

Powerful Lion Machine Meets Lebanon Valley Gridmen Tomorrow

Sidelines

For the fifteenth time Lebanon Valley will come here tomorrow in fourteen previous visits to State College the Annville team has never succeeded in taming the Nittany Lion. Eleven games have resulted in shut-out victories for Penn State.

"Hooks" Mylin, Lebanon coach, was a member of the only Franklin and Marshall eleven to defeat Penn State. This event took place in 1914 when the Lancaster team turned in a 10-to-0 victory over the Lions. At present Mylin is not only head football coach, but also athletic director at Lebanon Valley.

In all probability Penn State's team will appear in white jerseys for tomorrow's game. The Valley boys will wear jerseys of royal blue which would conflict with the blue colored Lion sweaters.

Twin brothers have turned out for Penn State's varsity squad. They are Howard J. and Leonard I. Schneyer, of Philadelphia. Although ineligible for varsity play this season, both of the newcomers are practicing daily with the squad and will turn out again next year. Both attended the University of Pennsylvania for one year, and previously were enrolled in Overbrook high school and Philadelphia Central high school.

The University of Maryland football team will most certainly pull an "iron man" stunt this fall. Playing a difficult twelve game schedule which includes Yale, North Carolina, V. M. I., V. P. I., Virginia, Washington and Lee, and Navy, the Terrapins have scheduled a Thanksgiving Day game with Johns Hopkins, and will leave immediately after the game for Nashville, Tenn., where they will encounter Vanderbilt two days later.

During the past few days Coach Higgins has lost several valuable men on the squad. Meredith, Noble, and Peellow, all end candidates, are no longer with the football aggregation, while Newcamp, a valuable fullback, has withdrawn from College.

When both Matty McAndrews and Herb Eschbach were ready to leave, the coaches faced the problem of developing a center to fill the shoes of these capable men. At first Ed DeCindos had the edge, but an injured ankle handed him a setback. It is now a hot three-cornered race between Kang, Bauman, and DeCindos.

Every man on Penn State's grid team this year is at least 5 feet, 8 inches tall. The entire squad of 51 players range from 5 feet, 8 inches to 5 feet, 2 inches. Five men, Diedrich, Martz, Wille, Roetenberg, and Gummer reach the minimum height of the squad, while two men, Stempke and Houk, can boast the maximum. Gillard, weighing 210 pounds, is the heaviest, while Gummer, 160 pounds, is the lightest.

NITTANY MENTOR SHIFTS FORWARDS

Higgins Places Curry, McMillen In Varsity Line—Backfield Remains Unchanged

An improved Lion grid machine, on edge after a week of intensive preparation, will oppose a veteran Lebanon Valley eleven on New Beaver field at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Coach Bob Higgins and his staff of assistants have carefully ironed out rough spots in the Blue and White team which were evident in the season's opener with Niagara Saturday. Particular attention has been paid to the reserve backs, who have been drilled in defensive play and an attempt has been made to bolster up the Nittany forward wall. With the exception of Stempke and Gillard, the Lions will take the field tomorrow with the same lineup that started the Niagara game. Ed McMillen and Tom Curry are likely to hold down the tackle and guard posts, paired with Cal Shawley and Johnny Zorella. Kane has the edge over DeCindos and Bauman for the center assignment, while Kaplan and Edwards will undoubtedly take care of the wings.

Lebanon Valley Lineup At the present time the Nittany backfield has been the least of Coach Higgins' worries. With Captain Frank Diedrich almost entirely recovered from his injury, and French, Lasech, and Snyder, the Lion mentor has a versatile set of backs who are ready for any emergency. Unless something unforeseen occurs, this combination will start the Annville encounter.

Although defeated by Villanova, 19-to-0, the Lebanon Valley team may furnish Penn State with plenty of opposition. Eight members of the Mylin coached eleven played against the Nittany squad last year when the Blue and White was held to two touchdowns in the first half and without a score during the remainder of the game.

Leathaler and Wool, guards, Bartolet and Kelly, tackles, and Heller, Ed, are all veterans from the Annville team of 1929. Thush, end, and Murphy, center, are the newcomers on Lebanon Valley's line. Murphy, a sophomore, was the outstanding lineman against Villanova.

Moones, Wahl injured Three players from last year remain in the visitors' backfield. They are Light, fullback, and Daub and Nye, halfbacks. The quarterback post will probably be filled by Reeder, a newcomer on the Valley squad. Sweeney, a freshman oack, was the leading ground-gainer in last year's contest, and may start at fullback in place of Light.

The emphasis Coach Higgins has placed upon work with his scrub material may be an indication that many substitutes will be used if at all possible before tomorrow's game is over. Twenty-four players saw action against Niagara, and more than the usual number of reserves have been used in the scrimmages this week. In a brief practice game yesterday, instead of sending the varsity against the second team—Coach Higgins allowed several of his regulars to take a rest and sent two teams of fairly equal strength against each other. At the present time Wahl, a substitute guard, and Moones, a back, are the only injured members of the squad.

MARSHALL COLLEGE LOSES 6 GRID PLAYERS IN PRACTICE

Marshall college, Penn State's opponent on the gridiron next Saturday, has lost several varsity men because of injuries received during the past week.

Stank, Hunter, Bradshaw, Fogg, Rogers, and Gaskill have been unable to attend the daily drills, and two other varsity men, Wilson and McEwen are unable to participate in the heavy work.

ATHLETICS LOSE FINANCIALLY

With football the only paying sport, the twelve major and minor athletic teams represented an operating loss of over $18,000 to the Cornell University athletic association last year. In former years a profit of more than $100,000 in football was absorbed by the losses in the other sports.
