At the close of the speaking a short summary by an authority in the field under discussion is given. In this discussion the faculty authority will be Dr. Carl W. Hasok, of the department of economics. Prof. John Henry Frizzell will serve as chairman.

The forum method has been successfully used in several western colleges, but this will be the first time it has been used in a Pennsylvania college.

It is interesting to note in this connection that Penn State was one of the first among eastern colleges to use the Oregon plan of debate, which has recently been adopted by the Eastern Debate League.

Four more forums have been arranged by Professor Frizzell. On December 15, Dickinson, Gettysburg, and Penn State will engage in a forum with William and Mary will be held at Williamsburg, Va. On January 15, a forum will be held here, including Juniata, Penn State, and possibly St. Francis. Later in the season a forum will be held with either Lafayette or Lehigh.

Professors Give Addresses, Lead Open Forums Before Fraternity Men

"Freshman Training" was the subject of discussion at the quarterly meeting of fraternity advisors held Tuesday night. Six members of the faculty delivered papers relating to freshman problems, each of which was followed by an open forum.

Dr. David C. Duncan, of the department of physics, spoke on "Department, Social Behavior, and Etiquette," pointing out the fact that individuality in freshman should be preserved, and there should be no attempt to mould all freshmen in a group into a type, as is done in a majority of the social fraternities.

Holds Stress Misdirected Speaking on "Ritualistic Training," Prof. George R. Green, of the department of nature education, stated that a number of fraternities devote too much time to having freshmen memorize things which are unimportant, instead of devoting their time to more valuable training, such as emphasizing etiquette and the finer points of fraternity and college life.

Professor Green said, "All activities should have a meaning as a preparation for fraternity life."

"House Duties" were discussed by Dr. J. Benjamin Hill, of the department of botany. Dr. Hill brought out the fact that the main value derived from these duties was that the freshmen were made to see little things about the house that have to be done to keep it presentable.

Amos E. Neyhart, of the department of industrial engineering, spoke on "Extra-curricular Activities," stating that, although scholarship should be emphasized, extra-curricular activities are an important feature in moulding educated men, although too much specialization is not beneficial.

Dr. Marsh W. White, of the department of physics, discussed "Scholarship." "With the swelling of many chapter rolls to more than forty activities," Dr. White said, "a need for some kind of chapter tutorial adviser is becoming increasingly felt."

Students to Get Aid Through CWA

(Continued from page one) American patience, and American nerve are certainly to be complimented in the way in which the nation has "stuck by its guns" in the wake of widespread dissatisfaction with the National Recovery Administration.

Dr. Roncek, who was giving the more foreign point of view, declared, "Americans seem to agree that the NRA may not be the solution to problems, but they certainly believe that while it is in effect, they will give it all the dogged support possible, and if it fails, will turn to the next plan, with all their original gusto," he concluded.

Other projects on which needy students will be given jobs as soon as they are approved by officials are: the extension of Center Drive from Burrows to Atherton streets; a service road to the incinerator; repairs to the various parking areas and roads about the campus; and other small jobs of regrading, reseeding, drainage, and additional macadam walks about the campus.

MILLER, BERBATHS NAMED TO SPEAK

Will Meet U. of Pittsburgh in Schwab Auditorium 7:30 Saturday Night

Ernest C. Miller '34 and Angelo N. Berbath '35 have been named to represent Penn State in the first of a series of Intercollegiate Forums in Schwab auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night.

They will discuss with two speakers from the University of Pittsburgh the possibilities of retaining permanently the essential features of the N. I. R. A.

Accompanied by Prof. W. Maxfield Parrish, the Pitt speakers will arrive early Saturday afternoon and, after conferring with the Penn State representatives concerning the manner of procedure to be followed in the discussion, they will be entertained by the Forensic Council at dinner.

Forum System First in East The forum is not a debate between two colleges, but an attempt by the speakers to present all phases of the question, for discussion among themselves and the audience.

At the close of the speaking a short summary by an authority in the field under discussion is given. In this discussion the faculty authority will be Dr. Carl W. Hasok, of the department of economics. Prof. John Henry Frizzell will serve as chairman.

Professors Declare Fascism Impossible

(Continued from page one) centralization of authority in the federal government is a direct movement of the faculty members said. However, they pointed out, the fact that all American leaders are civilians rather than army men, and that all American reforms have come through the ballot rather than by means of the bullet, is directly opposed to the forced inception of any such a militaristic governmental system in the United States.

In comparing some of the ways in which the NRA is similar to the Fascist movement, the professorial 'builders' mentioned the attitude in which the Italian movement was started. It was in direct following to the 'American' idea that "if the machine works, it's all right," that Mussolini started his party. It was the same path, following the American demand for constant change, that Hitler took in the origin of the 'brown shirts,' they declared.

A summary of the ideas presented by all four men during the discussion reveals that each of them believes that the American system of mere governmental regulation, within bounds, rather than true governmental control, will continue to prevail in the United States. In reaching this conclusion, they took into account the possible moves of the government in case the NRA drive fails.

"American patience, and American nerve are certainly to be complimented in the way in which the nation has 'stuck by its guns' in the wake of widespread dissatisfaction with the National Recovery Administration," Dr. Roncek, who was giving the more foreign point of view, declared.

"Americans seem to agree that the NRA may not be the solution to problems, but they certainly believe that while it is in effect, they will give it all the dogged support possible, and if it fails, will turn to the next plan, with all their original gusto," he concluded.

BANKS TO OPERATE UNDER STATE CODE

All Checking Accounts Under 50 Dollars Subject to Added 50-Cent Charge

State College banks last Saturday began to operate under the new banking code drawn up by the Pennsylvania Bankers' association.

In addition to the local banks, all such institutions in Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Centre, Clearfield, Huntingdon counties will follow the same code.

The provision most interesting to students is one making any checking account falling below $50 during the month subject to a charge of fifty cents. This charge entitles the depositor to three checks monthly, additional checks to cost three cents each.

Excessive of Federal Tax The service charge of three cents per check does not include the federal tax of two cents that has been levied during the past year, according to David F. Kapp, cashier of the First National Bank. He believes, however, that this two-cent charge will be withdrawn about the first of the year.

"You will recall," Mr. Kapp said, "that President Roosevelt promised that if prohibition were repealed, $220,000,000 in taxes would be removed. This tax on checks was part of the method used to secure this revenue."

The hours for banks have been made uniform by the new code. Banks will be open daily from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon with the exception of Saturday, when the hours will be from 9 until 12 o'clock in the morning.

A charge of twenty-five cents will be made for checks drawn against an account when there are insufficient funds to cover the withdrawal, according to the new code. This includes the use of post-dated checks. Likewise, twenty-five cents is the minimum charge for any overdrafts, while a charge of at least ten cents will be levied for cashier's checks.

To date, there have been few withdrawals of students' accounts locally, according to Mr. Kapp. "This is due principally because the majority of people understand that it is not a local condition, but part of a national code," he explained. "It would be impossible to find any bank in the country that will not be forced to charge the same rates."
