

FAMOUS QUARTET OFFERS CONCERT PROGRAM TONIGHT

Philadelphia Songsters Give Public Recital in Auditorium at Eight-fifteen O'clock

PRESS CRITICS PRAISE ENSEMBLE TECHNIQUE

Noted Group To Present Eleven Numbers Accompanied By Pianist

Reputedly unequalled in ensemble music, the Philadelphia Mixed Quartet, composed of four singing artists and a pianist, will present its concert program in Schwab auditorium tonight at eight-fifteen o'clock as the second number of the Artists' and Entertainment Course sponsored by the Institute of Music Education during the Summer Session.

The personnel of the organization remains the same as in the past seven years and, according to metropolitan critics, its finesse, and the nuances upon which its reputation has been so securely built, are, as a consequence, unimpaired. Two women, Miss Helen Buchanan Hittner, soprano, and Miss Marie Stone-Langston, contralto, and three men, Mr. Bernard Poland, tenor, Mr. Helfenstein Mason, basso, and Mr. William Silvano Thundel, pianist, comprise the talented group.

Lauded by Press

Each member of the organization has been lauded in glowing terms by music critics of the many cities in which the Quartet has presented its program. The Portland, Maine, Evening Telegraph, commenting on Miss Hittner, soprano, said: "Her lovely voice, her charming personality and her unusual interpretive power captivated her audience."

Summer Session Band Plays Thursday Night

Announcement was made yesterday that the Summer Session Band will offer a public concert in the Open Air theatre Thursday night from seven until seven forty-five o'clock. The group is under the direction of Miss Mondel Ely Butterfield and is sponsored by the Institute of Music.

Although the program for the evening has not been definitely arranged, a tentative list includes "The American Patrol," a number made famous by Sousa's band and "Atlantic," a selection of bits from famous operas and several of the better known marches.

It is probable that the Kappa Gamma Psi trumpet quartet will also be a feature of the evening. The latter organization was formed last winter and is under the direction of Miss William Blerly.

Noted Biographer

Mr. A. W. Vernon

BIOGRAPHER VISITS ENGLISH INSTITUTE

Prof. A. W. Vernon, of Dartmouth, To Discuss Biographical Literature Here

WILL GIVE PUBLIC TALK IN SCHWAB AUDITORIUM

Mr. A. W. Vernon, author, lecturer and professor of biography at Dartmouth college, will present "The New Biography in America" for English Institute students here from Monday until Friday inclusive. Mr. Vernon is the fourth prominent literature to visit the English Institute. He will be followed by Mr. Lewis Biowne and Mr. John G. Nehardt.

Lectures - Wednesday

As part of his lecture program, Mr. Vernon will give a public address on "The Contribution of Biography to Religion" in Schwab auditorium Wednesday night at seven o'clock. Mr. Vernon studied and travelled extensively in Europe as a young man, was for some years an active clergyman, taught in the divinity school at Yale university and held the chair of biography at Carroll college before going to his present position at Dartmouth.

Famous Author

Before Mr. Vernon turned his attention to the relation of outstanding Americans to the times in which they lived, his publisher Religious Values of the Old Testament in 1907 and Turning Points in Church History in 1917. He was co-author of The Cambridge History of American Literature.

During the course of his lectures to members of the Institute, Mr. Vernon will cover the work under the general headings, "Salvaging the Individual," "Recent American Autobiographies and Reminiscences," "Recent American Letters," "The Epistle and the Idyll" and "Analytic Type of Biography."

Princeton Graduate

Mr. Vernon was graduated from Princeton university with his bachelor of arts degree in 1891 and from the Union Theological Seminary, New York, in 1891, after which he studied at the Universities of Berlin, Halle and Göttingen from 1891 until 1896. In 1907 Yale university conferred a master's degree upon him and the same year he was honored with a Doctor of Divinity degree from Dartmouth college.

French Institute Group Will Enact Celebrated Play

Just to show L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle (which might be translated, "English as she is spoke") in the manner its author, Tristan Bernard, intended that it should be portrayed will be the task of a group of French Institute members when they present the celebrated play in the basement of Varsity Hall tonight at seven o'clock.

This drama is the first of a series which will be presented throughout the duration of the Institute, under the direction of Prof. Paul R. Blanchet, of the Romance Language department and secretary of the Institute this summer. M. Binchelet, as well as coaching the play, is taking the leading part. He states that all persons interested in French and who have a speaking knowledge of the language are welcome to attend tonight's performance.

Bernard's widely-heralded play was presented here several years ago by the Penn State Players. It treats of a young couple—one French and the other American—who, eloping from London, are chased all over Europe by the native parent.

SUMMER SESSION EXCURSIONISTS TO SEE BATTLEFIELD

Will Inspect Historic Gettysburg Grounds Tomorrow With Licensed Guides

DIRECTOR WHITE PLANS ROUTE OF ENTOURAGE

Leave From in Front of Schwab Auditorium at Six O'clock For Week-end Trip

Summer Session excursionists will inspect the historic Gettysburg Battlefield tomorrow on the weekly trip sponsored by the College. The entourage will leave from in front of Schwab auditorium at six o'clock tomorrow morning.

The route of the trip will lead through Spruce Creek, Huntingdon, McConnellsburg and Chambersburg to Gettysburg and will return through Harrisburg and Lewisport, arriving in State College between nine and ten o'clock.

Picture-que Scenery

According to tourists, the route follows streams that cut through mountains forming gaps that are very picturesque and which gives a panoramic view of mountains, hills, valleys, forests and streams. At the battlefield, a licensed guide will accompany each group to explain the historic significance of famous points and to answer questions for the excursionists.

Inspection of the grounds will take about two hours and includes a ride of twenty-two miles. Tickets for the excursion may be procured at the Summer Session office, Old Main building, until noon today for six dollars. The assessment is exclusive of meals, which may be taken along or bought on the way. Stops will be made in Gettysburg for lunch and in Harrisburg for dinner.

Sketch of New Physical Education Building

COLLEGE ERECTS NEW BUILDINGS

School Teachers Behave--'No News'

"News?" "No. Everything is peaceful at present. All the school teachers are behaving themselves, so there is no news for the Collegian today," quipped Arthur R. Wainock, dean of men, in an interview Tuesday afternoon.

"Have anything for the Collegian?" he asked the wide-hatted Andy Zarger, campus policeman, who was standing nearby.

"Naw," was the answer. "The first few days these women gave us lots of trouble—but they are fairly well broken in now, so I guess I have no news either. But you never can tell what school marm's may start." (Chuckle)

Work on Gymnasium And Infirmary Progresses

With the contract calling for completion before September 1st, the new Physical Education Building, located west of Varsity Hall, is rapidly taking form and it is hoped to have the structure ready for occupancy in the time required.

At present the massive steel framework has all been erected, the brick and stone walls are climbing higher day by day, and work on the interior is being carried on as swiftly as possible.

Trustees To Meet

The Board of Trustees and other officials of the College will convene for a business meeting next Friday, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mr. Raymond H. Smith, comptroller. At that time bids will be considered for the construction of other units of the building program.

Plans for the Grange Memorial Dormitory, the Engineering unit, a Botany Building, an addition to the Pond Laboratory and new campus gateways are being prepared by the College architects. In addition it is planned to remodel Old Main in the near future.

The gymnasium will be of rose brick and limestone trim, in harmony with the men's dormitories nearby, and will embody all modern interior innovations. Only the central unit is being erected at this time, but when the necessary funds are available two wings will be added. The structure will be flat-roof throughout.

Seating Capacity

From the concourse floor level of the new athletic center, there will rise on three sides of the building a sloping bank of concrete seats having a capacity of three thousand, two hundred. Arrangements are made to extend the permanent seating to the main floor by the use of portable bleachers, thus converting the structure into a gymnasium.

Colonel McCaskey Assumes Command

Succeeds Col. Clenard McLaughlin As Director of Penn State Military Department

Colonel Walter B. McCaskey, a former student of the College and captain of the football team during the season of 1895, will assume his duties as professor of military science and head of the Penn State military department some time this month. Colonel Clenard McLaughlin, commandant of the R O T C unit during the past four years, was recently transferred to the forty-third division of the National Guard.

Former Graduate

The new commandant entered Penn State after attending the Millersville State Normal school. Upon his graduation from the course in electrical engineering he entered the employ of

Stage Devotees Uncover Talent

Recognizing the need for better facilities for the instruction of Summer Session students taking the course in stagecraft, given by Prof. Arthur C. Cloetingh of the English literature department and dramatic coach, the College has allotted a laboratory on the second floor of Engineering B to the class this summer.

Previous to this year the work has been hampered because of a lack of space in which to carry on the course. In this workshop the large class is constructing stage settings in miniature which probably will be exhibited later this summer. The scenes represent many varieties of rooms.

COLLEGE TO SHOW EDUCATIONAL FILM

Offers Nine Reels in Auditorium Next Thursday Night at Eight O'clock

Nine reels of educational and humorous films will be shown in the Schwab auditorium Thursday night at eight o'clock under the auspices of the Summer Session, announces James T. Shiner, who is in charge of the program. Admission will be free.

Although the show is intended primarily as an educational feature, there will be a strain of humor running throughout the entire nine reels, which display a wide variety of subjects.

Screen Popular Stories

A series of three reels depicting something of the life and works of these famous American writers is outstanding in the proposed program. The authors are Washington Irving, Mark Twain and Edgar Allan Poe. Representative works of each will be displayed on the Auditorium screen.

The evening's entertainment will be initiated with a film entitled "Revelations," the General Electric offering which shows the development, function and use of the new cathode tube, with the emphasis being placed upon the use of the invention in X-ray work.

"The Life of Thomas A. Edison" will follow, as well as a film showing the history and ways of using sulfur. It is believed that "The Big Little Fellow," a laughable presentation will make a hit with the audience.

COMMITTEE PLANS BOND ISSUE DRIVE FOR STUDENT AID

College Officials Will Distribute Booklets Containing Main Points of Project

PRESIDENT HETZEL MAY EXPLAIN FACTS IN TALK

Public Information Department To Diffuse Data Through State Newspapers

Hoping to enlist all summer school students as workers in the intensive campaign which is being carried on in order to secure a favorable vote at the polls next November for the proposed $8,000,000 Bond Issue for new Penn State buildings and equipment, College officials will call a mass meeting within the next few days so that President Ralph D. Hetzel may explain the facts concerning the necessary amendment.

At that time a small booklet which is being prepared for general distribution throughout the State, as well as a pamphlet entitled, "A Workers' Handbook for the Pennsylvania State College $8,000,000 Bond Issue," will be given to each Summer Session student. Arthur R. Wainock, dean of men, is taking charge of this work.

Purpose of Distribution

The purpose of distributing these booklets is to give each student a general working knowledge of the facts pertaining to the Bond Issue and the successful amendment of the State Constitution which must be done in order that Penn State may receive the $8,000,000 for new buildings and equipment.

Through the department of public information, the College will carry on an extensive general publicity campaign in newspapers throughout the State, in order to disseminate Bond Issue facts, later this summer and during the fall months. At that time, when the voters will be desiring further facts relating to the project, it will be the duty of every friend of Penn State to offer such information, and the booklet, which explains the issue from every angle, will enable every worker to present the general facts accurately and fully.

Contents of Booklet

Forty-five questions and answers are enumerated in the Handbook as well as a number of vital talking points to show why Penn State is so deserving of financial help.

The first five questions pertain to the definition of a bond issue, how the State Constitution is amended in order to allow for it, and the history of Penn State's particular Bond Issue. This act was passed by the Pennsylvania legislature in 1925 and again in 1925, but an opinion of the Supreme Court that the Constitution can be amended only once in five years prevented this amendment from being submitted to the voters in 1925, and (Continued on last page)

"No Conflict Between Science And Religion," Says Dr. Kistler

"The supposed conflict between science and religion is a myth," declared the Reverend Raymon Kistler, of the Central Presbyterian church, Rochester, New York, in his sixth address before a Penn State audience at the Sunday Vesper Service in the Open Air theatre.

"Science," he said, "is but the striving to find the will of God and the laws of God as bound up in the universe and should have the consecrated assistance of all Christians"

Cites Evolution Citing evolution as the most striking example of the supposed conflict, Dr. Kistler stated that it was impossible to escape the obvious facts of evolution and development. William J. Bryan, with his insistence that a person should not believe the doctrine of evolution and be a Christian, did more to undermine the faith of the college students of our generation than any atheist, continued the Rochester minister.

"Those who are emphasizing this supposed conflict between science and religion," he said "focus their attention on the first chapter of Genesis with its story of the origin of man and the world."

"They tell us that the Bible says that God created all things from nothing in the space of six days. Science gives us the theory of evolution teaching a gradual growth through thousands of years. And yet we are reminded in the Bible itself that with God a day is as a thousand years and the days of the creation story are undoubtedly to be considered successive periods of development."

In commenting on the Bible, Reverend Kistler said that the Book of God is intended to be a guide for life and not a compendium of all information, that God was not limited in His inspiration to one form of literature but brings His divine message through masterpieces of the various forms, each with its own appeal and that while the inspired truths of the Bible are presented for all time, they were recorded in the language of that day.

"Tell your children when they go to school," he concluded, "to delve deeply into the teachings of science and at the same time to study prayerfully the teachings of God's word and thus help advance the day when the two great forces of science and religion, each in its own sphere, will lead the world into a new happiness."
