Tartan Plebes Defeat Yearling Eleven, 33-6

Lavich, and Laatu were the anti-Penn State backs who were able to gain through the heavy Tartan line. Although Smith, the Lion right half, intercepted two of McCurdy's passes, one in the first period and the other in the second quarter, the Hermann-coached machine was unable to gain the required yardage for first downs and was forced to punt on both occasions.

The Nittany plebes displayed their fighting spirit in the last minute of play in the third period when the Carnegie gradmen were within one yard of Penn State's goal line. The Lions held for downs and on the first play Biehm punted out of danger.

Lights that Fill the Skies with Commerce

THE air map of America is now in the making—on the ground.

Ten years ago, there were 213 miles of air mail routes with two station stops; to-day, a network of sky roads bridges the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

Can you imagine this growth without electricity—without illuminated airports—without trunk lines studded with electric beacons?

Men of vision are building for increasing traffic of the air. Soon, the skies will be filled with commerce.

Just as electricity is helping to conquer the air, the land, and the sea to-day, so to-morrow it will lead to greater accomplishments in aviation and in every human activity.

A majority of the beacon lights used in airport and airway illumination have been designed and manufactured by the General Electric Company, whose specialists have the benefit of a generation's experience in the solution of lighting problems.
