M. E. Professor Writes Review of Carbon Ice

Professor Wood asserts that contrary to popular belief, this product is not a direct competitor of water ice, but is creating a field of its own. He added further that the capacities of the present plants do not begin to supply the demand.

According to Professor Wood the substance has been known to chemists for nearly one hundred years, but its commercial application is very recent, practically within the last three years.

In a recent court proceeding, he states, Hatt J. B. Churchill, a former Penn State professor of chemistry, testified that he produced carbon dioxide snow in the laboratory here about twenty years ago and adapted it for use in a small refrigerator.

Business Men Endorse Bond Issue Amendment

(Continued from first page) Men All over the State there has sprung up a popular interest in the problem of the state college, while the pressure of this popular sentiment on business, industrial and political leaders has been unmistakable, he stated.

Speaking of the dangerous condition of many of the College buildings, Dean Wainock said, "Our Main Building, housing a very large part of the work of the College, has been condemned and cannot be used after next January. In fact, it has been condemned by the State Department of Labor and Industry for many years.

"As I sit in my office on the first floor of Old Main I often feel conscious of the fact that the roof and big tower may come crashing down any minute. And I am more anxious about the safety of the several hundred students who are in the building most of the day. Unless these worn-out and dangerous buildings are soon replaced we shall have to curtail our program and reduce the enrollment from its present size."

Plan To Complete New Pond Laboratory Unit

Even with the increased building the freshmen chemists will have to continue their laboratory work in the old chemistry building. The problem of where to put the first year students in chemistry is growing greater each year. This year one hundred students more than the number expected applied for admission to the Chemistry and Physics school.

"The hope for a solution lies several years ahead, when all students can take their analytical work in the completed G. G. Pond laboratory. How soon, of course, depends largely upon the outcome of the bond issue vote," declared Dean Wendt.

THOUSANDS of rugged Internationals are building roads in every state in the Union—and over the world.

Internationals are used not only by excavating and paving contractors, but by cities all over the country for street maintenance and public works. Chicago uses them. New York is using them in eighteen departments and boroughs. Quebec is using a fleet of Internationals. The Peruvian Government has 54 heavy-duty Internationals on the great Olmos Irrigation Project.

There are five sturdy Internationals for heavy hauling—two sizes with double-reduction drive for 2½ and 3½-ton loads, and three with chain drive for 2½, 3½ and 5-ton loads. Come in and see them.
