

Workmen To Raze Old Track House

With newer buildings to take its place, the old track house, first real home of Penn State athletes, is being torn down this week. Demolition of the interior has been completed and workmen are ready to begin razing the walls.

In 1903 Pop Golden, at that time the only coach, used his influence to bring about the erection of this building, which when completed in 1904 was situated at the west end of the running track, a part of the original Beaver Field.

Until 1923 the track house was used as a dormitory for athletes and was the center of college sports activities. Some of the men who made State athletic history during this period and who lived in this structure were Shorty Miller, Dex Very, Larry Conover, Charlie Way, Dutch Hermann, Bob Higgins, Neil Fleming, and Joe Lightner.

AGRICULTURE SCHOOL ADDS 2 COURSES TO CURRICULUM

With the addition of two new courses in marketing milk and ice cream manufacture, the total of free correspondence courses in agriculture has mounted to 102, according to Prof. Thomas I. Mairs, director of correspondence courses.

More than 20,000 people are beginning their year's work in one or more of the home study courses offered, Professor Mairs declared.
