National Grange Gives Support to Bond Issue

The Grange is strongly supporting the first two bond issues and as vigorously opposing the last three, and will enter upon an extensive campaign to line up the 90,000 members of the Keystone State behind the above program of support and opposition. The basis on which the distinction between the several bond issues is drawn is significant in its interpretation of the Grange contention on bond issues, which have been universally opposed by the organization except in cases where it is clear that the benefits would far outweigh one generation when the latter condition prevails. The Grange takes the ground that a bond issue is permissible, but that it is never so when the improvement sought will not outlast the generation which imposes the burden upon the next one.

Mr. Brown was graduated from Ohio Northern University in 1904 with a bachelor of literature degree and in 1905 he earned his master's degree from Harvard University. He was instructor and professor of rhetoric and composition at Wabash College and a member of the committee of authors, Science and Learning in Finance.

He lectures and contributes on educational and literary topics. He was a speaker on Finance-American relations during the World War and a member of the Summer Session faculty of Harvard University Clubs and societies of which he is a member are: Modern Language Association of America, American Dialect Society, Association of Phonographic International, director of the National Council Teachers of English and Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity.

COLLEGE FACULTY ARRANGES DINNER

Plans Varied Entertainment for Instructors at Country Club Tomorrow

For the purpose of becoming better acquainted, members of the Summer Session faculty and their wives will meet for a dinner and short entertainment program in the Centre Hills country club at six-thirty o'clock tomorrow evening.

Following the dinner which is scheduled for promptly at six-thirty o'clock, the Penn State Summer Session instructors will be entertained by three prominent members of the faculty and by the Institute of Music.

Walter H. Klar, who is director of art in the Springfield, Mass. schools, will deliver a talk on the subject of art, and in addition, will make a few sketches and present examples of modern art and handwork. He is widely known as an artist. He has held positions on the faculties of both the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the University of Pittsburgh.

Prof. John H. Frizzell, of the English department, will deliver a series of readings and dialogues for the entertainment of the group, while it is hoped to obtain another member of the faculty to present an entertainment feature.

Music will be provided by the Institute of Music under the direction of Richard W. Giant who is preparing a number of musical selections and songs. It is probable that a member of the faculty will also provide a song feature.

In presenting his course to Institute members here, Mr. Brown will treat the general theme as follows: "How the French Deal with the Problem of Composition," "The French Foundation for an Effective Language Tradition," "The Principles of Composition That Seem Useful when one Turns from Teaching and Becomes a Professional Writer," "The Earliest Australian Writers" and "The Newest Australian Writers."

ARKANSAS DIRECTOR OFFERS INSTRUCTION

Doctor Dawson Presents Course in Rural School Finance Here This Week

Continuing the curriculum in rural education which was inaugurated by Miss Mabel Caney, of Columbia University, during the first week of the Summer Session, Dr. Howard A. Dawson, director of educational research of the Arkansas State Department of Education, provided instruction in rural school finance this week as the second part of the six-weeks program.

Next week Mrs. Katherine M. Cook, chief of the division of rural education which is a part of the Federal Bureau of Education at Washington, D. C., will continue the series with a course entitled "Administrative Organization and Practice in the United States." Through the office which she holds Mrs. Cook has been enabled to observe rural education in local communities and in the United States as a whole.

Aim of Course
The aim of Mrs. Cook's course is to give rural school administrators, supervisors, and teachers a general working knowledge of the types of organization for administering rural schools in the United States as well as a basis for evaluating these organizations and resulting practice, in the light of administrative principles as evolved in the course.

In addition, the course is intended to provide an opportunity to study and discuss specific administrative problems growing out of the general survey of organization and practice, or their own experience, and to foster an appreciation of the importance of scientific attack on administrative problems.

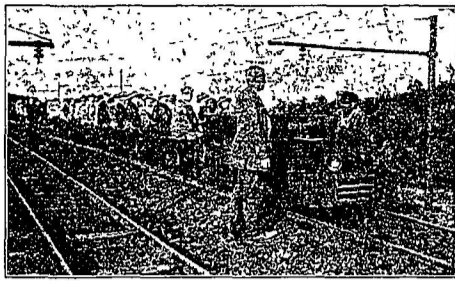

Remaining Lecturers
Remaining lecturers for the last three weeks of the Summer Session in the sequence in which they will appear are Miss Helen Hay Heyl, assistant in rural education of the New York State Department of Education, John H. Fooks, director of the reference and service division of the Louisiana State Department of Education, and William McKinley Robinson of the Western State Teachers College at Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Miss Caney, who gave a course during the first week, has served as a teacher and supervisor in rural schools, as a director of rural education in a western normal school, and since 1917 as associate professor of rural education in Teachers College of Columbia University.
