

50 FACULTY MEN ATTEND SESSIONS

Hetzel Will Speak at Products Show Conducted in State Capital This Week

Over fifty faculty members of the School of Agriculture are attending the sessions of the Pennsylvania State Farm Products show which opened yesterday in Harrisburg. President Ralph D. Hetzel is also attending, being scheduled to speak at the annual horticulture dinner to be given tonight.

Dean Ralph L. Watts, and vice-dean Milton S. McDowell are members of the show commission, while Prof. Jacob M. Fry is secretary of the association. Other members of the faculty are acting as judges for the exhibits, serving as members of committees, or are giving instructional talks and addresses in various association meetings.

The speakers are Profs. Mark A. McCarty, William L. Henning, Robert H. Olmstead, Frederick P. Weaver, Andrew A. Borland, John E. Nicholas, Edwin J. Anderson, Henry W. Thurston, Robert S. Kirby, Roy D. Anthony, Harlan N. Worthley, Loren B. Smith, Stevenson W. Fletcher, Frank N. Fagan, and Miss Grace P. Bacon.

Speakers Listed

Other speakers are Profs. Walter B. Nissley, Gerald J. Stout, Warren B. Mack, Jesse M. Huffington, Ernest L. Nixon, and Robert R. Murphy. Some of the men will give several talks before different groups.

Penn State men selected to serve as judges are Profs. Andrew A. Borland, J. Stanley Cobb, Howard B. Musser, Clinton O. Cromer, Charles F. Noll, Dean R. Marble, Ernest W. Callenbach, Herman C. Kandel, and Carl D. Jeffries. Other judges are: Misses Edith P. Chace, Margaret Brown, Mabel McDowell, Edith Martin, and Grace P. Bacon.

Profs. John L. McCartney, Nicholas Schmitz, John Vandervort, Edward B. Fitts, William B. Connell, Lawrence C. Madison, Franklin L. Bentley, and Edwin H. Rohrbeck are members of committees for internal associations for the show.

Three faculty members are secretary-treasurers of associations; Ernest W. Callenbach, for the Poultry association, William B. Connell for the Livestock association, and Charles R. Gearhart representing the Dairy-men's association. Many students are expected to make the trip to the Capitol for the show, which closes Friday night.

New College Library Will Provide For Future Needs, Lewis Reveals

Careful preparation with a view to the future of Penn State is the policy to be pursued in compiling plans for a new library building, according to Willard P. Lewis, College librarian.

"One of the greatest mistakes made in the erection of college and university library structures in recent years has been the failure of the builders to provide for future development of the institution, which necessitates a corresponding expansion of library facilities," said Mr. Lewis. "Plans now under formation for a new College library will provide for future as well as present needs."

A study of the library requirements of the College covering the subjects of faculty and student needs, curricula and course demands, and collections of library books and material is now under way, and will be considered by each of the four committees assigned to the project, the librarian said. Dean Charles W. Stoddard of the School of Liberal Arts, and William S. Hoffman, College registrar, are cooperating in compiling this preliminary data.

Seven fundamental aims will be considered by the committees in planning for a new building, according to Mr. Lewis. Fundamentally the groups will plan for a structure which will serve the entire faculty and student body, with a secondary purpose of serving the community of State College and the entire State.

Satisfactory facilities for reading and research, book storage and display, and staff administration, and work; service to branch libraries of the various Schools and departments.

Noted Mining Book Sent To President For Autographing

A copy of "De Re Metallica," a famous mining and smelting treatise by Agricola, was located recently in the College library and was sent to its translators, President and Mrs. Hoover, to be autographed, according to Willard P. Lewis, College librarian.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, who studied together in the geological laboratories at Stanford University during their undergraduate years, translated the original work from medieval Latin in 1912. Mr. Hoover, by this time, had a broad knowledge of mining and smelting engineering in many countries.

Agricola, which is the Latinized form of the German word Bauer, was a diligent scholar and man of science in Germany during the sixteenth century, and was called the "father of mineralogy." The book, "De Re Metallica," was published in 1550 after Agricola had made an exhaustive study of the known minerals.

HENNING WILL GIVE ADDRESS BEFORE FORESTRY SOCIETY

Prof. William L. Henning, of the department of animal husbandry, will give an open lecture before the Forestry society on the subject, "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes" in the Forestry building at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

Professor Henning was a member of the National Geographical society expedition to the Katmi Island in 1919 and his talk tomorrow will deal with his experiences on that expedition.

Candidates for second assistant baseball manager should sign up at the Athletic association office.

of the College; and provision for artistic and cultural interests of the faculty and students by means of recreational reading rooms, exhibitions of books, prints and art objects, and the safe keeping of book and manuscript treasures, are listed as other aims of the new building.

"It is our belief that a careful preparation for a new building is just as important at the present time as is the raising of funds necessary for its erection," Mr. Lewis explained. "When we have completed satisfactory plans, we will be in a position to seek suitable financial arrangements."

Potato Barrel Emptied at Each Mac Hall Dinner

Imagine eating a barrel of potatoes at one meal! Sounds gluttonous, but that's what the co-eds do each time they sit down to dinner at McAllister hall, Mrs. Edith M. Johnson, supervisor of the commons, has revealed.

Twenty gallons of coffee disappear each night, and every day twenty-four loaves of bread, each as long as an average person's arm, go the way of all dough. Every time canned vegetables appear on the table, it means there are three crates less of said greens in the store room.

Ice cream is by far the most popular dessert with tapioca pudding at the tail end of the list. Lettuce is absolutely the bane of the co-ed's existence, and that's where the fifty waiters and kitchen workers go them one better. The stronger sex relishes its vitamin 'A' according to Mrs. Johnson.

The girls must find it hard to climb out of bed in the morning, for there are rarely more than 170 out to breakfast as contrasted with the 350 who bring their appetites to luncheon.

ANNUAL RHEOLOGY MEETING ATTENDED BY 4 PROFESSORS

Dr. Wheeler P. Davey, professor of physics and president of the Society of Rheology, presided over the fourth annual meeting of the society in Atlantic City recently.

Merrill R. Fenske, assistant professor of chemical engineering, Walter A. Herbst, graduate assistant in chemistry, and Eugene A. Willihnganz, graduate scholar in chemistry, read papers at the meeting.

BENTLEY ADDRESSES MEETING

Prof. Franklin L. Bentley, head of the animal husbandry department of the College, addressed members of the Maryland Livestock Breeders association in Baltimore last week. His subject was "Recent trends of beef production in the East."

Around The Corner

"Education is emancipation from herd opinion, self mastery, capacity for self-criticism, suspended judgment, and urbanity," writes Everett Dean Martin in his book The Meaning of a Liberal Education. Those few who are enrolled in our colleges for educational purposes often wonder to what end they are striving; when confronted with a definition of education, there is some basis for entertaining a skeptical attitude toward our present system of mass-education, with its traditions, barriers, and curriculum requirements.

A. J. Nock, in his book The Theory of Education in the United States, says this concerning intelligence: "The person of intelligence is the one who always tends to 'see things as they are,' the one who never permits his view of things to be directed by convention, by the hope of advantage, or by irrational or arbitrary authoritarianism. He allows the current of his consciousness to flow in perfect freedom over any object that may be presented to it, uncontrolled by prejudice, prepossession, or formulae." Is there anyone who could be so brazen as to say that our present theory of education is conducive to these ends? If education and the development of intelligence is the end and aim of a college career, then our present system, with its organization and mass theories, is a hopeless failure.—Daily Northwestern.
