Paul Bekers, former Lion cross-country captain, will be seeking his third successive victory in the 2-mile run when he enters this event at the Meadowbrook indoor games February 20.

Al Bates, former Lion broad jumper who represented the United States in the 1928 Olympics, will again try out for the Olympic team this year.

According to Alan Gould, columnist for the Associated Press, it was Tommy Loughran who first impressed Steve Hamas with the importance of the left jab and instructed him in its use.

John Orsi, Colgate end who was picked on many all-American teams last fall, holds down a reserve forward position on the Maroon basketball team which meets the Lions tomorrow night.

Penn State and Colgate will continue athletic relations in the Triangular Baseball Association when the Lion nine and the Maroon batsmen meet at Hamilton, N. Y., May 20 and here May 28.

Fred Brand and Don Smith, Pitt guards, have been playing against each other in basketball games since their high school days.

When the Lion boxers meet North Carolina tomorrow it will be Blue and White matched against Blue and White since the colors at the Chapel Hill school are the same as those at Penn State.

An intercollegiate Boxing League composed of Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Temple, West Virginia, and Duquesne, will hold its first tournament in Pittsburgh March 17-18.

Penn State has a better chance to beat Pitt in basketball this season than they have had for a good many years.

As a result of the poor showing his boxers made against Syracuse Saturday, Coach Joe Orsini, Pitt ring coach, plans several changes in the personnel of the Panther team when it meets Temple University tomorrow.

CAGERS MEET COLGATE HERE; BOXERS FACE TAR HEELS

Lion Team Slow in 40-22 Defeat of Juniata Quintet

Maroon Contest Crucial In Triangular Cup Competition

By SIDNEY H. BENJAMIN '32

The worm may turn, but, if he does, he's got to be a lot livelier than the one that wriggled around Recreation hall Wednesday night.

Briefly, the Lions showed nothing in their 40-to-22 victory over Juniata, overwhelming as it was, that has any right to make us optimistic about the results of the engagement with the Maroon tomorrow night.

Nevertheless, there is no doubt that Colgate has its best cage team in years. A nucleus of veterans has been fortified by five members of last year's strong freshman quintet, which was the only one to topple the Lion yearlings.

Coach Lloyd Jordan of the Colgate five intends to start Johnny Acropolis, the team's high scorer, and Whitey Anderson, former Maroon star, at the forward assignments.

The forward jobs remain uncertain positions in Dutch Hermann's lineup plans but the remainder of the present combination will probably start according to form—Captain Freddy Brand at center and Ed McLinn and Doc Conn at guard.

Although the Lions had little apparent difficulty in chalking up their fifth victory in six starts against Juniata Wednesday, glaring errors which will have to be corrected before sterner competition is met were again evident.

LION NINE BEGINS EARLY GYM WORK

50 Candidates, Including 5 Varsity Lettermen, Start Practice With Coach Bedenk

Baseball is in the air again. Coach Joe Bedenk has begun preliminary training sessions with fifty aspirants for positions on the varsity nine this coming season.

Nine regulars were lost through graduation last June and only five letter-winners, Captain Hoopes, Phil Noonens, Paul Swan, Regie Smith, and Dave Meade remain to form the nucleus of the Blue and White squad.

The Nittany diamond mentor pointed out that Penn State will face a heavy barrage of strong teams this spring and although the annual southern trip will not be taken this year, an unusually hard eastern trip has been substituted.

LIONS FACE W. VA. MATMEN TONIGHT

Captain Maize To Meet Former Mountaineer Foe in First Bout at Morgantown

By R. D. HETZEL Jr '33

Dopesters in the wrestling game get discouraged fast. West Virginia grapplers took a real honing from Indiana, 30-to-0.

So when the Lions go to the mats with West Virginia at Morgantown, W. Va., tonight, they must move fast and wary for the Mountaineers are no two-bit outfit.

In last year's opening meet here, Maize threw Sharpe of West Virginia in less than five minutes for the 118 pound points.

Bob Ellstrom meets his first real test in Captain Fletcher of the Mountaineers. The sophomore 125-pounder flashed lots of power against his Chicago and Syracuse opponents, but he is going into sterner stuff now.

Last year Turnbull wrestled in the 155-pound class against the Mountaineers and threw Schwartzwalder in nine minutes.

Bub Byers will take Reylitz's usual place in the 165-pound weight, giving Ted with his superior experience and skill the heavier man to tackle.

The third Lion heavyweight in as many meets will take the unlimited bout Jackson, who was slated to start against Chicago and who was eliminated by Judd for the Syracuse meet.

To Engage North Carolina Ring Squad at Chapel Hill

Leo Houck Makes Shift In 3 Weights for Final Lineup

By ROBERT E. TSCHAN '33

The Messers Boxing Lions packed an extra shirt and their finest stock of punches in trade into a brown suitcase and winged off today on a barnstorming expedition to Chapel Hill.

Maestro Houck has effected a few changes in lineup for the local fight followers to figure out by shifting men in three weights.

North Carolina is no set-up, but records of the season favor the emergence of the Lions with a good margin of points.

In the 115-pound class, Captain Davey Stoop will experience only a little difficulty in dispatching Williams for the Tar Heels.

Bas Clare probably has the edge over Mimich for starting Saturday with his added experience.

Johnny McAndrews and Raymer, 135-pounder for North Carolina, should not have many misunderstandings.

match well into hand and give a demonstration of his thoroughness.

Although he could make no progress against a Virginia welterweight boxer, Nat Lumpkin has been making killings for the Tar Heels.

Just when Tom Slusser's Tar Heel opponent will be in the 165-pound division is not certain.

In the light heavyweight class Nebel and Henry will have fought their way to the Lion post by today.

FRESHMAN QUINTET TO PLAY WYOMING

Seminary Team Will Offer Stiff Opposition for Yearlings Tomorrow Night

Coach Larry Conover looked pretty serious this week as he drilled his team of freshmen.

Tomorrow night's freshman-Wyoming Seminary game is Larry's biggest concern right now.

A record of nine straight victories against such quintets as the Penn junior varsity, Dickinson Seminary, Lafayette freshmen, Army plebes, Colgate and Bucknell freshmen, and Maryknoll College has established the Seminary team as one of the outstanding prep school combinations of Eastern Pennsylvania.

Combining size with speed the Kingston five will take the floor with Dobby, 178-pound forward, Captain Sites, 190-pound center, and Soback, 185-pound guard.

George Cummings will be in the starting lineup at center instead of Gilhard as the only change over last week's combination.
