

Freshmen To Open Intramural Program

New Class Will Meet On 4 Afternoons For Sports

In order to acquaint the freshman class with the College policy of "Athletics for All," the class of 1935 has been scheduled to play off the lid of Penn State's 1931 intramural sports program. As a part of the regular Freshman Week program the new class will gather in sections from 1 to 6 o'clock today, tomorrow, Monday, and Tuesday.

Recreation Hall and College athletic fields will be swarming with new students engaged in field and track events, football, golf, tennis, soccer, horse-shoe pitching, and volley ball, under the supervision of regular, variety coaches and trained physical culture experts.

Speaking of the benefit to be derived by these recreation periods, Dean of Men Arthur R Wainock said "The sports periods will be helpful to the new class in bolstering up the morale and good spirits. Minds and muscles will be kept in shape by the four exercise periods, which, by the way, provide an excellent excuse to take a shower every day."

Athletic officials emphasize the fact that freshmen should secure lockers in Recreation Hall as soon as possible after arriving in State College. When reporting for the regular assigned periods athletic equipment such as golf clubs and tennis rackets should be brought along if students are interested in these particular lines.

"We are not looking for experts in any particular line of sport," Director of Athletics Hugo Bezdek, stated yesterday, "but hold as a primary motive the necessity of getting a large percentage of the new class interested in some branch of athletics for his own special benefit later on."
