SOCCKERMEN PLAN GAME TOMORROW

Summer Collegians to Meet Team Representing High School At 3 O'clock

Summer Session students will be given an opportunity to witness a regulation soccer game at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the Summer Collegians, an eleven composed of Summer Session students, and a team representing State College high school clash on New Beaver field. No admission will be charged for the game.

Al Daykin, captain of the 1932 Penn State varsity team, will lead the Summer Collegians, while three other members of the 1932 Nittany Lion eleven, Bob Sigel, fullback, Swede Hansen, halfback, and Eddie Finzel, forward, will also line up with the Summer Session team. Allison Metzger, a pair of West Chester State Teachers College booters, are additional halfbacks listed for action with the Collegians.

The Collegians will have Carl Wittum as their goalie, Ostrum at fullback, and Hoy, Corbett, Schoff and Wagner as additional forwards. Jack Walsh, a member of the 1932 Navy soccer team, is also scheduled to play for the Summer Session eleven.

Jeffrey and Jack Fletcher, another regular on last fall's Lion team, are listed for action with the high school team. The referee will be Sergeant Jack Ryan, of the military science department, who has handled several of the intercollegiate contests staged here in the past.

HOLMES TAKES LAIDLER'S PLACE AS SPEAKER HERE

Appearing here in place of Dr. Harry W. Laidler, Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, a member of the faculty at Swarthmore College and a representative of the League for Industrial Democracy, addressed a large audience in Schwartz auditorium last night. Dr. Holmes' subject was "Industrial Democracy and the Machine Age."

The substitution of Dr. Holmes for Dr. Laidler, who informed Summer Session authorities that he would be unable to appear here, marked the third change of speaker for last night's program. An unexpected trip to Europe forced Paul Blanshard, originally scheduled to speak, to cancel his engagement here, and Norman Thomas, prominent socialist, who was expected to take his place, found it impossible to appear here and secured Dr. Laidler to take his place.

TO GIVE TESTS TOMORROW
Examinations for students in English literature who are to receive their degree of master of arts at the end of this session will be held tomorrow.

TEAMS SPLIT IN GOLF, BASEBALL ON TUESDAY

Bucknell Wins in Baseball Contest But Vanquished in Golf Match

Penn State Summer Session student athletes vanquished Bucknell Summer Session students and faculty members in six out of seven matches of golf, but lost to the Bison by 12-2 in the baseball encounter, in the athletic field day held on Tuesday afternoon here.

Snavelly, Bucknell coach who is enrolled in the School of Physical Education here, played for State in the golf matches, and defeated his fellow-Bison Griffith. Blanshard also vanquished Brandon of the Bisons, while Fry and Bischoff finished even with their Bucknell opponents, Miller and Gordan.

In the baseball game, Penn State men found difficulty in solving the deliveries of the Bison hurler, Smith, and their failure to hit in the pinches coupled with errors proved disastrous. Clemons and Jones formed the starting battery for the locals with Wynn relieving Clemons in the fourth inning.

SUMMER COLLEGIAN TEAM RETAINS PERFECT RECORD

Trounce Ag Hillers for Tenth Win Of Season—McMillen Pitches

Kept their record for the season spotless, the Summer Collegians, independent student baseball team, trounced the Ag Hill team of the borough league by an 11-to-3 score on the Army field Wednesday night.

The victory marked the tenth of the season for the Collegians, who have defeated the Graham A. C., College Heights and an all-star team from the State College league, Alpha Chi Rho and Alpha Zeta since the start of Summer Session. A 6-to-5 tie with the Alpha Zeta team on Monday night the only blot on the otherwise perfect record of the Collegians.

In preparation for a heavy schedule of games the next week, the Collegians sided Bill McMillen, former Nittany in football and lacrosse player, to strengthen their pitching corps.

Unemployed Relief Course Held Here for First Time

For the first time in the history of Penn State, a course in the administration of Unemployment Relief is being given in Summer Session in cooperation with the staff of the State Emergency Relief Board, the State Department of Welfare, and the Public Charities Association.

Because of the extraordinary demand for workers equipped to administer relief, this course, under the general supervision of Miss Helen R. Kersey, of the State Emergency Relief Board, and Miss Helen D. Pigeon, of the State Department of Welfare, is giving practical instruction and experience to the students.

The limited quota of the class was extended to twenty-six, nineteen of whom are college graduates. Some of the students have already had experience in working in unemployment relief, and all have met the requirements of age and education.

Although there is no guarantee of positions with the State government, the need for well-equipped workers is so great that there is a possibility that students completing the course satisfactorily may be placed. The work in small towns and rural communities being stressed in comparison to their urban districts.

In cooperation with the College departments of economics and sociology, instruction being given in the various phases of the work such as the attitude of a worker, the philosophy of relief-giving, economic problems of unemployment, and physiological and psychological problems of individuals.

Besides work in the classroom, students are doing their time to lectures, private conferences, discussion groups, and supervised field trips.

Among the speakers scheduled to lecture to the group are Mrs. Elizabeth Cheney, Secretary Poor board, Lima, O., and Mrs. Margaret Miller, case supervisor, Fayette County Relief board, July 31; Mrs. Alice Liveright, Sec Secretary, Department of Welfare, on August 1 and 2; and Miss My Labaree, Assistant Director, Bureau of Community work, and Miss Ed Ruppert, field representative of I. S. E. R. B., on August 3.

Others who'll speak include F. R. Stilwell, Field Director of the S. E. R. B., and E. Solenberger, Executive Secretary Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania.

Snavelly, Higgins See Bright Prospects For This Fall

Keep an eye on Bucknell and Penn State when the 1933 football season rolls around in a few months.

That's the conclusion that one reaches after talking to Carl Snavelly, head coach at Bucknell, who is a student here this summer, and Coach "Bob" Higgins, Nittany Lion mentor whose course for football coaches was completed last Friday.

"Our prospects look as bright as they have at any year since I've been at Bucknell, with the exception of 1931," Snavelly declares with confidence. "The 1931 season was an exception because the outlook then pointed toward an undefeated season and we achieved just that."

Higgins isn't quite so optimistic, but he does admit that the season's outlook is fairly good, at least better than it has been in the past two years. "Our team is going to be light and inexperienced," he points out. "I'm counting heavily on some of last year's freshman eleven to fill the holes made by graduation this year and if they have the stuff we ought to have better luck this year."

Snavelly faces a difficult ten-game schedule which includes contests with Waynesburg, Lebanon Valley, Duquesne, Villanova, Temple, Western Maryland, Wake Forest, Furman University, Washington and Jefferson and Lafayette. Higgins must prepare a team to face Lebanon Valley, Muhlenberg, Syracuse, Columbia, Johns Hopkins, Lehigh and Pennsylvania.
