CAMPAIGNING

The essence of these spring days seems to center in the single word "activity." Whether it be golf, the belated basketball games or the Cwen convention, the keynote is action.

It may seem difficult to carry the analogy as far as the Spring elections but one cannot fail to note the undercurrent of excitement and enthusiasm that has penetrated the usually quiescent order of things among the women students.

The student organizations have, as the name implies, arisen because of a need on the part of the student body, and their chief function is service. To the girls who can best satisfy this demand belongs the honor of the offices. Keen competition in this as in sports assures the best possible performance, and the same fine spirit of rivalry that has made for clean interclass athletics is back of the whole system of elections.

The candidate who can outstrip her opponent in meeting the demands of the student body deserves to win, and the system of elections is admirable if carried out in the spirit of the sportsman.

Such a system, however, is not altogether infallible and its success rests not alone with the candidates but it is within the power of each eligible voter to champion or defeat the spirit back of the system.

There are splendid possibilities in the rivalry of a clean campaign, but the spirit of good-will does not exist where the plague of "mud-slinging" and corrupt politics holds sway.

For the success of the undertaking if not for any personal scruples, the coming campaign demands the serious consideration of all the women students.

ELECTIONS FOR WOMEN WILL BE HELD TUESDAY

The 1930 candidates for senate are: Josephine Lees, Kathryn Michener, Dolly Motter and Mabel Thomas; 1931 candidates are Marie Kueports, Marjorie Stitt, Louise Hoffeditz, and Mary Davenport; 1932 candidates are Jean Simmons, Anne D'Olier and Marie Fruehan.

In Y. W. C. A. Betty Mellor and Evelyn Young are candidates for the presidency, Isabelle Yackel and Mary Davenport for vice-president; Louise Marquardt and Sarah Hammond for secretary, and Fern Harmon and Louise Hoffeditz for treasurer.

The candidates for May Queen are Phyllis Wallauer and Anne Fernald; candidates for freshman attendant are Muriel Bowman and Margaret Hopwood.

Juniors Discuss Ways To Help Little Sisters

The question of how the big sisters of the Junior class can help their Freshman sisters was discussed when groups of the Juniors met in Miss Ray's office last week.

The big sister movement, as carried out here and in other colleges, has as its purpose the desire to aid the Freshmen as much as possible in adjusting themselves to college life. Each Junior is assigned a freshman as her "little sister" whom she tries to help in every conceivable way through her first year.

Because it was felt that this purpose was not being entirely fulfilled the Juniors were called together, and plans were discussed. Suggestions to be used next year were made and it is planned to call the freshmen together to hear their ideas of what a big sister should do. Through these meetings it is hoped that juniors may be better able to help their little sisters and show the next class what their task will be.

Delegates From All Chapters Of National Fraternity Meet at P. S. C.

Delegates to the national convention of Cwens, national honorary sophomore activities, fraternity for women, are assembling on the Penn State campus this week-end for their fourth annual convention, as guests of the local Delta chapter.

About forty delegates are expected to arrive today from the chapters at the University of Pittsburgh, Miami University, University of Missouri, Allegheny college and Muskingham university, and from other colleges which are interested in the fraternity including Westminster college, De Pauw university, Carnegie Institute of Technology and Bucknell university. The delegates will stay at the Freshman dormitory, 108 East Foster avenue, where meetings of the convention will be held.

The convention will open tonight with a buffet supper at which the delegates will be the guests of Mrs. Frank W. Haller, an honorary Cwen.

Tomorrow will be devoted to discussion groups at the dormitory. At these sessions reports of the activities of the past year will be given and new national officers will be elected. The standards of the organization will receive special attention this year and definite action will be taken on them by the national committee on standards. The Delta chapter is planning to issue a bulletin after the convention which will contain the complete speeches made by the officials. The delegates will have luncheon at the Blue Moon restaurant.

Tomorrow night the Cwens will hold their formal banquet at the Centre Hills Country Club. Here the decorations and ceremonies will be carried out in the old English style. Souvenirs of the banquet will be red leather programs stamped with a silver Cwen seal.

The convention will close with the Sunday chapel service and dinner at McAllister Hall.

Cwens was established at the University of Pittsburgh in 1924 for the purpose of fostering leadership, scholarship and participation in activities among freshmen women.

BEZDEK SELECTS TENTATIVE TEAM

Lion Coach Announces Probable Line-Up of Batsmen for Southern Trip

NINE WILL OPPOSE NAVY IN OPENER WEDNESDAY

With less than a week remaining before the opening game, Coach Hugo Bezdek, Nittany baseball mentor, has chosen a tentative nine and is attempting to round it into shape for the Southern trip which opens at Annapolis Wednesday.

Tentative Team
For the present, Coach Bezdek has placed Captain George Delp at first, Dobbelaar at second, "Coop" French at short and Allie Wolf at third base. Saltzman will probably receive the catching assignment for the Southern trip. In the outfield Deidrich and Singly have been chosen for the left and center field posts, while Buchanan may receive the call to play right field.

The Lion coach plans to shift and change this line-up as the players round into shape until the best possible combination has been found. Competition is especially keen for the short-stop and right field berths.

Refrigerating and Mechanical Experts Meet Jointly For First Time

For the first time the American Society of Refrigerating Engineers will convene with the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at a meeting to take place sometime during the A. S. R. E. conference to be held here June 20 to 22.

Prof. Arthur J. Wood, head of the mechanical engineering department, said that the joint meeting had been called in order to discuss both transportation and refrigeration. The conference, he said, would be divided into three main divisions, including developments in ice-making, a symposium on refrigerated transportation, and household refrigerators.

One of the features of the conference will be the technical exhibits and demonstrations. These will include one of the most complete collections of insulated materials in the country, methods of humidifying homes, air infiltration through buildings, new types of household refrigerating apparatus, and recent developments in general refrigerating apparatus.
