

Hermann Begins Court Scrimmages; 100 Candidates Report for Boxing Drills

COURTMEN TO FILL 3 VARSITY BERTHS

Loss of 8 Lettermen Proves Handicap—15 Candidates Seek Team Posts

Handicapped by the loss of eight of last year's ten lettermen, Coach Dutch Hermann began his search for a guard, forward, and center for the Nittany basketball team when he ran his changes through the first scrimmage Saturday afternoon. Forty-five candidates have reported for practice.

Skip Stahley guard on the 1929 quintet, and Jack Mazess, veteran forward, should have little difficulty assuming their last season's berths. Favored by varsity experience, Wally Leyda, Rod Fry, and Dave Miller will probably be the outstanding candidates for the open forward position. Leyda was one of the leading scorers on the 1927 plebe five but has been handicapped by a knee injury during the past two seasons. Miller teamed with Mazess at Scanton Central high. Bob Snyder, forward on the freshman team last year, and Tom Eastburn, center on the 1928 yearling quintet, are also possible forward choices.

Sophomores, Max-Win Posts Brand, Hamilton, and Hammond, all sophomores, and McComb, substitute center on the 1929 varsity squad, are vying a battle for the center post relinquished by Lou Reilly, lanky captain of last year's Lion quintet. An abundance of reserve material is available for the vacant guard post. Ed Lee, substitute guard on last year's five and Chuck Williams, regular guard on the 1928 plebe team, will probably battle it out with Paul Moss, member of the Illinois squad two years ago, and Joe Weber, varsity basketballman.

BRAND, MURRAY WILL PLAY FOR GOLF TITLE IN SPRING

The winner of the annual College golf tournament will have to wait until spring to assume his crown. Fred C. Brand '32, and John M. Murray '31 worked their way through the semi-final bracket and were to have settled the championship this fall. Incompetent weather caused the match to be postponed on several occasions. The snowstorm last week makes it impossible for the decision match this fall. The annual fall golf tournament is open to men students of the four classes.

STUDENTS SHOULD LEARN TO LIVE N. Y. U. DEAN DECLARES

A college must train its students not merely to make a living, but to live, Dean James B. Munn of New York university said in his annual report to the University chancellor published last week. Dean Munn believes that the four-year course is the backbone of the undergraduate college and the main reason for its existence.

LEHIGH ABOLISHES HAZING

Hazing of freshmen at Lehigh university has been abolished by the sophomore council without the influence of university officials or upperclassmen. In the future, the annual Founder's day games and the scraps at the sports banquets of each class will be the only contacts between the classes. In these contests the classes will be on an equal basis.

WRITERS ENDORSE 'NO CAPTAIN' PLAN

Syracuse, Ohio State, Carnegie, Minnesota Disperse With Election of Leader

Sports writers of many of the county's leading dailies have expressed the opinion that election of captains for college athletic teams should either be abolished or a more practical plan substituted.

It is the belief of some writers that the election of a captain each year causes unnecessary jealousy and friction among the players. Ed Pollock, of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, states in this connection: "If the election is done, bitterness may enter into it, and jealousies result to the detriment of team play. Furthermore, the most popular player is not necessarily a good leader. There may be others, less popular with teammates, but better qualified nevertheless to lead."

Pollock proposed that if a captain be elected, it should remain for the coach to select him since he is more fully acquainted with the qualifications of the players. Many leading colleges and universities have already adopted the "no captain" system whereby a leader is appointed before each game. Carnegie Tech, Syracuse, Franklin and Marshall, Ohio State, Oregon State, University of Minnesota, and Southern Methodist university have already abolished the election of captains.

Judge Wally Steffen, Carnegie Tech's football coach, recommended the plan of naming a field captain before each contest and electing an honorary captain for the season after the schedule has been played. This is the same system as is used at Ohio State.

Navy, while not abolishing the captain, will wait until the opening game next year to decide which player will lead the team during the season. They hope by this method to eliminate the uncertainty of not having a playing captain, according to the coaches of that institute.

Athletic director J. W. Wilce, of Ohio State university, in a recent letter to the COLLEGIAN expressed his approval of the "no captain" plan declaring that athletes at Ohio State were finding the plan very satisfactory.

RING COACH SEEKS HEAVYWEIGHT MEN

Faces Problem in Filling Gap Made by Graduation of 3 Senior Stars

Faced with the task of filling three gaps in last year's intercollegiate championship boxing team Coach Leo Houck is carefully grooming more than 100 candidates who began regular practice Thursday afternoon. Graduation took its toll by removing from the Lion ring Albie Wolf, three times intercollegiate champion, Stanley Kolakoski, 125-pound veteran of three campaigns, and Jack Davis, performer in the 145-pound weight.

Loss of Steve Hamas, twice intercollegiate champion in the heavyweight class, will not be felt so keenly since this division was eliminated by action of the Intercollegiate Boxing association last year.

Death of Heavyweight, Material Houck will have a manstay in Julius Epstein, intercollegiate champion in the bantamweight division last year. Keenly competing for the vacant four-tier weight post will be Stoops, Thues and Parks.

In the 135-pound class Casper Wood, and Petrochko provide the Lion coach with promising material while Lewis is the outstanding contender for the 145-pound position.

Gavin, Felton, Eisman, and Henry will battle for the middle-weight berth. Though a death of material exists in the 165 and 175-pound classes Houck is hopeful that Struble and Captain McAndrews, respectively, will fill these posts.
