few girls to circulate among the men students in the winter session, the girls must have things pretty much their own way. But things are different in Summer Session, she admitted.

Yes, poets are real.

Dr. Pike Begins Series Of Talks Monday Night

Dr. Horace V. Pike, physician of the Danville State Hospital, will deliver the first of a series of five weekly lectures on abnormal psychology and mental hygiene in Schwab Auditorium at eight o'clock Monday night. The talks will continue on successive Monday nights until August sixth.

Saturday, August fourth, has been scheduled for a student visit to the State institution at which time all persons interested in the observation of the application of practical psychology can make the trip to Danville. Arrangements will be announced later. It is probable that Doctor Pike will deliver a sixth lecture there.

BACHELLER VISITS ENGLISH INSTITUTE

Will Discuss Historic Novel and Its Making at Sessions Here Next Week

DR. PAUL FLEMING PERFORMS FRIDAY

Pennsylvania Professor To Open Annual Artists' Course in Schwab Auditorium

NOTED MAGICIAN OFFERS SPIRIT DEMONSTRATIONS

While Wharton School students may find it hard to "spirit" even a flat zero from Dr. Paul Fleming, professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania during winter session the same Doctor Fleming, under the guise of a magician, will present spiritualistic demonstrations for the benefit of Summer Session students here next week. The performance, the first number of the Artists' Entertainment Course sponsored this summer by the Institute of Music Education, will be held in Schwab Auditorium Friday night, July thirteenth, at eight-fifteen o'clock.

Communicate With Spirits
Ever since the Fox sisters, two little girls, started the world fifty years ago with the announcement that they were able to communicate with the spirits of the dead, the interest of the public has been growing in the possibility of spirit messages, spirit materialization and other variations of communication with the "other world."

Mr. Fleming does not claim the presence of supernatural power in the phenomena which he offers as results obtained by the spirit mediums. He admits frankly that his feats are accomplished by purely natural means.

His "Spirit Slate Writing," his "Spirit Materialization," and other of his feats are the same in appearance as those which have won the attention of the American Society for (Continued on last page)

SUMMER SESSION EXCURSIONISTS TO SEE PENN'S CAVE

Will Leave Schwab Auditorium Tomorrow Afternoon at One-Thirty O'clock

THOUSANDS OF TOURISTS VISIT RESORT EACH YEAR

Trip Includes Forty-Minute Ride in Motor Boat Through Famous Cavern

Famous for its natural beauty, Penn's Cave, a large subterranean cavern formed by the solution of limestone rock with underground waters, will be the scene of the College's first week-end excursion tomorrow afternoon. The cave, located in Penn's Valley, about eighteen miles from State College, is visited by thousands of tourists each summer.

Persons interested in the trip may secure transportation tickets at the Summer Session office, Room 111, Old Main building, today until noon for seventy-five cents. The excursionists will leave from in front of Schwab Auditorium at one-thirty o'clock tomorrow afternoon. An admission fee of seventy-five cents is payable at the entrance to the cave.

Natural Beauty
In natural beauty, Penn's Cave is said to excel many of the more famous American caves. The diversified and freakish forms formed by the stalagmites and stalactites are commented upon by the many visitors to the cave. Tourists report that no matter how often this trip is repeated, it never loses any of its grandeur or interest.

The trip through the cave is made by motor boat and takes about forty minutes. The cave itself is about twelve hundred feet long and at the exit a tunnel was opened about a year ago into an outdoor lake. After a ride on the lake for a quarter of a mile, the boat returns through the cave to the entrance. The excursionists will return to State College about five o'clock.

Fraternities or other groups who wish to arrange for special trips to Penn's Cave or other points of interest may arrange with Director W. R. White at the Summer Session office.

CAPT. EDWARD STEIDLE ASSUMES NEW DUTIES

Succeeds Prof. E. A. Holbrook as Dean of School of Mines and Metallurgy

Captain Edward Steidle, who was recently chosen dean of the School of Mines and Metallurgy, assumed his new duties this week. He succeeds Dean E. A. Holbrook who last September went to the University of Pittsburgh.

For the past nine years Dean Steidle has been head of mining at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and while there organized co-operative research between the institute, the United States Bureau of Mines and the mining and metallurgical industries of Western Pennsylvania.

The new dean was graduated from Penn State in the class of 1911, has had a wealth of experience in the biggest mining centers of the country, and won high distinction for service in the World War.

As the second weekly speaker for the Vocational Teacher Training conference, the College has secured Mr. Francis Wing, deputy superintendent in charge of vocational education at Buffalo, New York.

Mr. Wing will give an illustrated talk on "Practical Arts and Vocational Training in Buffalo, New York" in Old Chapel, Main building, Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

Doctor Bagnell Stresses Personality in Talk Here

"The world has always been dominated by, and always will be dominated by, personality," declared Dr. Robert Bagnell, pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal church of Harrisburg in opening the weekly vesper and song service series in Schwab Auditorium Sunday night.

In leading up to his keynote the Reverend Bagnell told of how common it is for public speakers and lecturers of modern times to emphasize the fact that the present is a new era—a great new age of invention and speed—to such an extent that such talks have become trite and have lost their appeal to the masses of humanity.

"Money will not dominate America," the minister further declared. "Even the League of Nations, which would have been inconceivable to persons of twenty years ago, can not dominate humanity or the world. Nor

College Holds Annual Reception Here Tonight

Captured Austrian Cannon Celebrates Independence Day

To arms! Aux armes Citoyens! The R. O. T. C. must report to the drill field at once. The large cannon in front of the Armory, a captured 210 Austrian howitzer, has once more resumed hostilities, and on July Fourth roared with declaration of independence.

A few weeks ago someone speckled the icicle with red paint so that now it has a genuine camouflage. On the "Fourth" a group of figures were seen working energetically around the piece and there appeared to be war in the air. However, only a group of boys were celebrating by shooting firecrackers in the end of the cannon.

DR. F. L. PATTEE WRITES NEW BOOK

New York Publishers Release "Readings in American Short Story"

VOLUME BEGINS WITH IRVING'S "SKETCH BOOK"

A new book "Century Readings in the American Short Story" by Prof. Fred Lewis Pattee, head of the American literature department, was published recently by the Century company of New York city.

In the preface of the volume Professor Pattee states that the purpose of the volume is "to illustrate the development of the American short story from its beginnings in 'The Sketch Book' to its present-day form a century later, to make evident the fact that it has been a growth from peculiarly American conditions, and that, though it has been subject from decade to decade to the conditions and literary fashions of the times, it has, in the mold of American life, gradually evolved into a distinct genre."

The Penn State author has divided the book into four parts, based upon the origin and development of the short story. A section at the end of the book has been devoted to notes relative to each of the representative stories included.

The first section treats of the early short story from 1810 to 1865, the second includes stories representative of the development in the middle period from 1865 to 1890, the ten years from 1890 to 1900 is discussed in one way, while the editor presents representative contemporary writers from (Continued on last page)

VOCATIONAL EDUCATOR SPEAKS HERE TUESDAY

As the second weekly speaker for the Vocational Teacher Training conference, the College has secured Mr. Francis Wing, deputy superintendent in charge of vocational education at Buffalo, New York.

Mr. Wing will give an illustrated talk on "Practical Arts and Vocational Training in Buffalo, New York" in Old Chapel, Main building, Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

Following the war, the new Penn State instructor was active in automobile engine development in Germany, France and Italy. From 1920 until 1923, inclusive, he was an engineering instructor in Budapest, and held a similar position at the University of Minnesota during the last school term.

De Juhasz will assist Prof. Paul H. Schweitzer and substitute for him during the latter's absence beginning next fall. Professor Schweitzer will make an extensive study during the next year in Germany.

HARVARD GEOLOGIST TO DELIVER TWO LECTURES

Prof. John R. Mosley, of the department of geology, Harvard university, will deliver two educational lectures here next week.

"Earthquakes" is the topic he has selected for his lecture Wednesday night in Schwab Auditorium at eight o'clock. Thursday night he will give an illustrated lecture on "The Educational Film" in Schwab Auditorium at eight o'clock.

Notables Will Greet Summer Faculty and Students

WELCOME IN ARMORY, TO BEGIN AT EIGHT O'CLOCK

Chairman Makes Arrangements For Dance From Nine Until Twelve

The traditional good-will spirit of Penn State will dominate the campus tonight on the occasion of the annual reception for Summer Session students and faculty members.

A program of events conducted solely for the purpose of acquainting Summer Session students with faculty members has been arranged by Prof. M. M. Walter, assistant chairman of the reception committee.

General Invitation
Because of the short session, Mr. Walter is especially anxious that students attend the reception tonight in order to meet the College officials, as well as to make student acquaintances and to continue the good fellowship that is evident during the regular term. On behalf of the Summer Session directors Professor Walter publicly extends a cordial invitation to the students and faculty for tonight's get-together.

A receiving line of College notables will greet students and faculty in front of the Armory beginning at eight o'clock. Those who are expected to be in the receiving line are President and Mrs. Ralph D. Hetzel, Dean and Mrs. Will Grant Chambers, Dean and Mrs. Charles W. Stoddart, Dean and Mrs. Ralph L. Watts, Dean of Men and Mrs. Arthur R. Warnock, Dean and Mrs. Gerald I. Wendt and Dean of Women Charlotte E. Ray.

Dance in Armory
Following the outdoor reception from eight until nine o'clock, there will be a dance in the Armory. A local orchestra will supply music for the dancers from nine until twelve o'clock.

Refreshments will be served at the reception and an ensue of the reception will be held in the Armory. No admission fee will be charged for the reception or dance.

TRUSTEES APPOINT NEW ENGINEERING INSTRUCTOR

K. J. De Juhasz, Widely Known as Inventor, To Experiment With Diesel Engine

K. J. De Juhasz, widely known as the inventor of a high speed indicator used for testing automobile engines, was appointed recently to the Engineering Experiment Station of the College to carry out research in connection with Diesel engine development.

Mr. De Juhasz is a native of Hungary and a graduate of the Technical university of Budapest. At the outbreak of the war he was in England studying and was interned by the British until the close of the war in 1918.

Invents Engine Indicator
During this period of confinement he invented his engine indicator for studying the performance of high speed reciprocating engines such as automobile and aero engines. This instrument is now widely used in laboratories and automotive plants all over the world.

Following the war, the new Penn State instructor was active in automobile engine development in Germany, France and Italy. From 1920 until 1923, inclusive, he was an engineering instructor in Budapest, and held a similar position at the University of Minnesota during the last school term.

De Juhasz will assist Prof. Paul H. Schweitzer and substitute for him during the latter's absence beginning next fall. Professor Schweitzer will make an extensive study during the next year in Germany.

HARVARD GEOLOGIST TO DELIVER TWO LECTURES

Prof. John R. Mosley, of the department of geology, Harvard university, will deliver two educational lectures here next week.

"Earthquakes" is the topic he has selected for his lecture Wednesday night in Schwab Auditorium at eight o'clock. Thursday night he will give an illustrated lecture on "The Educational Film" in Schwab Auditorium at eight o'clock.
