

SOUTHERN SCHOOLS TO BAR SUBSIDIES

8 Institutions Plan Conference Abolishing Scouting, Aid For Football Men

Following the lead of Penn State in abolishing subsidization in intercollegiate football, eight southern colleges are drawing up plans for a conference, the main feature of which is the abolition of subsidization, recruiting, and scouting among member organizations.

Sandy Wise, jr., describing the movement in Intercollegiate Sports, reports that this will without doubt destroy the winning prospects of many of the colleges. He states that this situation will have to be borne by these pioneer institutions until the improvement spreads in collegiate football.

Referring to Penn State's football situation, Mr. Wise says "This seems to be the plight for instance of Penn State. The entire football world was astounded by the victory of Waynesburg over the Lions in the opening game of the season. Many a sigh was breathed for the days of Light Horse Harry Wilson, Hunkey Haines, et al., yet, without reflection on those former stars—that day is below the horizon as far as Penn State is concerned, now that officials have banned any more recruiting or financial aid."

Southern institutions who will be original members of the conference include Auburn, Florida, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, North Carolina, Tulane, and Vanderbilt. Full plans for formation will be discussed at a meeting of the interested schools at New Orleans, La. in December.

Our Opponents

Syracuse-Florida
The Orange has another easy game at Archbold stadium before she faces the Lions next week. The Southerners can hardly be expected to offer much opposition, and Syracuse should win by two or three touchdowns.

Pitt-Western Reserve
Resting up for the Notre Dame game a week from tomorrow, the Panthers should have no trouble in downing the Clevelanders. Plentiful substitutions may keep the Blue and Gold advantage down to four or five touchdowns.

Colgate-Manhattan
Coach Johnny Law has raised the New Yorkers several rungs up the football ladder, but this will be hardly a close contest by any means. The Maroon will be feeling the effects of the Lafayette game last week, but should down the metropolitan eleven by three or four touchdowns.

Lafayette-St. John
Lafayette is another State opponent which contemplates taking it easy tomorrow. St. John should not cause the powerful Leopards any undue exertion, and the Eastonians are almost sure to run up a four or five touchdown advantage.

West Virginia-Washington & Lee
Still smarting from Pitt's trouncing last Saturday, the Mountaineers will not be anywhere near top form for their Charleston opponents tomorrow. However, even under these conditions, the Morgantown boys should come through, although it may be pretty close.

STATE SPORT LAW NOT FOR COLLEGE

Senate Rule Supervising Wrestling, Boxing Aimed at Small Scale Amateur Promoters

Assurance that the present State Senate ruling supervising amateur boxing and wrestling meets is not aimed at the colleges was given to Dean Hugo Bezdok, of the School of Physical Education, representing Penn State, and delegates from four other Western Pennsylvania colleges at a meeting in Pittsburgh last week.

The representatives learned that, despite the fact that the law has been passed to check on faulty arrangements at small amateur bouts, the Owl faces Biscan tonight in what should be one of the most closely fought games of the week-end. On the face of the Owl's mediocre showing against a determined State team last Saturday, Bucknell should win, but not by much—possibly only the difference of a goal kick.

Old, Dirty Felt Hat Symbolizes Athletic Glory

The symbol of the outstanding Nittany athletes during the last ten years is a battered old felt hat.

Although dirty and worn, this hat has an enviable history. Originating in 1920, it was first worn by "Squeek" Hufford and since that time it has been passed down every four years by the senior to the man in the freshman class who shows the most promise as an athlete during his first year in College.

Many of the names inscribed on the hat are already forgotten, but some will be remembered. The most recent wearer was "Yutz" Diedrich, captain of the football team last fall and a letter man on the varsity nine. Following his graduation, Diedrich sent the hat to Tom Slusser who will have it for four years.

An old tradition says that the hat must be worn at all initiations into honorary campus societies. The dates of Skull and Bones, Lions Paw, Parrot Nuts, Druids, Friars, and Sphinx elections are scratched all over the brown headgear.
