SCHOOL OF MINES ADDS 30 ADVISERS

Officials Organize 3 Groups From Pennsylvania Bituminous and Anthracite Coal Regions.

Thirty prominent men in the coal mining industry from western, central and the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania have been appointed to form three mining advisory boards for the School of Mines and Metallurgy, according to an announcement by Edward Sterlic, dean of the School of Mines and Metallurgy.

Dean Warnock Claims Hell-Week Antiquated

(Continued from first page) in their meeting at the University of Missouri also arrived at the same decision. It was the consensus of opinion there that Hell-Week should be discouraged by all student bodies.

Objections to Hell-Week. "One of the principal objections to Hell-Week," the Dean stated, "is the fact that it draws an undesirable publicity to the extreme cases which are not typical of the fraternity and which do the fraternity no good."

He also claimed that such imitation is unnecessary in giving to the plebe the proper attitude toward his initiation experiences. He feels that it detracts from the serious and solemn side of the initiation ritual.

Penn State to Enter Intercollegiate Meet

According to the system, the nation is divided into seven regions with the colleges in the region competing among themselves. The regional finalists compete late in May to determine the one speaker from each region who is to have a place in the national finals.

Last Year's Winners. Leo F. Lybarger, Jr., of Bucknell University won the prize for this region last year and also placed fourth in the national finals. A University of Oklahoma student was the winner of the championship last year.

Players Will Produce 'Show Off' Saturday

Other character roles are played by Miss Myrtle H. Webb '22, and Miss Marie W. Kloss '20, in the parts of Amy Fisher and Clara Hilyard, respectively. Mrs. Fisher and Old Man Gill provide further study in the development of character.

Tickets for the production will go on sale tonight at Whitley Messer's. The time of the show has also been arranged so as to allow students to witness the basketball game beforehand.

Ring Aspirants Engage In Crucial Encounters

Koly Ready. Stan Kolasoski, aspirant to the intercollegiate 125-pound crown, is in fine fettle. The hard-working featherweight might step into the squared circle today against a tough foe and give a good account of himself. Koly trains harder than any other boxer on the squad, Coach Houck believes.

In the heavyweight divisions, Captain Albie Wolff is in the best of shape. He must lose ten pounds, however, before he will qualify for the 160-pound belt.

Matty McAndrews, Kaplan and Starble will get down to the training grind this week. The three heavyweights have no serious opposition to contend with but the order in which they will enter the roped arena will remain uncertain until the eve of the opening setto.

(Continued from first page) fourteen point margin over its opponents. Neither team was at its best during the first period. Passing and shooting on both sides were erratic and both repeatedly missed easy shots under the basket.

Sailors Assume Lead. Skip Stahley and Jack Mazess who substituted for Meyers were high scorers of the tilt with twelve and seven points respectively. Stahley scored ten of his total number of points while Mazess accounted three field goals and one foul shot in the second period. Penn State made good eleven out of seventeen foul tries while the Navy garnered nine points from fifteen attempts at penalty throws.

The Nittany passers scored twenty-seven points to their opponents' eleven in the second period. During the first three minutes of the contest there was no scoring on either side. Miller succeeded on a penalty toss to score the first point in the game. Penn State tied the score with a foul goal and Miller scored again, this time with a long toss from the court. Wilson retaliated by engaging a shot throw to send the tally into a deadlock once more. From then on until intermission the game was nip and tuck, the Navy, however, receiving a two-point margin as the half ended. Whitley Lord was the only Midshipman who seemed to be at his best.

Koch, Stahley, Mazess Star. Art Koch, Skip Stahley and Jack Mazess who supplanted Meyers after the latter had made a fluke pass to Miller which resulted in a Navy field goal, were the men who ship-wrecked the Middles in the second period of the play. The Sailors were unable to stop Mazess and Stahley and had an equal amount of trouble trying to prevent Koch from scoring. The skill of the Nittany guards was an important factor in the defeat of the Tais. Time after time the Navy was drawn into fouling and on almost every occasion the Lions made good the free shots.

Having established a comfortable lead Coach Heilmann's protégés resorted to "slow ball" tactics in the waning minutes of the fray. With Penn State in possession of the ball the Midshipmen were forced to come out into defensive formation and to leave openings for further Nittany minute time advantage.

Tiny Grammet, varsity letterman, won by a fall over Sam Fisher, junior finalist, to conclude the competition. All of the winners, with the exception of the lone freshman champion, will probably compose the varsity combination.
