GIVE LEGISLATORS TIES

Two hundred and fifty-eight neckties, designed and woven by the students of the Allentown Branch school of the engineering extension, have been distributed to the various members of State Legislature to illustrate the work which these textile students are doing.

QUESTIONS E. E. SENIORS

Charles R Beall, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Union Switch and Signal Company, was in State College this week interviewing seniors in the department of electrical engineering.

Lion Passers Oppose Syracuse Tomorrow

Jack Mazess, scintillating sophomore, carried away the scoring honors for both teams by engaging seven baskets for a total of four teen points as his contribution to the Nittany victory. Klosterman, sharp-shooting forward of the Bison contingent, was next in line with six field goals. Skipper Stahley, Lion left guard, and Seiler, lanky Bucknell pivot man, scored eleven points each. Stahley accounted for his tallies by five field tosses and one foul, while his opponent caged three double-deckers and six out of seven penalty throws. Hamas, Reilly and Reinhold accounted for seven, five and four points respectively.

Bisons Score First

Although the entire Nittany team showed up poorly during the first half and at the beginning of the final session, it assumed a far different character near the close of the game and became more like the smooth-working machine that had conquered the Bullet, the Tartan, the Macon, the Presidents, and the Green Terror. Skipper Stahley paved the way more than once for a Lion score while Steve Hamas played his best game of the season on the home court. Jack Mazess and Dick Reinhold performed in a creditable manner, the former especially, while Lou Reilly, although not at his best, maintained the fighting spirit of his teammates.

For several minutes after the game began both teams missed many shots and neither scored for a while. Klosterman, in his elusive manner, slipped through the Lion defense for the first tally of the contest from beneath the basket. Steve Hamas retaliated with a foul but Mitchell added another point to retain a two-point lead. On a pass from Skip Stahley Mazess scored from the side court to tie the count

HOW RIVAL BOXERS ENTER ROPED ARENA

Nittany Ringmen Seek Victory Over Temple

tion bout between Captain Alie Wolff and the former Middle Atlantic middleweight champion Beloff, who witnessed the Penn-Penn State meet in the Palestina Saturday, expressed an unwillingness to return to the ring, even for an exhibition bout. He did, however, promise to reconsider his decision prior to the meet tomorrow.

After registering a one-round knockout triumph in the 175-pound division, Captain Alie Wolff will defend his middleweight crown tomorrow against Jim Anderson, Temple football hero. Anderson is an unknown product in intercollegiate ranks, but according to Beloff, he is a comer who should extend Wolff to the limit.

Struble or McAndrews

Depending on whether or not Heumann permits Steve Hamas to fight in tomorrow's setto, Bill Struble is slated for the light-heavyweight berth and Marty McAndrews for the unlimited division. If Hamas performs, McAndrews will move down to the 175-pound class.

Two gridmen will fill the heavy-weight posts for the invaders. Joe Brown has recovered from an injury sustained during the football season and he will display his talent in the light-heavyweight battle. Brown, a brother of Harry (Kid) Brown, professional pugilist, was defeated only once last year. He outpointed Bill Struble in the 175-pound class here.

Bill Conlin, giant football tackle, is the Owl's heavyweight hope. Conlin, a newcomer, performed creditably in his two encounters so far. He is a dangerous hitter, packing a wallop in both hands.

Coach Dave Beloff is pinning his hopes on Heim Driban in the featherweight class. Driban is an experienced puncher who should furnish plenty of opposition for Stan Kolakoski, Penn State's aspirant to the 125-pound crown. Koly is anxious to remove last week's stigma with a knockout triumph over Driban.

Davis As Welterweight

Jack Davis will enter the squared circle for the second time tomorrow against Ivin Kutcher, hard-hitting Owl welterweight. Kutcher flashed a wicked two-fisted attack in his combats this year, stopping his P. M. C.

opponent in less than two rounds. Heartened by his showing against Captain Wmorsky of Penn, Davis hopes to record his first intercollegiate win in tomorrow's combat.

In the lightweight battle Boni Casom is scheduled to match fighting wits with Lou Block, veteran Temple 135-pounder. Jack Beadle, who employs a stinging left jab to advantage, is another possibility for the Temple assignment. Either invader should make Casom step in the struggle for ring honors.

Coach Dave Beloff, accompanied by his string of leather pushers and the managerial staff, will arrive here late this afternoon. The visiting punchers will work out in the Recreation Hall tonight while both teams will weigh in before noon tomorrow morning.

Lion Grapplers Meet Strong Cornell Team

Results of tomorrow's meet should indicate to some extent the position in which the teams will finish in the intercollegiate season. Last year Cornell won second place in the intercollegiate matches and the Lions third place. Likewise in the Cornell-Penn State meet last year the New Yorkers carried off a 17 to 8 victory.

Veterans Meet

In the meet tomorrow the Red and White grapplers will have three veterans from last year's line-up in action while the Nittany wrestlers will include five experienced men. All three of the Cornell veterans were victorious in their meet with Penn State last year while Eisenman was the only member of the present squad to secure points for the Lion total.

Two intercollegiate champions are lined to oppose the Nittany grapplers in tomorrow's meet. Josefson, who won his title in the 115-pound class, has been alternating between that weight and the 125-pound division, during the present season. Captain Stafford, the other title holder, gained his honors in the unlimited class. He also has been shifting from 175 pounds to unlimited depending upon the match.

Wilson Adds Weight

Captain Ted Wilson, intercollegiate 125-pound champion, has added several pounds during the past week. Scarcely able to make the weight for previous meets, the Lion leader has added such additional weight that Coach Spindel has about decided to use him in the 135-pound class and Hubler in the captain's regular position, unless Wilson is able to work off the extra weight before the meet tomorrow.

Tiny Cranmer and Pearce are also causing Coach Spindel some worry.

Both men weigh in at about 175 pounds so that Charley is faced with the question of whom to use in the unlimited class. Last year Cranmer, wrestling in the 175-pound division, lost to Stafford by a time advantage.

Steele, Eisenman and Campbell are the only men on the squad who will retain their regular posts for tomorrow's contest. All three wrestlers have shown improvement since the opening of the season and it is upon them that the Lion coach is depending for certain victories.

Reports from Cornell concerning their team strength reads as follows: "The Cornell team has had a fairly successful season thus far having defeated Syracuse 21 to 6, losing to Lehigh 12 to 15, and winning a decisive victory over the University of Pennsylvania Saturday."

The greatest weakness of the Cornell team has been its lack of material for the 158-pound and 175-pound divisions. Johnson, a football men, and a member of last year's squad, has recently become available for the 175-pound class, but because of poor health and consequent lack of practice he has not as much reserve strength as might be expected. He seems to be rounding into shape, however, and easily won his bout from Fox of Penn Saturday.

"Lazar won his bout at Philadelphia and at Syracuse, but he is not as capable or reliable as Truselid who was unable to wrestle Saturday because of an injury he received in the meet with Lehigh. If Truselid is able to wrestle in the 125-pound class, as seems probable, Josefson will be entered in the 115-pound class. Lipshitz and McConnell in the 135-pound and 145-pound classes are capable, but not outstanding men."

Hubler Returns

Wednesday night's eliminations gave Hubler a place on the Nittany team for this match. Cowell who displaced him last Wednesday fell before the onslaught of the former regular 135-
