MOVE-UP DAY PROGRESS

One of the outstanding achievements that has been effected in campus affairs this year is the general change to a common sense attitude on the tax for all-College dances.

Move-up Day, one of the few class observances which remains to the students, should be an improvement this year over those of the past if several changes for the better already announced are any indication.

Holding, tapping exercises and presidential speeches on Old Main terrace in the evening instead of immediately after the Tug-of-War scrap on Old Beaver field add to the solemnity and sincerity of the latter service.

Even economy for the student has been attained in the Lion suits and Junior blazers, which, if nothing else, is a tribute to the integrity and sense of responsibility to the constituents of the men in charge.

Rarely in the world of the theatre today is seen any production of the ancient Greek tragedy. Tomorrow night the Penn State Players stage "Electra" with its mighty machinery of tragic forces.

MORE

Insistent interest of alert students and faculty members in the Liberal Arts lectures which ended Tuesday night brings another ray of hope to the advocates of the elusive culture.

Last year the College tossed up the Artists' Course of fine music as a failure. The Course seemed to be running at a loss in both the financial and the interest categories.

Now, however, the absence of these things hangs heavily. The memory of them is good. It would be a fine thing to have them back.

If this culture-seeking nucleus grows and makes known its demands, its wants will be fulfilled. The College realizes that one of its important functions is the provision of opportunities to gain broad interests.

OLD MANIA

This department notes with a sigh of relief that the ever-faithful Daughters of the American Revolution have rallied to the aid of the nation, as their forty-first congress opened this week in Washington.

President General Miss Howell Fletcher Hobart came right out and spoke her mind. Or, at least, she spoke. Missus Hobart condemned at one fell swoop the kidnapping of the Lindbergh child, racketeers, communists, pacifists, hunger parades, anarchists, Fascists, bolsheviks, Hitlerites, the 5-year Plan, and dangerous characters who go around being unemployed.

Miss "Dolly" Gann wore a green taffeta and lace colonial dame's gown trimmed with ribbons. All in all, the situation has been admirably cleared up, and the Daughters can now go back home feeling that, at least, they have done their part.

Things are at a fine pass up in the English Composition Department. Mr. Wood, of same, has recently lost, under rather mysterious circumstances, his dictionary, a pipe, and a scarf.

The situation is actually very serious, as the dictionary had a Scotch Glossary. This Scotch Glossary was invaluable to Mr. Wood when he would be abed of evenings reading "The Cotter's Saturday Night," and wondering why Burns wrote it.

The pipe was a M-I-no with a very nice concretion of coal tar lining the bowl, and Mr. Wood enjoyed smoking it, while looking for the meaning of "muckle weir braun bricht dudelsackpfeifer" in his Scotch glossary.

The scarf had a W in one corner. There were three other corners, without W's.

A certain fraternity crashed through the past semester with a 2.82 average for its sophomore class. The sophomore class consisted of one man. And the one man, it appears, was a very smart fella.

A debate at St. Mary's College recently broke up in confusion when it was discovered that both teams had prepared the affirmative argument. Which we thought was very, very funny. Heh.

And the title of this is TUFF

I wishipped your style, I'd have died for your smile. Las. November; But you, tired of men, Would have none of me then, Remember.

am so sorry, but I've found a new baby. THE MANIAC.

Speaking Of Books

"Some books, like some men, make a lasting impression through sheer force of character and personality."

The most notable volume of English fiction by a new author during 1931 was "Hatter's Castle" by D. Cronin, who has forsaken his surgery in favor of the writer's desk.

The plot moves swiftly on to a tragic conclusion and is very cleverly constructed. The three loves of the Scotch heroine, Lucy Moore, are first—her Irish husband, second—her son Peter, and finally, after she has lost them, the church.

Many volumes regarding Rousseau's life and teaching, including the unforgettable autobiography, already have been written. "Jean Jacques Rousseau" by Matthew Josephson is not just one more, but rather a notable interpretation and narrative by a critic of French letters whose reputation in that field has already been made.

Born in 1722 in the Swiss city of Geneva, he started life in a community of uncompromising Calvinists. But he soon made his escape to become first a Catholic and then a seeker after that natural existence which was to form the basis of his philosophy and theory of education.

Poor Richard Said "A penny saved is a penny earned." In his day, pennies were as large as our quarters. All the pennies in the world wouldn't have taken Poor Richard to a movie, bought him a fivver, or paid his street car fare. The pennies of a hundred years ago were not as big in buying power as those of today. But Poor Richard's advice is still good. And it is no less valuable when applied to dollars instead of cents. Every year you spend a large proportion of the money you earn. So much for clothing. So much for shoes. So much for things to eat, house furnishings, garden seeds, tools and what not. There's just one way to save money in making your purchases. Know what you want before you buy. Read the advertisements. They tell you what is new and good. They tell you where and when to buy to best advantage. They help keep you posted on what the stores and manufacturers are offering. Read the advertisements. They save money and earn money for you
