Because he resented being called "sissy," Ross, Syracuse welterweight, turned out for boxing in high school. He developed rapidly and, although only a sophomore, made the Syracuse varsity this year. He won his first two intercollegiate fights, losing only to Hall of Navy and Lewis of Penn State during the dual season.

Al Lewis, Nittany welterweight, will attempt to accomplish what no other Lion 115-pounder has been able to do when he battles for the intercollegiate championship tonight. Although Penn State has won seventeen individual championships, since the tournaments started in 1921, Leo Houck's pupils have never been able to bring home a welterweight title.

Although he appeared to be on the verge of a knockout in the second round, Ben Brosslow, Penn light-heavyweight came back in the third session to force the fight to a draw and send the bout into an extra round. Time after time the Quaker fighter recovered and kept battling after it seemed inevitable that he would go down for the count. The crowd appreciated his gameness and gave him one of the biggest ovations of the evening.

"Tiny" Pincura, Western Maryland heavyweight and captain-elect of the Green Terror football team, is a brother of Johnny Pincura '28, a former Nittany Lion quarterback.

Previous to last night's matches, Herbert Fulmer, Navy's 135-pounder only fought in one intercollegiate bout, that with Crosby, 1930 intercollegiate lightweight champion, last week. Despite his inexperience, the midshipman knocked out the titleholder in one minute and twenty seconds of the first round.

The Moran's long string of fourteen straight knockouts came to an abrupt end when he stepped into the ring against Davis in the first 160-pound bout. The midshipman and Orange battled put on one of the greatest slug-fests ever seen in Recreation hall. Undisputed by the New Yorker's record, the Navy man exchanged blow-for-blow to win a well-earned decision.

Three of Navy's midmen, Crinkley, Andrews, and Fitzgerald, who fought last night entered the Academy from enlisted ranks. In addition Captain Wallace, who is not a contestant in the tounney and Manager Brossey also came up from the regular Navy.

Dick Harlow, Western Maryland boxing and football coach, has conducted three ornithological expeditions, under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute, to the Mackenzie River Basin and made four trips to the Great Slave Lake region of Labrador in search of rare specimens.

Last year's intercollegiate heavyweight champion, Yustin Snutis of New York university, won the unlimited title in the Golden Gloves tournament in New York city Tuesday night. Snutis will represent New York in an inter-city meet with Chicago, the winners of which will meet a French amateur team in an international contest this spring.

Hawkins, West Virginia heavyweight who knocked out Skobetne in a dual meet in Recreation hall early in the season, was elected captain of the Mountaineers' boxing team for next season.

Boxing Coaches Recall Past Champions in Naming All-Time Teams

Navy Man Receives 3 Votes as Leading Bantamweight

Disregarding then-winner over tonight's bouts long enough to ponder over former college champions of the ring, coaches of the leading teams entered in the intercollegiate tournament selected for the Collegian all-time college boxing teams.

Coch Leo Houck, of Penn State, Coach Spike Webb, of Navy, Coach Dick Harlow, of Western Maryland, and Coach Roy Simmons, of Syracuse, were all requested to choose a team of fighters which they considered outstanding from every angle of the ring game.

Houck selects West Fitzgerald, of Penn State, was chosen by Simmons as the best of the featherweights, and Webb and Harlow picked Pinsky, of New York university, last season's 125-pound champion Houck, notwithstanding the fact that Taidugno, of Georgetown, was defeated by Pinsky, placed the Hill-topper on his all-star team.

Doug Crosby, present champion from Western Maryland, was considered by both Webb and Harlow as the cream of the lightweights. Simmons chose Cordasco, of Syracuse, and the Penn State mentor's selection was West, former Penn State 135-pounder.

Houck believed that Fish, of Georgetown, was the best college welter ever to don a pair of gloves, while Simmons selected Stanton, of Colgate, intercollegiate champion in 1926. Both Harlow and Webb picked Gem, of the Navy, titleholder during the 1927 and 1928 seasons.

Webb picked Snutis, O'Malley, fighting Irishman from M. I. T., was considered by Harlow and Webb as the best light-heavyweight boxer. Houck chose Hap Frank, of Penn State, and Simmons picked Vandergrift, of Yale. In the first six weights the selections of Webb and Harlow concurred exactly.

Harlow and Webb disagreed for the first time in a choice of the heavyweight. The Maryland mentor named Lassman, of New York university, while Webb picked Snutis, also of New York university and last year's champion. Lassman was also chosen by Simmons, and Houck named Steve Hamas, of Penn State, who is at present making good in the professional ring.

In selecting his team Harlow maintained that he could name a second group almost equally as strong. This team, in order named from 115 to heavyweight, was Stoop, Penn State, Chapin, Penn State, O'Malley, Pennsylvania, Rollet, Aint, Lucas, Pennsylvania, Lyons, Navy, and Snutis, New York university. The Western Maryland mentor also picked what he considered an all-time Western Maryland aggregation consisting of Callahan, Flater, Crosby, Norris, Klepac, Ekatts, Bubaker, and Pincura. Five of these midmen are members of the 1931 Green Terror team. Coach Houck had a hard time in selecting his all-time Penn State team, but finally named Epstein, Stoop, West, Lewis, Wolff, Frank, and Hamas. The Syracuse coach chose for his leading hill boxer, Millamed, Weatherman, Cordasco, Mahan, Moran, Gugno, and Lavoti. Spike Webb selected for his all-Navy outfit, Collins, Fitzgerald, Chalson, Gem, Henderson, Lyons, and Crinkley.

Array of Cups Vie With Footballs, Baseballs in Perpetuating Lion Deeds

Perpetuating the deeds of Penn State's athletes in intercollegiate competition are many trophies which have been collected and placed in two showcases in the basement of Varsity Hall.

Included among these awards are many famous cups which have been won by Lion teams in numerous sports. The trophy presented by the Baltimore Sun which college boxers are competing for in the intercollegiate tournament has been included in this group for the last two years.

Almost every recognized sport is represented in this array. However, football, cross country, soccer, baseball, and track lead the others in the number of trophies on display. Three years ago intercollegiate cross country champions are largely responsible for the trophies secured in this sport.

There is one showcase which is given over entirely to football and his ball awards. There are forty football and twelve baseballs from intercollegiate victories by Nittany team on the gridiron and on the diamond. The oldest football dates back to 1891 and has painted on it "State 6, W & J 0".

Other footballs recall hard fought games and famous Lion victories. High points in Nittany football history are expressed by such scores as State 11 Dartmouth 7, in 1920, the game with Harvard at Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1921 which resulted in a 21-0-21 tie, and the 1911 game with Colgate, resulting in a victory for Penn State.

The football which Elzhon H. Harty Wilson carried three times across the Navy goal line in 1921 to give the Lions a 21-0-1 victory, may be seen here. A mud-splattered ball has painted on it the name of one of the most desperate games played on New Beaver hill. This game took place in 1925 and resulted in a scoreless draw with Notre Dame.

In addition to these trophies there are pictures of athletic teams dating as far back as 1898. On the first floor of Varsity Hall, in one of the lounge rooms, is the plaque which was awarded to Penn State in 1921 as the Eastern football champions for that year.

And is greeted with a rousing cheer. He's standing the show. Marty puts on Johnny's gloves. Brotherly love. To the Ninth, or Tenth, degree. Jackson of the Annapolis "Capitol" tells us that Crosby's sister is Fulmer's sweetheart. And they meet in the finals. Then family quarrels start early. The referee parts the two fighters. A crowd wants to know why he did it. Her girl friend says it's because they were fighting too hard. All the Admirals in the Navy come out to escort Davis to the showers after his win from Moran. Then coats are unbuttoned. A terrible breach of Naval etiquette. It's over. They struggle out. But they were back tonight for more.
