Botanical Garden Includes Everything
From Fig Leaves to Gum Factories

"Everything from fig leaves to chewing gum factories is included in Penn State's mammoth botanical gardens," Mr. Albert F. Hildebrandt, plant expert in charge, declared yesterday.

"Penn State's botanical buildings house one of the finest East Indian orchid collections in America," he continued. "A rare specimen of which there are not more than six in the world is included in this group. It cost us $500 but we think the money was well spent."

Opening a well-worn Gray's Manual of Botany, Mr. Hildebrandt went on, "Believe it or not, this book was given to me under very romantic circumstances, and here," he stated as he pointed to the mossman flower, "is the first cousin of that rare orchid. It grows wild near Lock Haven, and will bloom in a few weeks."

"Our work at Penn State," Mr. Hildebrandt asserted, "is carried on in connection with class room instruction and we have neither time nor facilities for much research work. However, we have some interesting specimens." Leading the way to the gardens, Mr. Hildebrandt continued, "Notice this rubber tree; its trunk is over eight inches in diameter. How would you like to have that in your living room? The ancestors of this Abyssinian banana tree gave food to the Egyptians over two thousand years ago, and oddly enough, this bird of paradise from Africa whose brilliant blues and striking yellows make it the most gorgeous of flowers, is also a member of the banana family.

"Did you ever see a poke weed?" Mr. Hildebrandt asked as he indicated a plant less than a foot high. "This Caribbean blood berry is its cousin. The vanilla vine you see here came from that region, too, but this palm-like plant from whose root stock ginger is made, came from Indo-China. That arch of living green is the fig tree of which I spoke and here is the cactus plant from whose stocks our modern jaw exercisers are derived."

"Don't forget to look at the old maid's pincushion when you leave!" Mr. Hildebrandt remarked. Going out the interviewer looked long at the strangest thing of all, rosy fuchsia blossoms swaying on stems, twelve feet from the ground.

STUDENTS COMPETE FOR DAIRY PRIZES SATURDAY

With silver cups, medals, dairy equipment, and cash prizes as an incentive, several hundred Penn State students will compete in the seventh annual dairy exposition to be held at the College Saturday under the auspices of the Dairy Science club.

Six contests will feature the show. Seventy-two animals of the Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein, Jersey, and Brown Swiss breeds will be entered in the fitting and showing competition, of which James S. Hummer '29, is chairman. Other events will be dairy cattle judging, clean milk production, dairy products judging, and a milking contest for "co-eds."

STUDENT EDITORS MEET NEXT WEEK

A banquet is planned at the Centre Hills Country club at 7:30 o'clock Friday night, according to the temporary program. Prof. John O. Simons, head of the journalism department at Syracuse university, and Mr. G. M. Steinmetz, managing editor of the Harrisburg Telegraph, will speak at the banquet.

Committee meetings will be held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and the delegates will convene in Old Chapel at 10:30 o'clock. The group will hear the committee reports, hold discussions, and elect new officers for the association at this time.

President Ralph D. Hetzel will address the convalesce at the luncheon in the State College hotel banquet room at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Prizes for the winners of the newspaper contest will be awarded by Dean Henry Grattan Doyle, of George Washington university, at this time.

After the presentation of prizes, the delegates will have the opportunity of attending the interscholastic track meet on New Beaver field, the varsity golf match on the College course or the Move-up Day exercises.

The annual Move-up Day dance in Recreation Hall will furnish entertainment for the delegates Saturday night.

annual meeting of the Board will be held in the President's office later. The athletic attraction of the day will be a lacrosse game between the varsity and the Onondago Indians on New Beaver field.

"Pinafore," the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, will be the only event in the evening. This will be presented by the Thespians and combined glee clubs in Schwab auditorium.

Class Day Exercises

The baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning will be delivered by the Rev. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college, Iowa. In the afternoon a band concert will be given by the College military band on front campus.

A vesper service conducted by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. will be held in front of Old Main at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night. Later a recital will be given by advanced students of the department of music in Schwab auditorium.

Why one-way Street?

"Well, I'm only goin' one way!" replied the legendary motorist to the amazed John Law.

A laudable principle—if applied in the right direction... exactly as our long experience in cigarette making assures us that the only avenue to enduring popularity is a one-way street.

All the arrows along Chesterfield's route, from plantation to pocket, point directly to taste. No left turns into insipidity—no detours around the plain duty of good tobaccos—to SATISFY.

An overdose of analogy, perhaps, but you get our drift: Chesterfields are mild—but mildness is no overdone; they're never flat. Naturally smooth, aromatic tobaccos are so blended that every last atom of their flavor is delivered to the smoker. Here is that very rare bird, a cigarette that does satisfy.
