Ace Brigade Prefers Playing at Colleges, Melodic Type Music

"Playing at college dances is better than filling engagements in big cities because of the poppy atmosphere that characterizes them," Ace Brigade said after Junior Prom Friday night.

"Of course," the French orchestra leader continued, "like a melodic type of music, but not getting 'hot,' but, on the contrary, I wish to please my audience. About the College, I find many improvements since my first visit here at Military Ball in 1922."

"My orchestra, which I organized in Virginia during the last year of the World War, was the outgrowth of my military band for the army and a popular orchestra, which specialized in the 'hits' of the day. Some of my soldier boys are still playing for me."

"No," the maestro responded when asked if he liked traveling about the country, "but, I see the country and make lots of friends from New York as far west as Omaha, although my work generally keeps me in the central states."

That the annual Artists' Course be discontinued next year on account of the lack of sufficient audiences and consequent financial deficit was the recommendation of Prof. Richard W. Grant, head of the department of music, in a letter to the College administration yesterday.

"It appears that not enough interest can be raised among the students and faculty to justify the extra expense to the College," Professor Grant said. All deficits up to this time have been taken care of by the College treasurer, but the unexpectedly large debt this year led Professor Grant to ask that the course not be scheduled next year.

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE SUBMITS LABOR REPORT

Predicts Fewer Positions Open for College Men for Summer

Fewer college undergraduates will be employed by the great industries this summer than last year, according to a report submitted to the Industrial conference held here last week.

While the company representatives agreed unanimously in favor of hiring college men, especially juniors, during the summer vacation, the recent economic depression will cut down the number of extra employees taken on this year.

The committee making the report studied conditions during the year, and was reappointed to continue the investigations this summer.

FRESHMEN TO SIGN 4 GRID OPPONENTS

Will Increase Number of Games in Future, Athletic Board of Control Decides

Beginning with the 1931 season, freshman football teams at Penn State will play four-game schedules. The Athletic Board of Control decided at a meeting Saturday. The first-year eleven have been engaging in two contests a year the past two seasons.

In enlarging the schedule, the board felt that the additional games would give a greater number of men a chance to engage in actual competition and thus prove more effective in developing varsity material. The two-game policy was adopted as an experiment two years ago and replaced the six-game seasons customary in other years.

Preparatory school teams will return to freshman gridiron schedules in the future, the board also agreed. In this way it is hoped to fill out the yards with teams who are in close proximity, thus saving the loss in classroom time caused by long trips to distant colleges.

May Change Award Although Syracuse freshmen will not meet this year, Pittsburgh first year men will have a place on the 1931 schedule. Dickinson, seminar and Bellefonte academy are probable opponents, while a fourth game will be played with or other secondary school.

Varsity football games for the 1932 season with Harvard, Syracuse, Colgate, and Pittsburgh were approved. The latter team will return to its customary place at the end of the schedule after playing here in the Alumni Day encounter this year.

Seeking an award which would have lasting significance, the board considered changing the annual "Most Valuable Athlete" prize to a plaque instead of a watch as was presented last year. The group also sanctioned the 1931-32 budget, which is similar to that used last season.

Transfer from Physical Education Courses Possible

DEAN BEZDEK OUTLINES NEXT YEAR'S PROGRAM

Underclasses May Substitute Interunit Sports After Preliminary Tests

Students taking required physical education courses will be allowed to play in intramural sports for full credit next year after passing co-ordination tests to show that they are normal physically, Dean Hugo Bezdok, of the School of Physical Education, announced yesterday.

Reporting to their instructors twice a week, all students taking physical education 1, 2, 3, and 4 who have completed satisfactorily simple tests may engage in any sport. Dean Bezdok said. Changes in the intramural schedule for next year provide for instruction from varsity coaches and a possibility for varsity material in the various sports to be uncovered by the mentors.

To Hold Field Day Tests More than a thousand completed in the various sports this year with a total of two thousand sports competitors. Estimated by counting the individual in each sport in which he participated, the dean said. Under the new plan, it is hoped that the number will be doubled. The 1 to 6 o'clock play period will be scheduled in those schools where it is practical, Dean Bezdok said.

Aming to run off the intramural sports as far as possible in periods outside the regular varsity seasons, and increase contests for the fall, with the regular tournament in football and cross country. A special set of sports and field day tests will be held during freshman week to uncover outstanding material among the newcomers.

Schedule Spring Football Next year the winter season will be divided into two periods for the intramural sports. The first period, from November until the last of January, will be occupied by boxing, chess, and basketball competition so that these sports will be run off before the regular varsity schedules begin.

Introduction of new sports for the second winter period will begin near the first of February. Badminton, handball, volleyball, and possibly squash racquets will be played by the inter-unit teams until the opening of the spring season.

In the spring, football for those who want to learn the game is scheduled along with soccer, baseball, softball, and track. Tournament in tennis, golf, and horse-shoe-pitching will take place in the final season of the school year.

Sobler Says R. O. T. C. Suit Won His Title in Magazine Balloting

"To what do I attribute my being selected Penn State's best-dressed man?"

Cy Sobler, local example of sartorial sublimity, pondered the question as he meticulously flicked a cigarette ash from his spotlessly clean white flannel.

"All that I am," he confessed, "I owe to Uncle Sam. The fashionable cut of my R. O. T. C. suit jacket, its smart blue lapels—Don't forget that blue is all the rage this season—those flashing gold buttons, the snugness around the ankles of my trim army shoes, and above all, those perfectly fitted trousers—those undoubtedly, must have been the things that brought me ahead."

And with these words, Cy executed a perfect right-about-face (See pp. 507, 508, R. O. T. C. manual) and entered the Library to do outside reading on "Famous Military Campaigns of History."
