Dengler, Dye Believe Honors Course System Impractical for Penn State

Belief that a system of honors courses would not work at Penn State was expressed by Dr. Robert E. Dengler, head of the classical languages department, and Dr. William S. Dye jr., head of the department of English literature.

"I'm in favor of the idea but I don't think that Penn State is ready for it and the steps we are taking now are not in the right direction," said Dr. Dengler. "So long as we have to take the run of the mill of Pennsylvania high school graduates under the dominance of modern theories of education, it seems doubtful that an honors course could be successful here."

"I don't object to the overburdening of instructors by an honors course so much as I object to compelling a student to do a tremendous amount of just mere mental labor without showing him any of the short cuts," Dr. Dengler said. "There is no advantage in making the student take all the steps."

"Until we get a body of students who in any large proportion can be expected to do independent work on the basis of pre-college intellectual experience and development," Dr. Dengler added, "the adoption of a so-called honors course would seem to be a travesty. What we need is a tightening up all along the line in required attainments for admission."

Dr. Dye pointed out that in the department of English literature the work is highly interpretive, and the classroom method rather than an honors course is the better means of instruction. Furthermore, student interest in the project would probably not be very great, Dr. Dye added, since even in one of his advanced courses they weren't interested enough to do extra reading in a designated period.

Mail Courses Show Queer Coincidences In Student Names

There is more in a name than just the letters, if strange coincidences between students' names in the agricultural correspondence files, and courses studied, are any indication.

A man named Berry recently requested instruction concerning the growing of small fruits, while information on green trucking is being sent to a student named Gardner. A Mr. Flowers is enrolled in the correspondence course in floriculture.

Two men named Mason and House are receiving instruction sheets on building materials, while one by the name of Shepherd, is a correspondence student in sheep husbandry. Forestry instruction is being sent to a Mr. Woods.

NEW ADVERTISING CLUB RECOGNIZED BY SENATE

Organization To Conduct Series of Lectures as First Project

The recently organized Advertising club, formed by a group of students having a professional interest in advertising, has been officially recognized by the College Senate, according to Robert M. Harrington '33, who was elected president of the group.

As its first action the club is planning to conduct a series of lectures to be given each week by men prominent in the advertising field. The series will begin the first week in the second semester.

In completing the organization of the club, Kenneth W. Weis '33 was named vice president, Willard D. Nestor '33 was elected secretary, and Omar K. Hill '33 gained the post of treasurer.

Dr. Horace Enos '65 Aided Escape Of Empress Eugenie from France

Reading like a page from Dumas is the story of Dr. Horace Enos '65 who aided the Empress Eugenie of France to escape from a German-surrounded Paris during the War of 1870, according to a recent issue of the Alumni News.

Dr. Enos was the assistant of his uncle, a Dr. Evans, who is mentioned in historical records in connection with the escape, and was living in Paris at the Evans home. While at dinner one evening he was called to the library to find the Empress, who told him of her plight.

Eugenie and her companion, Dr. and Mrs. Evans left Paris in the Evans coach, with Dr. Enos riding ahead on horseback. At the German lines he was directed to the commanding officer whom he discovered to be an old friend he had made in America, and who had visited the Enos home.

In response to his questions, Dr. Enos told him he was sending his sick sister home by the way of England. The German officer expressed his regret at not being able to leave in order to see her, and gave Dr. Enos the passport. Three days later the Empress was placed aboard a yacht in the English channel.

Dr. Enos and his uncle did dental work for most of the crowned heads in Europe between 1850 and 1870. Summoned to Rome by Pope Pius IX, Dr. Enos impressed him so much with his hearty American manners that he was chosen to perform a tooth-pulling operation.

Other royal patients whom Dr. Enos remembers were the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII of England, and Germany's Crown Prince, later Wilhelm II. Spain's ruler came to their office at 15 Rue de la Paix, where Dr. Enos did his work.

Dr. Enos is living at Long Beach, Cal., where he has lived for over twenty years. Dahlia culture has been one of his delights for many years. He was one of the early members of the Dahlia Society and his flowers have won him many prizes.

You smoke a Pipe

and we'd like to talk with you about it

All races of people since the beginning of time, so far as we have been able to read, have had some kind of a pipe and have smoked something—whether they called it tobacco or what not.

AND since smoking a pipe is so different from smoking a cigar or cigarette, we made a most painstaking, scientific study in an effort to make, if we could, a tobacco which was suited to pipes.

We found out, first, that there was a kind of tobacco that grew in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky called White Burley, and that there was a certain kind of this tobacco which was between the tobacco used for cigarettes and the tobacco used for chewing tobacco. It is this tobacco which is best for pipes.

We found out that Mr. J. N. Wellman, many years ago, made a pipe tobacco which was very popular. But it was never advertised and after he passed away nothing more was heard about it. We acquired this Wellman Method and that is what we use in making Granger.

Next was the cut. We knew that fine tobacco burnt hot because it burnt so fast. You could hardly hold your pipe in your hand, it got so hot at times. So remembering how folks used to "whittle" their tobacco we cut GRANGER just like "whittle" tobacco—"Rough Cut." It smokes cooler, lasts longer and never gums the pipe.

So far, so good. Now we wanted to sell this tobacco for 10c. Good tobacco—right process—cut right. So we put Granger in a sensible soft foil pouch instead of an expensive package, knowing that a man can't smoke the package.

GRANGER has not been on sale very long, but it has become a popular smoke. And we have yet to know of a man who started to smoke it, who didn't keep on. Folks seem to like it.
