

Mining Dean Makes Survey Of Pennsylvania Industries

The state of Pennsylvania, on account of its rich mineral resources, would be more able to maintain a position of "splendid isolation" than any other state in the union or most foreign countries, if she was so disposed, said Captain Edward Steidle, dean of the School of Mines and Metallurgy, in discussing the relative ranking of the State in the mining, metallurgical, oil and gas production, and ceramic industries.

Manufacture of metal products, and in ceramic products, Pennsylvania is far in the lead of her sister states.

"In the ceramic industry alone, Pennsylvania embraces more than one-fourth of the activity in this clay products industry in the United States; and yet the industry in this state, as great as it is, is scarcely comparable to the mining and metallurgical activities."

Dean Steidle also pointed out that in Pennsylvania there is the biggest metallurgical center in the world, the city of Pittsburgh, the biggest anthracite coal field in the world, the most accessible bituminous coal field in the United States, and the best lubricating oil is produced in this state. All of these industries provide the state with its largest annual revenue.

As regards the position of the School of Mines and Metallurgy in relation to these industries, Dean Steidle declared that the school specifically represents and must faithfully serve them. The industry is largely dependent upon the college for its supply of technically trained graduates, and Penn State must continue to meet this demand. The services of the school also are in demand when new problems in the industries arise.

Educators Meet Here For Annual Conclave

Dr. William McAndrew, editor of the Educational Review, will address the assemblage that afternoon on the subject of "Teaching the Learning that Lasts" Thursday evening Mr. McAndrew will fill the position of Commencement speaker.

In addition, on Thursday afternoon, Dr. Walter S. Momoe, director of educational research at the University of Illinois, will discuss the striking topic, "How We Think Children Learn." The relation of the State Educational Association to Educational Theory and Practice in Pennsylvania will be explained by Joseph P. Noonan, president of the State Educational Association.

Friday morning the second session will open in the Open Air theatre at nine o'clock with Mr. A. D. Thomas, superintendent of Harleton schools, presiding. Dr. McAndrew will make his second address, this time on the subject of "Details of a Case in Supervising Arithmetic."

"Character Building in Early Education," which will be discussed by Dr. Helen Purcell, State director of Elementary and Kindergarten education, and a talk entitled "The Meaning of our Objectives" by Dr. Walter S. Momoe will complete the morning's program.

Picnic Session

The conference will take the form of a picnic Friday afternoon when the visitors travel to the Centre Hills country club for a session. During this meeting Dr. William R. Straughan, principal of Mansfield State Teachers college will preside. There will be a picnic from four until eight o'clock.

Talks listed for this session are "What the Researchers Are Telling Us," by Dr. McAndrew, "The Teacher's Task," by Dr. Walter S. Momoe and "The Principle of Self Activity in Learning," by C. E. Hoban, director of visual education of the State Department of Public Instruction.

A Saturday morning session in the Open Air theatre at nine o'clock will conclude the three-day conclave. During the last session Dr. James H. Kelley, executive secretary of Pennsylvania State Education Association, will preside.

Dr. Andrew and Dr. Monroe will each make concluding addresses. Dr. Monroe will discuss "The Place of the Project Method" while the noted editor will explain "How Others than Schoolmasters Supervise."

MICHIGAN EDUCATOR TO LECTURE HERE

W. M. Robinson, Rural Director of Kalamazoo Teachers College, Will Explain Surveys

William McKinley Robinson, of the Western State Teachers college at Kalamazoo, Michigan, will bring the special curriculum in rural education to a close next week with a course entitled, "Educational Surveys in Rural Communities."

Mr. Robinson's course will consist of a study of important educational surveys, the organization and conducting of district and community surveys for determining educational needs and progress, and the analysis of data and interpretation of results for school and community purposes.

Taught in Rural School

The visiting instructor has had a contact with practically every phase of rural education. He started educational work as teacher in a one-teacher school, later filled a number of principalships, and a few years ago organized and taught the "Model Rural School."

He has filled the positions of state inspector of consolidated schools in Iowa, specialist in rural education of the Bureau of Education at Washington, D. C., and instructor at George Washington university. At present he is head of the rural education department of the Kalamazoo State Teachers college.

The remaining five eminent specialists who previously have given a lecture in rural education here during the present Summer Session are Miss Mabel Carey, of Columbia university, Dr. Howard A. Dawson, of Arkansas, Mrs. Katherine M. Cook, of Washington, D. C., Miss Helen Hays Heyl, of Albany, N. Y., and Mr. John M. Foote, of Baton Rouge, La.

Literary Editor Will Give Public Lecture

The visiting author has also published a book of one-act plays entitled Two Mothers. Other of his works include The Divine Enchantment, The Lonesome Trail, A Bundle of Myrrh, Man-Song, The River and I, The Dawn-Birdie, The Stranger at the Gate, Death of Agrippina and Life's Love.

Mr. Nehardt was born in Illinois, later going to Nebraska, where he taught school for a while. For six years he lived among the Omaha Indians in order to study their ways of life. In 1921 he was appointed honorary professor of poetry at the University of Nebraska. He now lives

College Sponsors Trip To Danville Hospital

Throughout the series of lectures marked emphasis has been placed upon the importance of the early recognition of mental disorders and mental defects, the various ways in which these conditions manifest themselves, the factors that may be employed for their prevention and cure and the excursion to the hospital comes as a practical conclusion of the didactic teaching.

The Danville State hospital was the second institution of its kind established in the State, and at the present time from the standpoint of population, is the second in size, having under treatment more than seven hundred patients. It was the first State hospital in Pennsylvania to establish a training school for nurses and its educational and clinical program is recognized as the most extensive and systematic in the United States and probably in the world.

Doctor Pike, with the assistance of the medical staff of the hospital, will present a series of twenty-five or thirty patients demonstrating in a most practical way the various types of mental disease, their symptoms and causes. At the conclusion of this especially arranged clinic there will be a complete inspection of the hospital wards which will include the reception wards, where the newest scientific methods of treatment will be demonstrated and the occupational and industrial shops, where patients will be seen at work directed toward their rehabilitation, will be visited.

Buses will leave for Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Wilkes-Barre and Scranton at eight o'clock Saturday morning, August 11. For tickets see W. R. White, or call at the Summer Session Office not later than Wednesday noon, August 8. The ticket prices are as follows: Pittsburgh, $5.00; Harrisburg, $1.00; Philadelphia, $7.50; Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, $5.00.

Lewis Browne Tells Of Religious Beliefs

Primitive Spirit

Mr. Browne then spoke of life and living conditions in what he termed the "middle class" of America. A great deal of his information on this subject was obtained while "bumming" throughout the United States in a box car in his youth.

Typical Family

He told of the every day life of a typical American middle class family, how every week day is the same, a drudge from beginning to end. "But then Sunday comes," he continued, "and then everything is different. They get up later, they put on their Sunday best, and go to church."

By humorous examples he forcibly brought home to his audience the fact of the vastness of space and the insignificance of the earth and a human being in it. From this he made the point that every man is a potential believer.

"We are controlled by the will to live which makes us believe, if not in God, then in ourselves," he asserted.

NITTANY ATHLETES LABOR IN LION LAIR DURING SUMMER

Nittany athletes love Penn State! Near the scene of their gridiron, mat and boating triumphs no less than seven Lion sport idols are spending the summer, all of them engaged in manual labor of a varied nature, in order to provide their daily bread and shelter. The new Gym is making the biggest bid for the services of the muscular Nittanyites but the State Highway department and the College repairing force follow a close second.

Anyone wandering around the sports edifice now in process of erection near Varsity Hall might see them diligently at work, or perhaps, as usual has it, enjoying a little peaceful rest while the boys is elsewhere. There, laborer Ted Wilson, wrestler, who sailed forth to the last intercollegiate as a substitute and returned as a 125-pound champion. For which little act of valor he has been awarded the captaincy for the coming year.

Then there is Rog Mahoney, hulk of the Berdek gridiron aggregation who held down the position of center for many a fierce struggle. An immutable boxer and wrestler as well as strenuous laborer also holds down a job Mousa Seilly, an Egyptian prince in disguise and unparalleled soccer player, as well as his teammate, Bill Lutz, complete the list who are reported to work on the Recreation Center.

A 4-letter man has been helping to repair the campus highways. That burly man's sobriquet is Steve Hammar. Last year he performed the feat of winning his "S" in football, boxing, baseball and track.

Johnny Roepke, erstwhile honored gridiron captain and a basket tosser of no mean ability, with the aid of his friend Eddie Baron is scraping oil loose paint and otherwise cleaning various campus buildings.

And they do it all for love!

Gifts of distinction for everyone, combining quality, beauty and usefulness at the Old Main Art Shop, opposite Front Campus.
