For the first time in weeks, Recreation hall will be deserted as far as varsity sports events are concerned tomorrow.

Mulenberg has joined the growing list of colleges who have followed Penn State in outlawing athletic scholarships.

The present winty blasts have forced Bob Higgins to postpone spring football training for at least another week.

Steve Haman, Penn State's contribution to "big time" prize fighting, will emulate other well known ring figures by entering the ring again.

In defeating Syracuse for the second time this year Saturday night, Colgate again won a thrilling one-point victory, 37-36.

Wrestling must run in the blood in the Lorenzo family, for Mike's brother won the 135-pound championship at Newton, N. J. high school the other day.

What is certain to be a hard-fought grudge battle will take place as a preliminary to the Lion-Panther basketball game in the Pitt gym tomorrow night when the Carnegie and Pitt teams meet.

BOXERS TO FACE ORANGE; CAGERS MEET TECH, PANTHERS

Mitmen Will Oppose Strong Syracuse Team Tomorrow

Stoop, McAndrews, Lewis Favored for Lions With Wertheimer, Moran Given Edge

"Little Intercollegiate," might well be the key-words for the Penn State-Syracuse boxing meet tomorrow when both teams with formidable records conclude their dual meet seasons.

Almost certain intercollegiate champions-to-be in the first five weight divisions will appear in the Hill ring tomorrow with Captain Davey Stoop, Johnny McAndrews, and Al Lewis the principals of the Lion display and Joe Moran, the stock in trade of the Orangemen.

The 165 and 175-pound bouts, are expected to be the only chance for the Syracuseans to make up a 3-to-2 Nittany advantage in the first five matches. But with little good material available for the Orange in the heavier weights, the Lions should clinch their dual season with a fair margin of victory over the home team.

Minnich To Box 125 The Hill featherweight, Ray Burrell, secured a costly victory from his Penn opponent last week when he fractured his hand and concluded his 1932 career.

Slusser Will Fight 165 Tom Slusser will appear in his proper weight class when he returns to the 165-pound division for the Lions tomorrow. Korch, 165-pound boxer for the Orange, has a record which is mostly on the red side of the ledger.

Johnny McAndrews, who has a clean slate at 135-pounds this season, should dispatch his Syracuse opponent easily and pave the way further toward his championship goal.

The only intercollegiate champion whom the Lions boast this year, Al Lewis, will give his undivided attention to Ross, welterweight boxer for Syracuse.

'35 CAGERS SEEK 2 VICTORIES AWAY

Yearling Quintet To Encounter Tartan, Panther Passers Tonight, Tomorrow

With their goal set at a pair of victories before turning in their uniforms for the season, the freshman basketball team will accompany the varsity squad to Pittsburgh today to meet the Carnegie Tech and Pitt freshmen teams in games tonight and tomorrow.

The yearlings have drawn no easy assignments for their final games. The Panther freshmen loom as the most formidable of the two teams, having won thirteen games and lost but one thus far.

Both teams will hold the edge over the Lion cubs in the matter of playing experience, since both have engaged in several more contests than have Coach Conover's charges.

The starting lineup for the Lion plores is still somewhat in doubt for Conover has done considerable experimenting in the workouts this week.

Without a doubt, Ed McMinn and Doc Conn will be detailed to this task at guard, and both are determined to emulate the proverbial leeches.

Martin Petruska is most likely to get the call to pair with Fletcher at the guard positions, although Lyons or Rambo are other possibilities.

Twenty teams had entered the intramural handball tournament up to yesterday, according to Manager Arthur E. Phillips '33.

Lions Will Close Season With Games in Pittsburgh

Brand, Davis, Meyers, Hammond To Make Final Court Appearances Tomorrow

Convert those foul shots! With that cry ringing in their ears as a result of their heart-breaking foul line defeat at Pitt's hands Saturday, Penn State's cage Lions hope to end their seven-game losing streak while concluding their 1932 campaign when they face Carnegie Tech tonight and the Panthers again tomorrow night in Pittsburgh.

To do this, the Lions will have to overcome the road jinx which has caused them to lose every game away from home this season. They will also have to stop two gentlemen who answer to the names of Red Fergus and William Kovalis, respectively.

Mr. Kovalis left no doubt as to his scoring propensities when he rang up fifteen points to make the Panthers' State College visit a profitable one.

Without a doubt, Ed McMinn and Doc Conn will be detailed to this task at guard, and both are determined to emulate the proverbial leeches.

Alters Squad Without a doubt, Ed McMinn and Doc Conn will be detailed to this task at guard, and both are determined to emulate the proverbial leeches.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA MATRIMEN LEAD INTRAMURAL TOURNEY

Alpha Chi Sigma was leading the field of intramural wrestling teams yesterday with 44 points. B. T. U., a non-fraternity unit, was second with 25, and the Commons club and Phi Kappa Sigma were tied for third with 16 each.

Wrestlers in the lower four classes will compete tonight, while the heavier grapplers are to battle tomorrow afternoon. The scoring system provides three points for a time advantage, and five for a fall or a forfeit.
