

CHICAGO 'VAGABOND' ENDS WORLD TOUR

"You win," the steward said, grinning. "Now what the—ate you going to do about it?"

Marshall went to work. When he reached Japan he was imprisoned for illegal entry, and the next day returned to Honolulu again aboard the President McKinley, this time as a member of the black gang.

Guest of Fiji Chief

From his papers, Marshall drew a letter "Here is a letter in the handwriting of Ratu Pope, the highest chief of the Fiji Islands, whose guest I was during my visit to the South Sea Islands."

"The letter is an introduction to the chief's son, whom, however, I never got to see. The chief was educated in Australia. The natives had a great time knowing me while I was there."

From the Fiji Island, Marshall went to Australia, Java the Philippines, and finally to Shanghai, working his way to the last place in the black gang aboard the President Pierce.

Then started one of the most hair-raising experiences of his entire tour. He sailed 1500 miles up the Yangtze. While aboard a British gunboat he travelled through the midst of the civil war in China. During this journey up the river the boat was fired upon by Chinese, and Marshall was wounded in the hand, several small cuts are still visible on his hand. Two months later he turned "Bolshewik" for a few days in order to get through Manchuria into Russia.

In Russia the Soviet Government gave him free transportation by railway to the Polish border. One of Marshall's most prized possessions is the letter from the Soviet Government stating that free rules were not ordinarily given but that an exception was being made in his case.

"Everywhere I went," he continued, "exceptions were made in my favor. I don't know why it should have been so, but I certainly didn't object."

Free railway rides through Poland and Germany brought him at last to Berlin. Once again exceptions were made to allow him free transportation. After spending three days in Berlin he was ready to leave for London.

Free Air Trip to London

Marshall explains how he travelled to London "I wanted to get to London and I thought the best way to go there would be to fly so I went to the Deutsche Luft Hansa—an air line company—and the officials decided that inasmuch as I had got that far they might as well take me a little farther."

"I was given passage to London, with stop-overs at Hanover and Amsterdam."

From London the traveler crossed to New York city aboard the Leviathan as a scullion. He hitch-hiked to Chicago.

Marshall says that he has wanted to beat his way around the world ever since he was 13 years old. Now that he has realized his ambition, he still feels the call to vagabondage. Just as soon as he has recuperated his fortunes, he says, he is going to start out again.

"HOLD EVERYTHING"

HAS EVERYTHING!

THINK of the funniest comedy you have ever seen—and then to get it. "Hold Everything" is funnier than that! It is positively the funniest comedy ever made. It is funnier than "Gold Diggers of Broadway"

"HOLD EVERYTHING" has a great story, is full of heart interest, has a marvelous cast, five real song hits, a chorus of 72 un-kissed sun-kist beauties, and more laughs than a studio full of custard pies.

"HOLD EVERYTHING" brings you Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner in the same picture. You'll laugh until you cry. So Hold Everything for "Hold Everything"—because "HOLD EVERYTHING" Has Everything!
