Lion Mit Captain

DAVEY STOOP

By ROBERT E. TSCHAN '33
Three likely individual titles will pave the way for the fifth Penn State Eastern Intercollegiate boxing championship today and tomorrow at Syracuse but close second and third places must be garnered to subdue the Army and Syracuse mitmen.

Captain Davy Stoop, Johnny McAndrews, and Al Lewis are the Lion boxers favored for crowns, while Pete Updegrove, Slusser and either Minnich or Napoleon will have the setting of the team title in their hands. Syracuse, with Al Wertheimer and Joe Moran well spoken of for titles, and Army who can be expected to secure many seconds in her league bow, are the threats to Lion leadership.

Borchers, 145-pound Western Maryland boxer and Carey, MIT entry, start the turnoff at 2 o'clock this afternoon when they fight for the right to meet Ross, of Syracuse, in the semi-finals tonight. Similarly, Harrell, of Army, and Lord, Penn, welterweight, will compete for the post against Lewis, Lion defending champion. The other preliminary bout will show Tom Slusser paired with one of MIT's best boxers in the finals. Davey should not have overmuch difficulty in regaining his title of two years ago.

Baring last minute changes, Minnich will take the floor for the Lions in the 125-pound division instead of Johnny Napoleon who has been out of the lineup for several weeks. Cleveland of Army, who showed his ability against the Lions recently, is favored to repeat and meet Al Wertheimer, defending champion, in the finals tomorrow. Wertheimer must first eliminate Davis, 125-pound Penn boxer.

Lewis To Defend Crown
Johnny McAndrews, who has shown a much spark as any Nittany boxer in meets this year, should have easy sledding through the semi-finals, meeting as he does Mason, Penn 135-pounder, who has an unimpressive record. Hagan, who fought welterweight all season for the Cadets, is down a notch and should out-punch Tuckerman, of Western Maryland, to reach the finals with Johnny McAndrews. However, Cot may be used instead of Hagan for the Cadets.

Al Lewis will no doubt make short work of the winner in the Harrell-Lord bout and will then be ready for Ross, Syracuse welterweight, who is

LA VIE MAKES CHANGE IN BEAUTY SELECTION

New Plan Establishes Committee of Faculty Members, Townspeople

Selection for the beauty section of the 1932 La Vie will be made by a committee of faculty members and townspeople, instead of by a professional artist as last year, Charles W. Rice '32, editor of the yearbook, announced this week.

"In this way we hope to have a more personal selection than that by one who just sees the photographs," Rice said in commenting on the change. "The plan may not be as good from an artistic point of view, but it will be better from the personal side," the editor stated.

With the activities section going to press this week, the complete annual will be edited soon.

Board Approves Gift Of $250 to Olympics

A $250 contribution to the American Olympic fund from class treasurers was approved by the Student Board Wednesday afternoon. The amount is to be equally divided among the four classes as recommended by the interclass budget finance committee.

The sum is in addition to $500 given by the Athletic Association of the College, and was suggested by student athletic board members.

COUNCIL PROPOSES EMPLOYMENT AID

Advocates Placement Service, Occupational Bureau at Meeting Tuesday

The establishment of a vocational guidance bureau and an employment placement service are recommendations of Student Council to College authorities and the Board of Trustees by action at its meeting Tuesday night.

Dissatisfaction with the present haphazard system for advising students on vocations and the resultant feeling on the part of undergraduates that they have lost valuable time before discovering their real interests and abilities were responsible for Council's consideration of the problem and the final recommendation.

With a view to the building up in the future of a regular staff of professional advisers, the Council report, which was drawn up by Coleman Herpel '32 and Charles P. Smith '32, provides two functions for the bureau. To interview and study prospective students before their registration in the College would be one of the largest works of the bureau.

Advising students already in College who may be undecided or have problems along vocational lines is the second function planned for the bureau. The saving of much student time and money as well as heightened efficiency are the arguments advanced for establishing such a system at Penn State.

The increased difficulty of securing positions for graduates, from all institutions has led to a demand on the part of the student body for some centralizing organization to co-ordinate the placement work now being done in schools and departments, according to the Council report. Not advocating taking the work out of the hands of the present position-finding groups, the Council recommends only some co-ordination and centralizing agency for rendering the service more effective.

LOAN AUCTION POSTPONED

The student loan fund auction of lost and found articles has been postponed until March 31.

Hermann Withdraws As Coach of Nittany Basketball Players

Retiring Coach

HERMANN

Hermann's Words In Dressing Room Lead to Victory

"This Is My Last Game, Inspires Fighting Lion Spirit

"This is my last game, boys!" These six words, the only ones Dutch Hermann said to Penn State's basketball team as it rested in the dressing room between the halves of the Pitt game Saturday, were the inspiration of the Lion in their amazing second half play against the Panthers which brought to Penn State its first victory over Pitt in five years, members of the team revealed when they heard that the veteran mentor had announced his resignation.

Dutch looks on the victory over Pitt as the greatest thrill of his coaching days. "It was a wonderful thing for me to realize that those boys were in there in that second half giving everything they had, so that I might end my coaching days with a victory. That they succeeded nobly is apparent from the decisive victory they gained over their strong opponents.

"If the boys fight next year as they fought against Pitt, I am sure my successor will have a team that will rank with the best in the East," the retiring veteran added. "I wish him all the success in the world, and I feel he will get a great start with the fine bunch who will be back to form the nucleus of next year's quintet."

Continuing the concert, Curtis J. Patterson '31 will sing two tenor solos, "Homing" by del Hiego, and Noval's composition "Gray Days." The orchestra will follow with a medley of Victor Herbert's waltzes and "Evolution of Dixie" by M. L. Lake. Baritone solos by Robert H. McFalls '33 will include German's "Rolling Down to Rio," a composition by Clarke called "Blind Ploughman," and "The Road to Mandalay" by Speaks. "Rhapsody in Blue," played by the orchestra will conclude the concert.

Resignation Follows 17 Years' Service at Alma Mater

NO SUCCESSOR CHOSEN PENDING BOARD'S ACTION

Mentor Also Relinquishes Grid Post Here—Brand, Higgins, Bezdck Voice Tribute

By SIDNEY H. BENJAMIN '33

Dutch Hermann yesterday turned resolutely away from the fascination of seventeen years of coaching at his Alma Mater and announced his resignation as head basketball and assistant football coach.

No successor has been chosen for the stocky, gray-haired veteran, whose surprising announcement comes less than a week after his team scored Penn State's greatest basketball triumph in five years by defeating Pitt Saturday. However, his decision to go on to further study in his chosen field, history, did not come hurriedly. It took a long time for the Nittany Lion's oldest coach to tear himself away from the lure of battle.

"I meant to make this step years ago," he says. "When I came back here to coach in 1915, it was with the idea that I would go on to further study. But the years passed by, and it wasn't easy to give up the thrill I got out of working with Penn State teams. Now, I realize I must go on, much as I hate to do so. But it's mighty hard. You see, I've handled four generations of Penn State men."

To Survey Field
So Dutch is going. He plans to study at Columbia, or Pennsylvania, or Johns Hopkins, possibly Oxford. But, after he takes his degree, he's coming back. And then he'll return to the old line—athletics. But this time it'll be from the stands. He intends to sit there like any student. And root just as hard for the victories of his successors' teams.

Just who his successor will be may be a matter of nothing more than conjecture for weeks. Director Bezdck tells us: "The field of candidates will be thoroughly surveyed." "Everything possible will be done to insure the signing of a man who will measure up to Penn State's standards of athletic ideals."

Bez paused to pay a tribute to the man who will leave Penn State in June. "Dutch did an excellent job. He served his Alma Mater well and loyally. It is with nothing but the deepest regret that we see him leave our coaching ranks to go on with his studies. Yet, we realize that in that field his greater success for him." Bob Higgins, with whom Dutch has

Born in Munich, Bavaria, Professor Wurfl came to this country in 1913, and after teaching at various places in New England and the South, he became a member of the German faculty here. Last summer, as a part of the summer session series, he lectured on "Goethe," "Faust," "One Hundred Years After Its Completion"

DAYLIGHT SAVING FAVORED BY 368

Student, Interfraternity Bodies Encourage Change From Present System

Sentiment in favor of daylight saving time grows with 368 student signatures on petitions Wednesday night after three days of circulation.

Of these signatures, 338 are from men students and 30 are from women. Four petitions are being circulated at fraternity houses, while the campus organizations are also considering the matter.

Student Council passed a resolution asking for daylight saving time at a meeting Tuesday night. All the members also signed a petition backing the time change.

Favored in Town
Interfraternity Council considered the change at a meeting last night and a majority of the members signed a petition favoring daylight saving time.

Members of the faculty are signing a petition for the change both as citizens of the town and as College staff members. No outstanding objections to daylight saving time have yet arisen.

Only 19 Societies Regarded As Honoraries by College

Warnock Distinguishes Between Professional, Scholastic Fraternities on Campus

By ERNEST B. ZUKAUSKAS '33

Only nineteen societies are officially recognized as honoraries on the Penn State campus. This apparently startling revelation follows a definition of honor societies made by Dean of Men Arthur R. Warnock when he stated that the College describes them as organizations which select members chiefly or solely on a scholarship basis.

Those organizations commonly known as honoraries which choose initiates on the basis of occupational interest and which conduct a program throughout the year in accordance with the occupation are classified as professionals by the faculty committee on student welfare, of which Dean Warnock is secretary.

When charters are submitted to the College, difficulty in classifying a society as either honorary or professional is often experienced. However, the matter is always settled by a determination of the emphasis on scholarship requirements for membership.

In the minority group by this classification, only nineteen honorary societies are members of the Honor Society Council. This group, composed chiefly of representatives of each honorary, has as its purpose the co-ordination and unification of the activities of each member society in giving recognition to scholarship, said Prof. Harold A. Everett, secretary of the Council.

Empowered to pass on applications of societies to membership, the Honor Society Council specifies certain standards for eligibility. The chief requirement is that elections shall be primarily based on high scholarship, but not necessarily that alone. To be entitled to the distinction of high scholarship, a student should be in the upper fifth of his class in average grade for all his studies.
