ON POLITICS

ON POLITICS

In comphance with a request from Student Council that the student body be informed of the impending class elections through the columns of this newspaped, the Collegative is authorized to publish non-parties. Hems which appear in our news columns are intended, therefore, to inform our readers of events connected with the election, and not in support of any candidate or candidate. The Colsupport of any candidate or candidate. The Col-lindan is absolutely free of political alliances. None of its members are personally affiliated with any candidate or party, and no advertising space in its paper is sold to political factions. It is with this understanding, therefore, that its news columns are devoted to items of political interest.

A FREE HOSPITAL

Those who vote in favor of the free hospital plan a Those who vote in favor of the free hospital plan at the class elections next week will drink a toast to the future health of the student body. The chief force behind the action of Student Council in placing the proposition on the ballot was an unselfish desire to promote and safeguard the health of the student body. Although the plan would directly benefit only the student who would be forced to enter the Infirmative every student would benefit indirectly from this action. No longer would the well student be placed in daily contact with the set, student, but nearly the world be contact.

longer would the well student be placed in daily contact with the sick student Instead, each would be segregated, and benefits would accive to both.

It is this spirit, coupled with the prospect of gaining improved hospital and dispensary service for the student body, that has caught the imagination of its proponents. It is estimated that this service would be possible by raising the student fee from $4 to $10 a year. The $10 fee is submitted, not as a reliable figure, but simply to indicate the maximum fee that the student feet, but simply to indicate the maximum fee that the student body will consent to pay for improved services. The vote next week will determine the student

Regardless of the outcome, the final decision renains with the College. A favorable vote would undoubtedly result in a consideration of the project by the Administration. If, upon investigation, the Administration learned that the plan were a feasible and deam would become a reality. Failing that, the investigation should produce a substitute plan of merit.

More than three months ago a committee from the Penn State chapter of the American Association of University Professors was appointed to investigate the fersibility of an unlimited cut system for seniors Tonay, the Association announces another commendable investigation, this time of the ways and means of improving the English of Penn State graduates Moanwhile, the first committee is presumably sweating over the English contained in its promised repo

The fraterinty from the viewpoint of the outsider, usually a person who was never fortunate enough to attend college, connotes financial extravigance, the useless expenditure of time and energy, and the complete sublimation of student individuality. The fraterinty house in his estimation is nothing more than a dub which provides board and room for the student at evortitant rates while a breeding place for snobbery. This person, however, is usually the setting of a first the person, however, is usually the setting of a first the person, however, is usually the setting of a first the person. person, however, is usually the victim of a first im-pression which may often be quite misleading. But the fact that the frateinty has gathered great strengt throughout the generations since its founding is convincing proof of its value

Consenting to combine forces with the Interfratermity Council in furthering its work on the Penn State campus, last month Intramural Council filed its petition with the national group for that body's action. With the year fast ebbing to a close, Intramural Council's waiting patiently for Interfraterinty Council's decision Rejection of the petition now would necessitate the election of officers and the adoption of a rushing code on short notice.

The Show Window

The Campuscer is all set for the Junior Prom, date and all. That is we hope it includes date and all, although for I F Ball we were forced at the last-minute to go unaccompanied. The prospect of a musical duel between Pal Mallet and Gan Janber is too much to resist Do you think that they really will throw their instruments at each other? And then the prospect of dancing under a canopy of Southern smilay and uva leaves is just snothering. What in the world are they, anyway? in the world are they, anyway

"MY LIFE ADVENTUROUS By Bobby Galbraith

The sun came up shining, but it took my breath The sun came up shining, but it took my breath away in order to get up for an 8 o'clock class. But I did it! Then I managed to scramble through a tumultous morning dodging "folly cops" and missing "folly pops". Our lunch we grabbed in the good old Tap Room and I entertained with stories of my nights m Paris and my days on a cattle boat. Quite foolbaids! Somehow I managed to grope through the smug of an afternoon spent around the power plant, but feeling reckless I took the Ford out that night for exercise. Just another hand do: for exercise Just another hard day
