GROUPS MUST LIST MEN ATTENDING FRATERNITY BALL

Presidents To Submit Names of Participants for Annual Spring Function

A. A. CARDS WILL SERVE AS CHECK ON STUDENTS

Committee Attempts Removing Overcrowded Condition by Restriction Plans

Each fraternity president whose chapter has signed to participate in Interfraternity Ball must submit the names of all members of his house planning to attend the function to Sterling E. Brown '31, chairman of the Ball committee, before Monday night, April 13, according to a measure adopted by the committee at a meeting in Old Main Tuesday night. No one will be admitted to the dance unless he presents his athletic card and unless the name appearing on the card checks with the lists of names submitted by the Greek leaders. Any person eligible to attend the Ball who does not decide to go until the lists have been submitted must see the committee chairman personally before his name may be added to those already received, the ruling decrees.

Alumni Not Eligible

Fraternity alumni or visiting members from other chapters are not classed among those "eligible" to attend the affair, according to Brown. Loss of an athletic card will not be considered a legitimate excuse for obtaining entrance because duplicates may be secured at the Athletic office in Old Main, the chairman declared. "We have tried to eliminate all possibility of a recurrence of the crowded condition evident at last year's Ball. Nevertheless, without the cooperation of the fraternity presidents our efforts will be useless. I would make a special appeal that only the names of those who really expect to attend the dance be submitted," stated Brown.

The style of the colored debaters is both entertaining and unique, according to Prof. John H. Fizzell, of the English composition department, who will act as chairman of the contest. Mr. Claude R. Forey, instructor of public speech at Juniata college, will be the critic judge for the debate.

Orville A. Hitchcock '31 and Harry W. Lightstone '31 will represent Penn State in seven discussions at southern colleges during the Easter holidays. Arguing the affirmative of unemployment insurance, Hitchcock and Lightstone will meet George Washington university representatives and William and Mary college debaters on Monday and Tuesday, respectively. They will uphold the affirmative of free trade at North Carolina State college, South Carolina university, and Rollins college on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday respectively.

Both men will advocate the trade question at the University of Florida on April 6 and will conclude their tour with a discussion of unemployment insurance against Georgia Tech orators the following day.

AGRICULTURAL LEADERS DISCUSS COURSE NEEDS

Confer With College Executives on Resident, Extension Work

Twenty-three leaders of agriculture in the State met Wednesday with President Ralph D. Hetzel, Dean Ralph L. Wats, of the School of Agriculture, and heads of the departments in that school to discuss curriculum needs in the College's work both here and in the extension service.

Among the guests were eight trustees of the College, including Miss State Secretary of Agriculture, Edvard S. Boyard, editor of the Pennsylvania Farmer, and F. P. Wilkins, former State Secretary of Agriculture.

Nineteen professors of the School of Agriculture attended the meeting held in the Board room of the President's office. Adrian O. Morse, executive secretary, Edward K. Hishman, alumni secretary, and Edith P. Chance, director of home economics, were called in to advise the group on matters concerning their departments.

Warmth of Treacherous Weather Deludes Students, Physicians Warn

With colds and light ailments rampant on a campus making preparations for Spring, College physicians issued a note of warning to heedless students who would delude themselves into thinking fair weather has come to stay.

"This time of the year," the doctors remark, "is the season when student health is endangered the greatest. Poisons and ailments that have been brewing in the body all winter are now seeking a source of outlet," they aver.

Although the desire to cast off heavier clothing and to don the lighter apparel of warm weather is great during the sunny days, students flaunt illness in the face when they disregard inconsiderate changeableness of Spring weather, the health department maintains.

The prospects of large numbers of amateur nature-lovers in the student body swarming into the nearby mountain regions in this season, have aroused the warnings of the physicians. While not wishing to dampen the spirits of local flora and fauna zealots, the authorities caution the embryo naturalists against fondling immature poison-ivy plants which are especially infective at this time of the year.

Although no student has ever died of snake-bite, the rousing from lethargy of their ilk by the increasing warmth of the sun makes the taking of necessary precautions imperative, in the opinion of the doctors. Further, they warn against dunking at road side springs which have not been approved by the State health authorities, because typhoid germs will be more common this year, on account of the drought last fall.

PLAYERS PRESENT 'MASTER BUILDER' TOMORROW NIGHT

Hetzell '33 To Take Title Role As 'Halvard Solness' in Norwegian Drama

MISS KELL WILL ENACT LEADING FEMININE PART

Shelley, Director of Orchestra, Selects Beethoven, Haydn, Mozart Numbers

Victory for youth will take place on the stage of Schwab auditorium as the Penn State Players bring to life Henrik Ibsen's "The Master Builder" at 8:20 o'clock tomorrow night.

The symbol of youth in the 3-act drama will be Lillie A. Kell '33 who takes the part of Hilda Wangel. Opposite Miss Kell, the feminine lead Ralph Hetzel jr. will enact the title role. Master Builder Solness's resistance to the forces of youth form the overtones of the play.

Suffering from the black moods that seize her husband, Aine Solness will be characterized tomorrow night by Mae P. Kaplan '34 in her stage debut here. Another representative of the younger generation, Ragnar Brovik, will be played by Ralph E. Evans '34, while Knut Brovik, father of the young man, is to be enacted by Benjamin L. Wise '33.

Design Special Sets

Jesse M. MacKnight jr. '31 will take the part of the family doctor, Dr. Herdal. Knut Fosh, fiancée of Ragnar and bookkeeper for Solness, will be a creation of Myrtle H. Webb '32.

Many of the situations in the play follow the actual occurrences of Ibsen's life, according to Frank S. Neubaum, director of the production, and many critics believe that Solness's affliction for Hilda in the grease-paint imitation is only a counterpart of the feeling Ibsen had for a Viennese girl about one-third his age.

Donald A. Shelley '32 will direct the Players' Little Symphony orchestra during the interludes. Symphonies from the works of Haydn and Mozart will be played by the group with Beethoven's "Turkish March" which will be the postlude.

PHYSICIAN CLOSES NUTRITION COURSE

Health Service Department Shows Gain in Underweight Students After 5 Week Period

That no more candidates can be admitted to the nutrition class being conducted by the Health Service department to aid underweight students was reported yesterday by Dr. Charles D. Dietterich, assistant College physician.

The project is starting on its fifth week and has already gained widespread publicity. Inquiries have been received from health authorities at colleges and universities throughout the country concerning the methods used and the results obtained to date.

Members have gained from one to nine pounds in a single week, and statistics reveal that not a single individual has failed to show some improvement in his general physical condition.

The purpose of the diet class is to provide food with proper caloric value and to furnish a room in which patients will rest for a short period before meals.

TO PLAY Leading Feminine Role In 'Master Builder'

LILLIE A. KELL '33

Charles P. Smith '32 was elected president of the student Y.M.C.A. for 1931-32 at the all-College election held in the lobby of Old Main Tuesday and Wednesday, Raymond A. Bowers '31, retiring head, announced today.

As a result of this election the new president and vice-president have been selected to attend the National Y. presidents summer session at Columbia university for six weeks. Their trip is given each year to the president of the Penn State Y.M.C.A.

Acting as the head of the Community Service commission during the past year, Smith has engaged in student 'Y' work since his freshman year. He is also a member of the Middle Atlantic Field council and is at present a candidate for the presidency of that organization.

W.S.G.A. EXTENDS CO-ED PRIVILEGES

Idle Permits Freshman, Sophomore Dating After Last Class on Saturday Morning

Beginning April 11, freshman and sophomore women may be in the company of men after their last classes on Saturdays, according to the new W. S. G. A. ruling.

Prior to the passage of this law, freshman women could not be with men during the day on Saturdays, while sophomores were allowed Saturday dating privileges only in the afternoon and evenings.

This new ruling will go into effect the first Saturday after the Easter recess ends, and will last until movement day when the women will automatically assume the social privileges of the class above them. Contrary to the statement in the Women's Handbook, freshman women will take sophomore women's customs and not junior regulations, as the Handbook now reads.

FORBES WILL GIVE LECTURE

Dr. Ernest B. Forbes, of the Institute of Animal Nutrition, will speak on "A Method of Derivation of Energy Digestible Nutrients" at a meeting of the American Chemical society in Indianapolis, next week.

Special Bill Passes State Senate, How?

An Emergency Building bill providing $910,000 for new College buildings has been passed by the State Senate and the House of Representatives, Ashton O. Morse, secretary to the president of the College, announced today. The bill will be sent next to Governor Pinchot for his signature.

Senator Scott introduced a bill in the Senate Wednesday providing for the general maintenance of the College. The same bill was introduced in the House by Representative Holmes.

This bill has been referred to an appropriations committee where it must be approved before it can be brought to a vote of the Senate and House of Representatives.

COLLEGE ASKS FOR NEW FLAG DESIGNS

Students To Vote on Proposals Of Architects—Stoddart Gives Ideas

To aid in the search for a distinctive College flag, members of the department of architecture will be encouraged to submit designs for popular vote by the student body, according to an announcement yesterday by Bruce V. Weidner '31, head of the flag committee appointed last year by Student Council to investigate the matter.

Weidner stated that the proposed plan will have to meet with the approval of architecture officials before it can be carried out. Several instructors in this department have expressed their willingness to support the plan if the engineering heads agree that it is feasible, the committee head announced in reviewing the situation.

Outlines Opinions

Although all plans already presented have been rejected by Student Council, several ideas for the flag have been advanced by campus authorities. Dean Charles W. Stoddart of the School of Liberal Arts, has suggested that the design include a begonia shrub to designate a spirit of cordiality which he believes to be characteristic of Penn State.

Adrian O. Morse, executive secretary to the president, stated that popular opinion on the matter of the design seems to favor various combinations of the red-tan emblem, the Nittany lion, the initials "P. S.," and the Nittany lion.

"The College seal is also in favor," Mr. Morse added, "but it has the disadvantage of not being readily adaptable to smaller flags since it includes a number of figures which, reproduced on a miniature emblem, would give it somewhat 'muddy' appearance."

NAME HAZLETON, SMITH CO-ED HANDBOOK HEADS

W.S.G.A. Senate Chooses Springer, Blüchfeldt as Associates

W.S.G.A. Senate has named Miss Doris E. Hazelton '31 editor of the Women's Handbook for 1932, while Miss Marjorie E. Smith '31 business manager. Work will begin after the Easter recess, Miss Hazelton announced.

Miss Era M. Blüchfeldt '31 will serve as associate editor, while Miss Virginia B. Springer '31 has been appointed assistant business manager. The W.S.G.A. editor of the handbook will be Miss Dorothy W. Cummings '32 while the Y.W.C.A. named Miss Elizabeth M. Kall '33 as its editor.

Miss Marie E. McMahon '32 will serve for the W.A.A.

After graduation from Brown in 1888 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, the present executive received his Doctor's degree from Rochester Theological seminary in 1891.

New Units Should Give More Rooms For Required Subjects, Says Ebert

A building program planned to house general courses will increase Penn State's services to the Commonwealth more than concentration on specialized units, according to George W. Ebert, superintendent of grounds and buildings.

"The student body would be able to expand only by continuing the present policy of assigning classes to any available room with enforced disregard for the original purpose of that room," declared Mr. Ebert. "In such case, any building that the legislature saw fit to supply would be satisfactory if its construction provided general classroom space for the smaller, as was the case this year. More seating room for general courses will mean more students, and more students will bring down the cost of an education here. Decreased cost will offer broader opportunities to the people of Pennsylvania."

CHAPEL AUDIENCE TO HEAR BARBOUR

University Head Will Give Eleventh Talk in Schwab Auditorium At Sunday Exercises

"The Test of the Long Road," will be the subject used by Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, president of Brown university, for his address at the regular Sunday morning chapel exercises in Schwab auditorium.

This visit will be the eleventh time that Dr. Barbour has come to Penn State in the last fifteen years. Besides being a university president, the chapel speaker is an author and editor.

After graduation from Brown in 1888 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, the present executive received his Doctor's degree from Rochester Theological seminary in 1891.

The same year Dr. Barbour was ordained into the Baptist ministry and held the pastorate of Lake Avenue church in Rochester for eighteen years. Following his stay in Rochester he served on the faculties of Colgate, Denison, and Syracuse universities as well as at Colby and Williams colleges.
