State Societies Pledge Support To Bond Issue

(Continued from first page) the general prosperity, happiness and well-being of the people, and recognizing that public education is a principal factor in increasing productivity and raising standards of living, and

Whereas, the Pennsylvania State College through its resident instruction, research and state-wide extension service is responding to the public need for higher education throughout the State, and appreciating that the Pennsylvania State College is in great need of new buildings and equipment to replace outworn structures and to make material additions to its physical plant in order not only to continue its present program of service, but also to take care of increasing public demands, and— (the resolution follows):

As reason for endorsing Amendment No. 2, the district superintendents who held a conference in State College last month, voiced their dissatisfaction with the buildings and equipment, stressing the necessity for refusing admission to thousands of young men and women, qualified to pursue a higher education.

Resolutions adopted by various agricultural groups are culminated by that adopted by the State Council of Farm Organizations to the effect, That the Council endorse the Eight Million Dollar Bond Issue for State College and use its influence in every way possible to obtain a favorable vote upon it in this State at the November election of 1928.

Colonel McCaskey Tells Of Penn State Growth

(Continued from first page) Col. McCaskey remarked also on the remarkable growth of the town. "The present site of the University Club was out of town and the lot on which the Post Office now stands was the southern boundary of State College," he asserted.

Three buildings comprised the college property at that time, Old Main being the principal building on the campus. In it were the college offices, recitation rooms, the college book store and rooms in which the students lived. The Army, which was a new building at that time, was used for R. O. T. C. drill during the winter term. The only other building was the college experiment station.

Mrs. McCaskey, who is also a Penn State graduate, remarked particularly on the change which has taken place in the status of the freshman. "In my day," she averred, "the freshman was practically the equal of any upper classman." One advantage of the size of the school which Mrs. McCaskey recalled was that every student knew every other student and every professor was a personal acquaintance of every member of the student body.

Varsity Gridmen Rout Substitute Eleven, 34-7

Led by Evans and Wolff, the first string backfield functioned with a smoothness that insured certain misfortune for its opponents. Allie excelled with a fine exhibition of broken field running and tore off several gains for thirty-five yards or more, while the sorrell-topped sophomore was at his best in driving off-tackle or plowing through guard or center. Steve Hamas alternated with Evans in the tackle thrusts and contributed some long gains. Miller acted as a quarterback and displayed speed in open-field running.

Diedrich and Cooper French were the chipping lights for the second-string gridlers. The former gained most of the yardage for team B and exhibited unusual ability in bringing to earth opposing ball-carriers. French showed good field generalship and produced some fine punting.

Miller Opens Scoring

Diedrich kicked off to Joe Miller to start the game. Joe carried the ball to his opponents' thirty yard line and fumbled. He had traveled fifty yards and was on his way to a touchdown when the ball fell from his hands. Team B recovered but French was forced to kick after several attempts to gain failed. Then following a succession of end runs, off-tackle sweeps and line smashes that resulted in Miller's touchdown. The latter failed to kick goal.

Two minutes later the varsity scored two more points when Stahley tackled French in back of the latter's goal line. Coop kicked to Miller who was downed on his own forty-four yard line. The point score was increased to fourteen a moment later when, after a series of runs, Allie Wolff went over for the second touchdown.

Evans Tallies Three Times

During the next quarter Wolff circled right end for a thirty yard gain. It went for naught, however, Diedrich intercepted a pass and halted the first team's mad charge. Unable to gain, French kicked to Miller who was tackled in midfield. Hamas, Wolff and Evans then returned to their line-cracking and the latter tallied the third touchdown on a one-yard dive over center. Miller kicked goal to make the count 21-0. Evans' second tally was made a short time later when he again went through center after a long series of gains. Miller's kick for the extra point was blocked.

No further scoring was done until the fourth quarter when Frank Diedrich received a long pass from French and twisted and squirmed his way across the goal line. His kick for the extra point went between the uprights. Evans demonstrated his prowess again in the closing minutes of play when he smashed through for a touchdown after Skip Stahley had intercepted one of French's passes on the fifteen yard line.
