

AMES WILL SPEAK HERE NEXT WEEK

Canadian Statesman To Deliver Lecture Series Tuesday, Wednesday Nights

Sir Herbert Ames, internationally-known statesman and lecturer, will give a series of lectures here Tuesday and Wednesday, under the sponsorship of the International Relations club. No admission will be charged.

Speaking on the subject, "The Polish Corridor—Danger Spot of Europe," Sir Herbert will deliver his first address in Schwab auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night. On the following night he will discuss the question "Should the peace treaties be revised; if so how can this be done?" An open forum is also planned in the Little Theatre in Old Main on Wednesday afternoon. Milton I. Baldinger '33, president of the International Relations club, has announced.

Served in Parliament

Sir Herbert, who served as financial director of the League of Nations for seven years, is giving a series of lectures on international affairs through the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The addresses here will be the first of the series which he will make throughout the country.

Accredited with organizing the financial frame-work of the League of Nations, Sir Herbert has long been a prominent figure in international affairs. Likewise he has taken an active interest in the World Court at the Hague, Holland, having opened the first meeting of the Judges of the Court.

Previous to his entrance into the work of international relations, Sir Herbert had served prominently in Canada. First elected to the Canadian parliament in 1904, he served continuously in that body until 1917. During the World War he was successful in directing the collection of $50,000,000 for the Patriotic Fund of Canada.

LEADING SCHOOL PAPERS TO GET MERIT AWARDS

Scholastic Staffs Will Hold Annual Conference Here April 22

Certificates of merit will be awarded to outstanding high school newspapers entered in the Press conference scheduled to be held here Saturday, April 22. Winners will be decided by a committee composed of prominent newspaper men of the State.

Editors from six high schools in the State, Altoona, Carrick, of Pittsburgh, Northeast, of Philadelphia, Red Lion, Vandergrift, and Wilkes-Barre, have already signified their willingness to act as leaders for discussion groups to be held during the course of the convention.

Meetings will be divided into groups interested in editorial and business problems, while faculty members and advisers will also hold group discussions. Several prominent newspaper publishers and editors will address the delegates at a luncheon to be held in the Sandwich shop, Old Main.

Penn State Historian Rolls Back 30 Years To Find Status of Faculty

"Great oaks from little acorns grow" runs an old proverb. In campus parlance, the venerable old axiom might well be re-phrased to "once a lowly freshman" when thirty years of history concerning present Penn State faculty members is rolled back.

Witness the following: President Ralph D. Hetzel was entering the University of Wisconsin as a freshman; Hugo Bezdek, director of the School of Physical Education, was a freshman in the University of Chicago; Dr. Charles F. Noll, of the department of agronomy, was a freshman here; and Dr. Ray H. Dottzner, of the philosophy department, was in his first year at Franklin and Marshall College.

Thirty years ago Dr. Joseph P. Ritenour had begun his studies in the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania; Prof. William F. Gibbons, of the journalism department, was engaged in graduate work at Bucknell University; Dr. Frederick W. Owens, head of the mathematics department, had just been graduated from the University of Kansas; Dean Charles W. Stoddard, of the School of Liberal Arts, had just received his philosophy doctorate from the University of Wisconsin; Prof. Frank D. Kern, of the department of botany, was a junior at the University of Iowa.

Dr. Stevenson W. Fletcher, of the horticulture department, had just been awarded his doctorate from Cornell University; Prof. Charles L. Kinsloe, head of the department of electrical engineering, was a senior here; Dr. William S. Dye, of the department of English literature, was a sophomore at the University of Pennsylvania;

Watkins Advocates Usage of Standard English in Country

"If we are to justify our existence as college people, we must conserve the standard English language," said Prof. Ray V. Watkins, of the English composition department, in commenting upon "Current English Usage," a publication issued by the National Council of Teachers of English.

This book caused a flurry in educational circles by maintaining that such expressions as, "It is me," "Who are you looking for?" "Go slow," "Try and well," "Pretty good," and "Invite whosoever you wish," are correct colloquial English phrases. Educators, newspaper writers, and authors were questioned in an extensive survey.

"The book is well-established in good colloquial usage, but literary usage should always be superior to the language of the man in the streets," Prof. Watkins emphasized. "The college man must differentiate between the two languages, and speak in a manner befitting his position."

Raymond H. Smith, College comptroller, was a sophomore here.

Thirty years ago several members of the present faculty were studying in foreign universities. Dr. Francis M. DuMont, head of the romance language department, was a senior at Valentin College, France, while Prof. Paul R. Blanchet had just graduated from College Chatal, France. Dr. Julio Martinez, also of the romance language department, was a young graduate student at the University of Chile, South America.

Members of the present faculty who were still in high school thirty years ago include Prof. Asa E. Martin, of the history department; Prof. Carl W. Hasek, of the department of economics and sociology; Dr. Jacob Tangler, head of the department of political science; Prof. R. Adams Dutcher, of the department of agricultural and biological chemistry; Dean Men Arthur R. Warnock; Dean Frank C. Whitmore, of the School of Chemistry and Physics; and William S. Hoffman, College registrar.

Dean Edward Steidle, of the School of Mineral Industries, was still in grammar school. Head Football Coach Bob Higgins was also in grammar school.

NOMINATION CODE CHANGE PROPOSED

Resolution Adopted by Sophomore, Junior Women Would Alter System Now Used

Fraternity Presidents' council has passed a resolution to alter present nominating methods now in effect among women of sophomore and junior classes. Suggested revisions accompanied the approval.

Similar to the W. S. G. A. nominating committee, the proposed board would consist of five seniors of whom three would be fraternities, and two, non-fraternity women. Presidents of the three upper classes would elect members to the board.

According to the approved plan, petitions nominating candidates for office would be signed by ten petitioners, and submitted to the nominating board. If the new plan goes into effect, open nominations by ballot would be eliminated, and only class members would vote at elections.

Junior class officials suggested that a faculty advisor be added to the board, that the authority of the board be made more specific, and that the required majority of petition signers be increased. They also proposed that the selection of the board be placed in the hands of more than three fraternity presidents.

14 ATTEND SHORT COURSE

Fourteen students attended the herdsman's short course here last week, according to Prof. Adam L. Beam, of the dairy husbandry department. Instruction in feeding, management, fitting, showing, animal diseases, testing, and related subjects was given.

ADDRESSES POULTRY CLUB

Prof. Ernest W. Callenbach, of the department of poultry husbandry, addressed members of the Poultry club Tuesday night on the topic "A Trip to Florida."

COLLEGE CONCLAVE PROGRAM PLANNED

Discussion Groups, Formation of Permanent Body Included In Arrangements

Discussion groups on collegiate problems, formation of a permanent association, and a dance are included on the tentative program for the convention of twelve Pennsylvania colleges and universities to be held here April 21 and 22.

President Ralph D. Hetzel is scheduled to open the convention on Friday morning, April 21, with an address of welcome to the delegates from ten colleges and universities in the State. Organization of a permanent collegiate association is the purpose of the convention, which was proposed by John A. Wood, senior class president.

Leaders Appointed

Discussion groups on various campus subjects are listed on the program for Friday afternoon. Student leaders have been appointed by Wood to organize discussions on athletics, honors courses and honor systems, publications, intramural sports, athletic and class finances, and student government.

In addition to the student chairmen, faculty advisers have been named to assist in each group. Director Hugo Bezdek, of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, will be the faculty member in charge of the athletics discussion; Dean Charles W. Stoddard, of the School of Liberal Arts, honors courses and honor systems; Neil M. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, athletic and class finances; Dean of Women Charlotte E. Ray and Dean of Men Arthur R. Warnock, women's and men's student government.

On Saturday, April 22, the discussion groups will meet again to adopt resolutions for the general convention. A dance for the benefit of the Student Loan fund is planned for Saturday night.

SOPHOMORE CANDIDATES FOR 'LA VIE' TO MEET

Will Hear Baldinger, Zukauskas,
Phillips Wednesday Night

Sophomore men and women candidates for the editorial and business staffs of the La Vie will report at a meeting in Room 318, Old Main, at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night, Ernest B. Zukauskas '33, managing editor, announced yesterday.

A series of lectures of an instructional nature will be given by senior members of the staff. Arthur E. Phillips '33, editor, Milton I. Baldinger '33, business manager, and Zukauskas will speak to the candidates, while Mary M. Westrick '33 will address women candidates at a later date.

Elections to the junior staff of the yearbook publication will be held next fall, probably before Thanksgiving vacation, and elections to the senior board will be held in April or May next year, Zukauskas said. Spring assignments will be given at a later meeting, he added.

2 WILL GIVE LECTURES

Prof. Walter B. Nissey, of the agricultural extension department, and Grace F. Bacon, of the home economics extension department, will address a group of Clinton county citizens at Lock Haven next Friday.

On Other Campuses

Some students have been getting their meals free at Michigan State College. All those who dined at a certain eating club for at least two weeks received their food for nothing the second week.

Most Phi Beta Kappas don't marry, according to a master's thesis submitted several weeks ago at Columbia University. However, those who do take the step, usually have more children than the average college graduate, the thesis adds.

The Greeks at Marquette apparently have a bad reputation. The police station not only has the name of every fraternity man at the university, but also a list of his characteristics and weaknesses.

A young professor was mistaken for a freshman at Lincoln Memorial University the other day and given a good hazing. As a result of this egregious error, freshman customs of thirty-five years standing were abolished by the authorities.

Professors, too, are human. One of the pedagogues at Northeastern University is reported to have fallen asleep in a lecture on the history of economics, a course which he was taking under another professor.

KOEPP-BAKER WILL GIVE L. A. LECTURE TUESDAY

Public Speaking Professor To Speak
On "This Talking World"

Prof. Herbert Koepf-Baker, of the division of public speaking, will deliver the fourth Liberal Arts lecture in the Home Economics auditorium Tuesday night with "This Talking World" as his topic.

Professor Baker, who has been director of the speech clinic here for three years, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. The speaker has had extensive dramatic experience, and, at one time, was a member of a chautauqua company.

His topic will explain the professional's reaction to the speech, popular and otherwise, of the day. In his numerous contacts with famous speakers Professor Baker has gathered much information on the subject.

JETTE WILL GIVE PRIESTLEY SERIES

Columbia Metallurgy Professor To Begin Annual Lectures Monday Night

Opening the seventh annual series of Priestley Lectures, Dr. Eric R. Jette, of the department of metallurgy at Columbia University, will discuss "The General Relationship Between Physical Chemistry and Metallurgy" in the chemistry amphitheatre at 7:30 o'clock Monday night.

This year's lectures commemorate the two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Joseph Priestley in England, March 24, 1733. One of Priestley's outstanding accomplishments was his discovery of Oxygen in 1774. He later moved to the United States where he made many contributions to early American chemistry.

Will Discuss Problems

Dr. Jette will deliver five lectures next week on the general topic of the borderline between physical chemistry and metallurgy. On Monday night he will describe practical metallurgical processes as illustrations of the type of metallurgical problems which are solved by physico-chemical methods.

The lectures were inaugurated by the faculty of the department of chemistry in 1926 as a memorial to Priestley. In 1931, Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemistry fraternity, assumed part of the financial responsibility in connection with the series. Members of the student body and faculty are invited to attend the lectures.

Immediately after the lecture Monday night, an informal reception will be held for Dr. Jette in the first floor lounge of Old Main by Phi Lambda Upsilon. During his stay in State College he will be the guest of Herbert E. Longenecker '33, president of Phi Lambda Upsilon.

All manuscripts for the Pi Delta Epsilon short story contest must be in the hands of the committee not later than noon tomorrow. Stories may be left at the Student Union desk.

All candidates for managers of women's baseball and track should sign up in McAllister hall today or tomorrow.

Jewish students may secure excuses from classes for the Passover holidays from Emanuel Frisch '33 at the Sigma Tau Phi house next week.

Christian Science society will meet in Room 405 Old Main at 7 o'clock Monday night.
