

SOCCERMEN AWAIT LEAGUE TROPHIES

To Elect 1930 Campaign Leaders Monday—Circuit Official Compiles Opinions

Confidently awaiting the formal declaration of their championship conquest, Penn State's undefeated soccermen will select a 1930 captain and manager at a squad meeting Monday afternoon.

Morris W. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Intercollegiate soccer league, submitted letters to coaches of circuit teams for an appraisal of the individual teams' worth and for a selection of the outstanding eleven.

Two cups will be awarded to the champions. The larger of these must be won three times for complete ownership, while the smaller one will be retained permanently by the winner each year.

Lions, Only Undefeated Team Standing out as the only booters in the circuit to complete the campaign without a defeat, the Lion eleven believes that in spite of the fact that Penn has won a greater number of flags, the awards will come to Penn State.

The Nitany record is five victories, and one tie, while the Quakers boast six triumphs, counterbalanced by a single upset and one stalemate. The greater number of conquests leaves a ray of hope for the Red and Blue booters.

Yale holds the third best average with four wins, one lost battle and one tie. Since the New Haven squad was tied by Penn, and the Quakers in turn defeated by Penn State, both contestants may be eliminated from titular consideration.

"We Pay for Shows—That's Why We Wear These Clothes," was the slogan adopted by the men of Shurtleff college in Alton, Ill., when the co-eds openly declared that the men did not dress neatly or with good taste.

School Organizes Factory Principles For Laboratories

Keeping in step with modern industrial developments, the School of Engineering has incorporated factory principles in its laboratories, engineering officials reveal. Under the supervision of Dean Robert L. Sackett the shift in manufacturing from dependence on man's skill to a machine's accuracy has been followed as rapidly as equipment could be obtained for the engineering laboratories of the College.

Three factories comprised of a number of shops are now in operation, and a fourth will be started shortly. The woodworking, machine, and foundry laboratories are being operated as industrial plants under the direction of Professor Charles W. Beese, and the forge and smithy is expected to be put on a production basis soon.

All of the work in these plants is done by the students. They design, detail, and route the parts, inspect the product, set up the work, and conduct time studies on the operations. The instructors act as shop foremen and plant superintendents. The only difference between these college laboratories and an industrial plant is the size of the output. In an industry the output is based on sales orders, while in the college it is limited to the number necessary to give the proper instruction and practice.

COLLEGE GIRLS WANT CULTURED HUSBANDS

St. Louis Pastor Suggests More Education for Grooms

College Women are encountering increasing difficulty in finding interesting husbands, according to the Rev. Daniel A. Lord of St. Louis, who suggested recently that men spend more time in adapting themselves for a cultural existence.

"College girls aren't marrying so much as they used to," he declared, "partly because some of them want careers, but also because of the difficulty many of them run against in finding college men whose conversation and companionship interest them."

As a remedy for the situation, Father Lord offered a method of cutting down the grammar school period in order to allow men more time for a cultural college education in addition to the professional and business courses which occupy most of their time and interest.

CO-ED CANDIDATES JOIN RIFLE SQUAD

Schedule Includes Meets With Penn, Carnegie Tech, Cornell, and Maryland University

Practice for the co-ed rifle squad, only intercollegiate sport for Penn State women, began this week with the opening of the mid-winter athletic season.

Contestants for the squad are being instructed in preliminary marksmanship by Lieutenant L. O. Williams, of the military science department. Only two of the ten members of last year's varsity were lost by graduation. Freshmen comprise over a third of the seventy-five women who have reported.

Miss M. Elizabeth Keislake '30, rifle manager, has completed negotiations with the University of Washington, Cornell, Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania and Maryland for five of nine prospective matches.

All contests are correspondence matches, the results being telegraphed or mailed to the competitors. Five of the eight matches held last year were won by Penn State's co-ed sharpshooters.

'Y' Hut Map Shows World Happenings

Combining a scrap-book and a map of the world, Associate "Y" Secretary F. Jackson has devised a means of acquainting freshmen with the activities of the world.

Just inside the door of the "Y" hut he has erected a huge map, the size of which alone would attract attention. News items of interest are tacked to the bottom of the map, with bright colored ribbons running to the country to which they refer.

Such items as "Mussolini bans anti-war books" and "Spain introduces plans for Gibraltar tube" are helpful in keeping the freshmen acquainted with the doings of the world, and the tracer ribbons are beneficial in revealing the source of the news.

These items are changed every Monday by Secretary Jackson, but a committee of industrious freshmen will soon take charge of this work. If they lead the ribbons in the right direction the idea will be a success, for the striking colors should attract even a freshman's attention, while the news article may prove interesting if the geography involved is not too tiresome.

DEBATERS PREPARE FOR ENCOUNTER WITH PITT

Will Discuss 'Higher Education' in Second Contest of Year

Working under the direction of Coach John H. Frizzell and Joseph F. O'Brien, a large forensics squad is preparing for the second debate of the season with University of Pittsburgh in Schwab auditorium, December 13. The topic under discussion will be "Higher Education Should be Limited To Those Having Special Ability." It will be a two-man, no-decision debate, with the Penn State orators upholding the affirmative side of the question. An open forum will be held at the conclusion of the debate.

The University of Pittsburgh team will be made up of both graduate and undergraduate students. Last season they completed a schedule of more than seventy debates, one of the longest of any college in the country, according to Professor Frizzell.

NO LONG SKIRTS' DECREES VOTE OF COLLEGE WOMEN

Women at Hunter college have definitely protested against long skirts, according to an article appearing recently in the New York Times. Seventy percent revolted against the return of lengthy attire, giving as reasons the fact that the latest models are uneconomical, unpractical, and uncomfortable.

The thirty per cent who advocated the return to former fashions spoke of "individuality," "the vogue," and a return to "feminine fascination."

STUDENT AGREEMENT WITH FACULTY WARRANTS DEGREE

Bachelor of Arts degrees conferred by American colleges merely indicate that the undergraduate has agreed with his professors during his four years in college, said Dr. Frederick R. Rogers of New York in addressing more than five thousand educators in session at Salt Lake city.

Grades, he said, make a battleground of the classroom are a disgrace to scientific education, and should be done away with. The highest grades as a rule, he said, go to the student who is the best "ape," to the one who can best imitate his teacher.

Reports Cows Safer To Kiss Than Co-eds

"It is safer to kiss a cow than a co-ed," the Minnesota Daily reports after investigating a scientific report published on the subject of osculation.

According to the report, only a few thousand germs browse on the lips of the unclean animal, but the lips of the "painted doll" constitute a literal germ factory. The investigators also reported that the "shout and snappy kiss is better by several thousand bacteria than the long, lingering kind."
