Many alumni interviewed had not beer on the College eampus since graduation. They evpressed their emazement that buildings are still in use that ten or twenty years ago, when they were students, were considered inadequate and unfit. Their satisfaction was evident when they viewed the Recication Hall, New College Infirmary, and the dormitories obtained through alumni gifts and State appropriations, but they expressed a desire that more such buildings, be provided j''Alumni and friends have contributed more than a million dollars to an emergency building fund," stated Mi, James Miholland, for mer president of the Alumni Association "They have made a valuable start towards a greater Penn State.
