

Nittany Lion Gridders Defeat Lebanon Valley In First Game, 27-to-0

Harper, Kreizman, Lohr, Sigel Score as Team Conquers Annville Eleven—Reserves Playing During Last Half

By GEORGE A. SCOTT '34

That "roar" that Coach Bob Higgins has been instilling into his Nittany Lion football squad came to life for the first time Saturday, and it wasn't the roar that a lion cub would make in his first attempt.

Four touchdowns and three extra points is a good-sized start for any football team, and just to demonstrate that all of their efforts weren't concentrated on the offensive end of the game, the Lion gridders held Lebanon Valley scoreless, and were ahead, 27-to-0 when the fourth quarter ended.

It was a mighty encouraging first game, for it revealed the presence of an offense that is stronger than in past seasons, and a defense that is full of potential strength. Lebanon Valley isn't the best team that is listed on the schedule this year, but the Annville eleven is powerful enough to make a good many of its opponents delve deep into their bag of tricks to win.

Varsity Scores 3 Times

Three of the four touchdowns came in the first half while the Nittany first-stringers were in action. The fourth was scored by the second stringers in the third quarter and only in the fourth quarter, when second, third and fourth team players were on the field as a team, did Lebanon Valley successfully defend its goal line.

To halfback Tommy Harper went the honor of registering the first touchdown for the Blue and White, the junior cutting through left tackle for a yard and a half to cross the goal line just six minutes after the opening kickoff. Lou Kreizman intercepted a forward pass and ran twenty-five yards for the second pointer, Harry Sigel garnered the third and Bill Lohr the fourth.

Harper Leads Backs

Although he played only two quarters, Harper was the leading ground-gainer among the backs with some eighty-two yards in thirteen tries at carrying the ball to his credit. Harry Sigel, sophomore halfback, was second with forty-three yards, Harry Wanthouse gained twenty-seven in seven line plays, and "Shorty" Mikolich contributed sixteen yards, although he was twice thrown for four-yard losses. Sigel gave the crowd its best thrill when he covered thirty-four yards in a single end run in the third quarter.

Defensively, the Lions showed both strength and weakness. Twice Lebanon Valley pushed its way past the Blue and White five-yard line, only to lose the ball on downs, and statistics for yards gained from scrimmage gave the Higgins crew a margin of

COMPANY TO FILM CAMPUS ATHLETICS

Grantland Rice Sportlight Unit Will Photograph Soccer, Lacrosse Teams

Motion pictures of Penn State athletics will be filmed for the second time by a Grantland Rice Sportlight camera unit, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, according to tentative arrangements made with Director Hugo Bezdek, of the School of Physical Education and Athletics.

Pictures of the lacrosse and soccer teams will be taken, although definite plans have not been announced by Jack Eaton, director of the camera unit. The shots will probably be filmed on the new practice fields on the golf course.

Continuation of Series The photographs will be a continuation of the series started last year by the film agency. Included in last year's reels were shots of varsity and intramural boxing and wrestling, and pictures of regular physical education classes. Short talks by coaches Charlie Speidel and Leo Houck were also recorded.

Another feature of last year's pictures was a talk by Director Bezdek on Penn State's athletic program. The series, which will be filmed this week, will be released within a few months to be shown at theatres throughout the country.

The Grantland Rice Sportlight films are designed to depict all types of athletics for the theatre public. Pictures are taken at all leading colleges and universities in the country.

TO HOLD VICTROLA CONCERTS The first of a series of victrola concerts, sponsored by the Social Problems club, will be held in room 411 Old Main at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP PLAN ANNOUNCED

10 Percent of 3 Upper Classes Eligible for 13 Carnegie, 3 White Awards

Application by needy students who are eligible to receive the awards is the outstanding feature of a new plan for distributing sixteen White and Carnegie scholarships aggregating $1,750, according to Dr. William S. Dye, jr., chairman of the Senate committee on academic standards.

Ten percent of each of the three upper classes ranking first in scholarship will be eligible, Dr. Dye said. Lists of the eligible students may be seen on the bulletin board on the second floor of north Liberal Arts building. Any eligible student may secure a copy of the application form in Room 216 of that building.

Applications Due October 15 The application form, properly filled out, must be returned to Dr. Dye before October 15, so that it may be sent to the applicant's parent or guardian for attestation. When the attested applications are returned to the committee, the students' records will be investigated and the awards will be announced.

Thirteen Louise Carnegie scholarships, awarded to four members of each of the two upper classes, and five sophomores, are valued at $100 each. A $200 senior award, a $150 junior prize, and a $100 sophomore scholarship constitute the John W. White awards.

Action taken by the Board of Trustees last year on recommendation of the Student Board and the committee on Academic Standards is responsible for the new plan for awarding the scholarships, Dr. Dye said. Prior to this year, nominations for each award were made by the respective student bodies of the several classes to which list of candidates one additional nomination for each position was added by the dean of each school. The committee on academic standards made their choice from these candidates, subject to the approval of the President of the College and the ratification of the Senate.

Fewer 4 O'Clock Classes This Year, Bissey Declares

Only 8.5 Percent of Student Body Has Last Hour--Electives, Laboratory Courses Hinder Final Elimination

Almost complete elimination of four o'clock classes has been effected in the College this semester, according to Cyrus V. D. Bissey, College scheduling officer, who has arranged class schedules for this semester to enable all but 8.5 percent of the students enrolled in College to escape classes from four until five o'clock in the afternoon.

"We are as close to reaching the goal of no four o'clock classes as we ever will be," declared Mr. Bissey in announcing the percent of students who are scheduled for the late class hour. "Long laboratory periods, a wide variety of electives offered in some of the courses, and courses which require a large number of hours, make it impossible to eliminate four o'clock classes for a certain number of students."

The percentage of students with four o'clock classes is 10.5 percent less than that of the first semester last year, when 19 percent of the students enrolled had four o'clock hours. The School of Physical Education and Athletics, which offers four activity courses in physical education, is

Council To Decide I. F. Code Violations

Reported violations of the rushing code will be discussed at Interfraternity council meeting in Room 318, Old Main, at 7:30 tomorrow night, it was announced Monday by Herbert E. Longenecker '33, president of Interfraternity council.

Only one violation has been officially reported to Prof. Sheldon C. Tanner, faculty member of the Interfraternity council board of control.

National Social, Professional Groups Chosen By 424, While 29 Join Locals as Units Issue 1,681 Cards

Climaxing a fifteen day period of rushing, fifty-six men's national and local fraternities pledged 453 men at the close of the rushing period Sunday. A total of 1,681 bids were issued by the fraternities through Student Union Saturday.

Four hundred and twenty-four accepted bids from national social and professional fraternities and twenty-nine were pledged to local social and professional fraternities. The number of those accepting bids this year exceeds the total for 1931 by eighty-three, only 370 accepting bids at the close of the 1931 rushing season.

Eighty-five bids remained uncalled for by freshmen, according to Harris Ebenbach '33, chairman of the Interfraternity council rushing committee. The freshmen who failed to call for their bids on Saturday may receive them at Student Union desk in Old Main this week, Ebenbach said.

A total of fifty-two were pledged to four Jewish fraternities last Thursday night, these houses concluding their rushing season three days earlier than the other fraternities because of Jewish holidays on Saturday and Sunday.

All but thirty of those accepting bids on Sunday were freshmen. Sophomores, juniors and graduate students were listed in the group of thirty.

Ebenbach Advocates Major Changes for 1933 Rushing

Present Code Characterized as Inadequate by Chairman of I. F. Council Committee

Changes of major importance in the 1932 rushing code will be suggested to Interfraternity council by Harris Ebenbach '33, chairman of the Interfraternity council rushing committee. A general revision of the code to eliminate loopholes and conflicts, a silent period from the time first year men reach State College until the opening of organized rushing, and classification of Mont Alto sophomores as rushees are the major changes advocated by the Interfraternity council rushing chairman.

"This year's rushing code was unsatisfactory because it was not specific enough," declared Ebenbach. "There were too many loopholes in the code, and in some cases one rule conflicted with another, causing more or less confusion among the fraternities."

"I would suggest a silent period on freshmen from the time they reach State College until organized rushing time begins, in order to eliminate the 'lead-piping' that always takes place during this period," he continued. "In order to enforce this ruling, freshmen would be required to wear their dinks and name cards from the time they reach here, so that violations could easily be checked."

Prohibition of fraternity men from freshman council meetings conducted by campus groups on the first night of Freshman Week is another necessity, Ebenbach pointed out. Those seeking to sign first year men for dates made it almost impossible for the counselors to conduct the meetings this year, he said.

Sophomores who spent their first year at Mont Alto should be classed as a rushee here, according to the rushing chairman, who contended that they are just as new to Penn State and fraternity rushing as the freshmen.

Criticism of the policy of fraternities taking dates in the second period when first period dates were available was also voiced by Ebenbach. Next year's code should make it a violation to make any date in the second period when a first period date is available, he maintained.

A more specific definition of rushing is necessary, according to Ebenbach. The present definition makes no provision for communication by telephone, automobile rides, and downtown lunches at times when the fraternity has no legal date with the rushee, and consequently conflicts with the silent periods," he pointed out. "Although the fraternities lived up
